MEMOIR.

The subject of this memoir, the Rev. Robert Pollock, was a native of Muirhouse, in the parish of Eaglesham, situated about eleven miles southeast from the city of Glasgow, and was born on the 19th Oct. 1798. Of his father, who was a very worthy and intelligent man, and good farmer, he was the youngest son ; and the days of his early life were devoted to such pursuits and avocations, as suited his father's interests and inclinations. Before he attained fourteen years of age, whether at the instance of his father or of his own choice, is not known, he was sent to acquire the trade of a cartwright, in the village of Eaglesham, and commenced that business accordingly : but owing to the advice of his elder brother who was engaged in the preparatory studies for the ministry, he was induced to relinquish his mechanical employment, and enter upon those incipient scholastic exercises, necessary for one whose object was the clerical office. This new impulse given to his inclinations and feelings by his brother, received the sanction of his parents, and in the year 1813 he began the study of the Latin Grammar, at a school situated in the parish of Fenwick, where he made rapid improvement.

In the month of October, 1815, his progress in learning was so considerable, that he received admission into the University of Glasgow, where, after five years of close application to the studies incident to that institution, the degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him at the age of twenty-two.

His devotion to his studies, and his zeal for proficiency in them, justly received the approbation of his literary guardians, and produced him several prize honors, which his fellow students cheerfully awarded him. But his daily offerings, made with so much zeal and assiduity in the temple of learning, considerably reduced the tone and vigor of his health ; and although unconscious of the injurious effect of too much application, yet, it was evident he was preparing, at no remote period, to become a martyr to the studies he pursued with such untiring industry.

Some time in the autumn of 1822, he entered the Seminary of the United Sessions Church, as a student of Theology, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Dick, of Glasgow. During this time he was also a constant attendant on the lectures of Dr. Macgill, on Theology, in the University.

After the accustomed period of five sessions attendance at the Hall, he obtained licence to preach, simultaneously with his brother, in the month of May, 1827, which was granted by the United Associate Presbytery of Edinburgh, and he commenced the work of the ministry accordingly.

About the period of his licensure, the poem, which had employed much of his time and engrossed much of his attention for two antecedent years, was issued from the press, and given to the world. It was a work worthy of its author, and was properly appreciated by the public.

At Rose-street Chapel, Edinburgh, of which the Rev. John Brown was minister, he preached his first public discourse, on the afternoon of Thursday, the third of May, a day set apart for humiliation and prayer, preparatory to the administration of the sacrament of the supper. He took his text in 1st Kings, xviii. chap. 21 verse : " How long halt ye between two opinions ? If the Lord be God, follow him, but if Baal, then follow him."

This first public effort appears, from the testimony

of others, to have been abundantly successful. In one part of the sermon he rose into an awful sublimity, which carried a complete and lasting conviction to his hearers, of the superiority of his talents and eloquence. The London Memoir, speaking of this sermon, says, "Many, we doubt not, who heard him that day, will recollect the profound and eloquent discourse which he delivered, in which there was a brilliant display of poetical imagery, combined with metaphysical acuteness, and admirable reasoning, and many, we doubt not, will recollect his feeble appearance, and the exhaustion which was apparent ere he closed. Alas ! disease was then making rapid inroads on his constitution, and his public ministrations were soon to end forever." The weariness and prostration of strength, the offspring of this first and bold exertion were so excessive, that after leaving the church, he was compelled to confine himself to his bed, and notwithstanding his subsequent partial restoration, he was only able to preach three sermons afterwards ; the spirit which animated him not possessing power sufficient to resist the weakness of the body.

Consumption, that sly and deceitful destroyer which flatters but to kill, had fastened on his vitals, and with its slow but silent tooth was feeding on his constitution. Yet he did not know the extent of his danger. However, "in the summer he removed from Edinburgh to Slateford, a most romantic village in the parish of St. Cuthbert's, delightfully situated on the rivulet called the Water of Leith, about three miles from the city. There, in the family of the Rev. Dr. Belfrage, minister of the United Congregation of Slateford, he was received with the utmost affection and respect. The salubrity of the air, and particular attention to diet, it was fondly anticipated, would restore him to vigor, especially as he had youth and the advantage of the season in his favor. The well known medical reputation of Dr. Belfrage, was fortunate for him in this delightful retirement. Finding however, that his health was not returning, he was, during the summer, induced to take an easy tour to Aberdeen, in the hope that change of air and scene might recruit his exhausted frame. But the expectations of his friends were disappointed. He returned, and it was evident that disease was quickly hastening him to the grave."

It was now thought necessary that a change of climate should be tried, and it was anticipated that the salubrious air of Italy might restore him to health. The city of Pisa, in the Grand Duchy of Tuscany, was the place selected for his residence. To a mind like his, deeply stored with classical learning, and capable of appreciating the scenes of that delightful country, such a residence must have possessed the highest interest. The fixed determination to visit the classic soil of Italy was attempted to be carried into effect, as soon as the preliminary arrangements necessary for his comfort on the journey were executed, and letters recommending him to the favorable notice and attention of individuals, celebrated for their learning on the Continent, were procured. Accompanied by his sister, he set out from Scotland, in August, on his journey.

"He proceeded by sea to England, and went first to Plymou'h, but the state of his health rendered it impossible for him to go forward, and only the hope remained that if spared till the next summer, he would perhaps be enabled to complete his journey. He therefore took up his residence near Southampton, at Devonshire Place, Shirley Common."

This was the Ultima Thule of his journeys. It was soon apparent that his disease was too deeply planted to be removed : and hope, the last effort of the mind in sickness, was now extinct. Under the conviction that he could not recover, he wrote to his brother in Scotland touching his condition, which he considered hopeless, and stated to his sister, who was with him, that he should have remained at home, had he been able to realize the rapidly destructive nature of his disease.

After a few afflictive days of lingering pain, premonitory of his hastening dissolution, he died on the 18th of September, 1827. His mortal remains were soon after decently interred, his brother not arriving until after his burial. He died in the full persuasion of the truth of the christian system, which he had essayed to preach ; and was cheered in his last moments by a calmness and tranquility of mind, arising from his firm and unshaken faith in the religion he professed, and an unwavering confidence in the glories of that promised redemption, which he had delineated with such pathos, eloquence and power.

He fell a martyr to his too great avidity for knowledge, and his books were literally his executioners.

The Course of Time, the poem which had employed his thoughts for a long period antecedent to its appearance, and of which he had furnished, for the four last books, almost a thousand lines each week, is well worthy the eulogies it received, and the admiration it obtained. For fourteen years before its birth, this intellectual child was conceived by the author, in his juvenile days ; and lived in embryo thought as the offspring of his maturing mind. When it was introduced to the world, it met, therefore, that flattering reception to which its merit entitled it ; and wound a wreath of fame around the memory of the genius and talents of its departed author. The public approved the work, and furnished ample testimony in favor of him who wrote it, by the avidity with which they sought, and the commendations they bestowed upon it.

His other literary performances, are three Sabbath School tales, written when he was engaged in the study of Theology, and published without the sanction of his name : they were entitled "Helen of the

In his preface to the "Persecuted Family," he says, "every sigh of our persecuted ancestors is recorded in heaven ; every tear which they shed, is preserved in the bottle of God. Why then, should not their memories be dear to us for whom they bled and for whom they died ? But it is not only that we may pay them our debt of gratitude, that we ought to acquaint ourselves with their lives ; it is that we may gather humility from their lowlieness ; faith from their trust in God ; courage from their heaven-sustained fortitude ; warmth from the flame of their devotion, and hope from their glorious success."

We cannot conclude this hasty sketch of the life, talents, character, and productions of Mr. Pollok better than by copying the language of one who wrote his memoir. In attending to his death, he says, "He has gone the way of all the earth ; and his spirit, we fondly hope, is among the 'spirits of the just made perfect,' who, 'by faith and patience, are now inheriting the promises.' But he lives in the hearts of his friends, who think of him with fond regret ; he lives in the hearts of his countrymen ; and his praise is not only in the church of which he was a licentiate, but in all the churches."

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK I

ANALYSIS OF BOOK I.

The author invokes the Eternal Spirit to inspire his song, that he may sing The Course of Time, The second birth and final doom of man, the essential truth, time gone, the righteous saved, the wicked damned, and providence approved.

Long after time had ceased and Eternity had rolled on its periods, numbered only by God alone, a stranger spirit arrives high on the hills of immortality, and is there met by two other spirits, youthful sons of Paradise, who greet him with "Well done thou good and faithful servant," and invite him to ascend the throne of God.

The stranger informs them, that, when he left his native world, on his way towards heaven, he came to a realm of darkness, where he saw beings of all shapes, all forms, all modes of wretchedness, in a place of torment, burning continually, & dying perpetually, and heard curses and blasphemies: the meaning of which he requests them to unfold to him: but they being unable, introduce him to an ancient bard of the earth, and all three request him to explain to them the wonders of the place of torments, and prison of the damned.

The bard informs them that the place the stranger saw was Hell; the groans he heard the wailings of the damned, and that he will have his asking, and that, wondering doubt, shall learn to answer, while he gives them, in brief, the history of Man.

THE
Course of Time.
BOOK I.

ETERNAL Spirit ! God of truth ! to whom
All things seem as they are ; thou who of old
The prophet's eye unscaled, that nightly saw,
While heavy sleep fell down on other men,
In holy vision traced, the future pass
Before him, and to Judah's harp attuned
Burdened that made the pagan mountains shake,
And Zion's cedars bow—inspire my song ;
My eye unscale ; me what is substance teach,
And shadow what, while I of things to come,
As past rehearsing, sing the Course of Time,
The second Birth, and final Doom of man.

The muse, that soft and sickly woos the ear
Of love, or chanting loud in windy rhyme
Of fabled hero, raves through gaudy tale
Not overfraught with sense, I ask not ; such
A strain befits not argument so high.
Me thought, and phrase, severely sifting out
The whole idea, gran'—uttering as 'tis
The essential truth—Time gone, the Righteous saved.
The wicked damned, and Providence approved.

Hold my right hand, Almighty ! and me teach
To strike the lyre, but seldom struck, to notes
Harmonious with the morning stars, and pure

As those of sainted bards, and angels sung,
 Which wake the echoes of eternity—
 That fools may hear and tremble, and the wise
 Instructed listen, of ages yet to come.

Long was the day, so long expected, past
 Of the eternal doom, that gave to each
 Of all the human race his due reward.
 The sun—earth's sun, and moon, and stars, had ceased
 To number seasons, days, and months, and years
 To mortal man : hope was forgotten, and fear ;
 And Time, with all its chance and change, and smiles,
 And frequent tears, and deeds of villainy,
 Or righteousness—once talked of much, as things
 Of great renown, was now but ill remembered ;
 In dim and shadowy vision of the past,
 Seen far remote, as country, which has left
 The traveller's speedy step, retiring back
 From morn till even ; and long, eternity
 Had rolled his mighty years, and with his years,
 Men had grown old : the saints, though returned
 From pilgrimage, and war, and pestilence, long
 Had rested in the bowers of peace, that skirt
 The stream of life ; and long, alas, how long
 To them it seemed, the wicked who refused
 To be redeemed, had wandered in the dark
 Of hell's despair, and drunk the burning cup
 Their sins had filled with everlasting woe.,

Thus far the years had rolled, which none but God
 Doth number, when two sons, two youthful sons
 Of Paradise, in conversation sweet,
 (For thus the heavenly muse instructs me, wooed
 At midnight hour with offering sincere
 Of all the heart, poured out in holy prayer,) High on the hills of immortality,
 Whence goodliest prospect looks beyond the walls
 Of heaven, walked, casting oft their eye far thro'
 The pure serene, observant, if returned

From errand duly finished, any came,
Or any, first in virtue now complete,
From other worlds arrived, confirmed in good.

Thus viewing, one they saw, on hasty wing
Directing towards heaven his course ; and now
His flight ascending near the battlements
And lofty hills on which they walked, approached.
For round and round, in spacious circuit wide,
Mountains of tallest stature circumscribe
The plains of Paradise, whose tops, arrayed
In uncreated radiance, seem so pure,
That nought but angel's foot, or saint's elect
Of God, may venture there to walk ; here oft
The sons of bliss take morn or evening pastime,
Delighted to behold ten thousand worlds
Around their suns revolving in the vast
External space, or listen to the harmonies
That each to other in its motion sings.
And hence, in middle heaven remote, is seen
The mount of God, in awful glory bright.
Within, no orb create of moon, or star,
Or sun gives light ; for God's own countenance,
Beaming eternally, gives light to all ;
But farther than these sacred hills his will
Forbids its flow—too bright for eyes beyond.
This is the last ascent of Virtue ; here
All trial ends, and hope; here perfect joy,
With perfect righteousness, which to these heights
Alone can rise, begins, above all fall.—

And now on wing of holy ardor strong,
Hither ascends the stranger, borne upright ;
For stranger he did seem, with curious eye
Of nice inspection round surveying all,
And at the feet alights of those that stood
His coming, who the hand of welcome gave,
And the embrace sincere of holy love ;
And thus, with comely greeting kind, began.

Hail, brother ! hail, thou son of happiness !
 Thou son beloved of God ! welcome to heaven !
 To bliss that never fades ! thy day is past
 Of trial, and of fear to fall. Well done,
 Thou good and faithful servant, enter now
 Into the joy eternal of thy Lord.
 Come with us, and behold far higher sight
 Than e'er thy heart desired, or hope conceived.
 See, yonder is the glorious hill of God,
 'bove angel's gaze, in brightness rising high.
 Come, join our wing, and we will guide thy flight
 To mysteries of everlasting bliss ;—
 The tree, and fount of life, the eternal throne,
 And presence-chamber of the King of kings.
 But what concern hangs on thy countenance,
 Unwont within this place ? perhaps thou deem'st
 Thyself unworthy to be brought before
 The always Ancient One ? so are we too
 Unworthy ; but our God is all in all.
 And gives us boldness to approach his throne.

Sons of the highest ! citizens of heaven !
 Began the new arrived, right have ye judged :
 Unworthy, most unworthy is your servant,
 To stand in presence of the King, or hold
 Most distant and most humble place in this
 Abode of excellent glory unrevealed.
 But God Almighty be forever praised,
 Who, of his fulness, fills me with all grace,
 And ornament, to make me in his sight
 Well pleasing, and accepted in his court.
 But if your leisure waits, short narrative
 Will tell, why s'renge concern thus overhangs
 My face, ill seeming here; and haply too,
 Your elder knowledge can instruct my youth,
 Of what seems dark and doubtful unexplained.

Our leisure waits thee ; speak—and what we can,
 Delighted most to give delight, we will ;

Though much of mystery yet to us remain.

Virtue—I need not tell, when proved, and full
 Matured—inclines us up to God, and heaven,
 By law of sweet compulsion strong, and sure ;
 As gravitation to the larger orb
 The less attracts, thro' matter's whole domain.
 Virtue in me was ripe—I speak not this
 In boast, for what I am to God I owe,
 Entirely owe, and of myself am nought.
 Equipped, and bent for heaven, I left yon world,
 My native seat, which scarce your eye can reach;
 Rolling around her central sun, far out,
 On utmost verge of light : but first to see
 What lay beyond the visible creation
 Strong curiosity my flight impelled.
 Long was my way and strange. I passed the bounds
 Which God doth set to light, and life, and love ;
 Where darkness meets with day, where order meets
 Disorder dreadful, waste and wild ; and down
 The dark, eternal, uncreated night
 Ventured alone. Long, long on rapid wing,
 I sailed through empty, nameless regions vast,
 Where utter Nothing dwells, unformed and void.—
 There neither eye, nor ear, nor any sense
 Of being most acute, finds object ; there
 For ought external still you search in vain.
 Try touch, or sight, or smell ; try what you will,
 You strangely find nought but yourself alone.
 But why should I in words attempt to tell
 What that is like which is—and yet—is not ?
 This past, my path descending still me led
 O'er unclaimed continents of desert gloom
 Immense, where gravitation shifting turns
 The other way ; and to some dread, unknown,
 Infernal centre downward weighs : and now,
 Far travelled from the edge of darkness, far
 As from that glorious mount of God to light's
 Remotest limb—dire sights I saw, dire sounds

I heard ; and suddenly before my eye
A wall of fiery adamant sprung up—
Wall mountainous, tremendous, flaming high
Above all flight of hope. I paused, and looked ;
And saw, where'er I looked upon that mound,
Sad figures traced in fire—not motionless—
But imitating life. One I remarked
Attentively ; but how shall I describe
What nought resembles else my eye hath seen ?
Of worm or serpent kind it something looked,
But monstrous, with a thousand snaky heads,
Eyed each with double orbs of glaring wrath ;
And with as many tails, that twis'ted out
In horrid revolution, tipped with stings ;
And all its mouths, that wide and darkly gaped,
And breathed most poisonous breath, had each a sting
Forked, and long, and venomous, and sharp ;
And in its writhings infinite, it grasped
Malignantly what seemed a heart, swollen, black,
And quivering with torture most intense ;
And still the heart, with anguish throbbing high,
Made effort to escape, but could not ; for
Howe'er it turned, and oft it vainly turned,
These complicated foldings held it fast.
And still the monstrous beast with sting of head
Or tail transpierced it, bleeding evermore.
What this could image much I searched to know,
And while I stood, and gazed, and wondered long,
A voice, from whence I knew not, for no one
I saw, distinctly whispered in my ear
These words—This is the Worm that never dies.

Fast by the side of this unsightly thing
Another was portrayed, more hideous still ;
Who sees it once shall wish to see't no more.
For ever undescribed let it remain !
Only this much I may or can unfold—
Far out it thrust a dart that might have made
The knees of terror quake, and on it hung,

Within the triple harbs, a being pierced
 Thro' soul and body both > of heavenly make
 Original the being seemed, but fallen,
 And worn and wasted with enormous wo.
 And still around the everlasting lance
 It writhed convulsed, and uttered mimic groans ;
 And tried and wished, and ever tried and wished
 To die ; but could not die—Oh, horrid sight !
 I trembling gazed, and listened, and heard this voice
 Approach my ear—This is Eternal Death.

Nor these alone—upon that burning wall,
 In horrible emblazonry, were limned
 All shapes, all forms, all motes of wretchedness,
 And agony, and grief, and desperate wo.
 And prominent in charact'rs of fire,
 Where'er the eye could light, these words you read,
 "Who comes this way—behold, and fear to sin!"
 Amazed I stood : and thought such imagery
 Foretold, within, a dangerous abode,
 But yet to see the worst a wish arose :
 For virtue, by the holy seal of God
 Accredited and sanctified, immortal all,
 And all invulnerable, fears no hurt.
 As easy as my wish, as rapidly
 I thro' the horrid ramnag passed, unscathed
 And unopposed ; and, poised on steady wing,
 Hovering gazed. Eternal-Justice ! Sons
 Of God ! Tell me, if ye can tell, what then
 I saw, what then I heard—Wide was the place,
 And deep as wide, and ruinous as deep.
 Beneath I saw a lake of burning fire,
 With tempest test perpetually, and still
 The waves of very darkness, 'gainst the rocks
 Of dark damnation broke, and music made
 Of melancholy sort ; and over head,
 And all around, wind warred with wind, storm howled
 To storm, and lightning, forked lightning, crossed,
 And thunder answered thunder, muttering sound

Of sullen wrath ; and far as sight could pierce,
Or down descend in caves of hopeless depth,
Thro' all that dungeon of unfading fire,
I saw most miserable beings walk,
Burning continually, yet unconsumed ;
Forever wasting, yet enduring still ;
Dying perpetually, yet never dead.
Some wandered lonely in the desert flames,
And some in fell encounter fiercely met,
With curses loud, and blasphemies, that made
The cheek of darkness pale ; and as they fought,
And cursed, and gnashed their teeth, and wished to die,
Their hollow eyes did utter streams of wo.
And there were groans that ended not, and sighs
That always sighed, and tears that ever wept,
And ever fell, but not in Mercy's sight.
And Sorrow, and Repentance, and Despair,
Among them walked, and to their thirsty lips
Presented frequent cups of burning gall.
And as I listened, I heard these beings curse
Almighty God, and curse the Lamb, and curse
The Earth, the Resurrection morn, and seek,
And ever vainly seek for utter death.
And to their everlasting anguish still,
The thunders from above responding spoke
These words, which thro' the caverns of perdition
Foully echoing, fell on every ear—
“ Ye knew your duty, but ye did it not.”
And back again recoiled a deeper groan.
A deeper groan ! Oh, what a groan was that !
I waited not, but swift on speediest wing,
With unaccustomed thoughts conversing, back
Retraced my venturous path from dark to light ;
Then up ascending, long ascending up,
I hasted on ; tho' whiles the chiming spheres,
By God's own finger touched to harmony,
Held me delaying—till I here arrived,
Drawn upward by the eternal love of God,
Of wonder full and strange astonishment,

At what in yonder den of darkness dwells
Which now your higher knowledge will unfold.

They answering said ; to ask and to bestow
Knowledge, is much of Heaven's delight ; and now
Most joyfully what thou requir'st we would ;
For much of new and unaccountable,
Thou bring'st ; something indeed we heard before,
In passing conversation slightly touched,
Of such a place ; yet rather to be taught,
Than teaching, answer what thy marvel asks,
We need ; for we ourselves, tho' here, are but
Of yesterday—creation's younger sons.
But there is one, an ancient bard of Earth,
Who, by the stream of life sitting in bliss,
Has oft beheld the eternal years complete
The mighty circle round the throne of God ;
Great in all learning, in all wisdom great,
And great in song ; whose harp in lofty strain
Tells frequently of what thy wonder craves,
While round him gathering stand the youth of Heaven
With truth and melody delighted both ;
To him this path directs, an easy path,
And easy flight will bring us to his seat.

So saying, they linked hand in hand, spread out
Their golden wings, by living breezes fanned,
And over heaven's broad champaign sailed serene.
O'er hill and valley clothed with verdure green
That never fades ; and tree, and herb, and flower,
That never fades ; and many a river, rich
With nectar, winding pleasantly, they passed ;
And mansion of celestial mould, and work
Divine. And oft delicious music, sung
By saint and angel bands that walked the vales,
Or mountain tops, and harped upon their harps,
Their ear inclined, and held by sweet constraint
Their wing ; not long, for strong desire awaked
Of knowledge that in holy use might turn,

Still pressed them on to leave what rather seemed
Pleasure, due only, when all duty's done.

And now beneath them lay the wished for spot,
The sacred bower of that renowned bard ;
That ancient bard, ancient in days and song ;
But in immortal vigor young, and young
In rosy health—to pensive solitude
Retiring oft, as was his wont on earth.

Fit was the place, most fit for holy musing.
Upon a little mount that gently rose,
He sat, clothed in white robes ; and o'er his head
A laurel tree, of lustiest, eldest growth,
Stately and tall, and shadowing far and wide—
Not fruitless, as on earth, but bloomed, and rich
With frequent clusters, ripe to heavenly taste—
Spread its eternal boughs, and in its arms
A myrtle of unfading leaf embraced ;
The rose and lily, fresh with fragrant dew,
And every flower of fairest cheek, around
His smiling flocked ; beneath his feet, fast by,
And round his sacred hill, a streamlet walked,
Warbling the holy melodies of heaven ;
The hallowed zephyrs brought him incense sweet ;
And out before him opened, in prospect long,
The river of life, in many a winding maze
Descending from the lofty throne of God,
That with excessive glory closed the scene.

Of Adam's race he was, and lonely sat,
By chance that day, in meditation deep,
Reflecting much of Time, and Earth, and Man :
And now to pensive, now to cheerful notes,
He touched a harp of wondrous melody ;
A golden harp it was, a precious gift,
Which, at the day of judgment, with the crown
Of life, he had received from God's own hand,
Reward due to his service done on earth.

He sees their coming, and with greeting kind
 And welcome, not of hollow forged smiles,
 And ceremonious compliment of phrase,
 But of the heart sincere, into his bower
 Invites. Like greeting they returned ; not bent
 In low obeisancy, from creature most
 Unfit to creature ; but with manly form
 Upright they entered in ; though high his rank,
 His wisdom high, and mighty his renowl.
 And thus deferring all apology,
 The two their new companion introduced.

Ancient in knowledge !—bard of Adam's race !
 We bring thee one of us, inquiring what
 We need to learn, and with him wish to learn—
 His asking will direct thy answer best.

Most ancient bard ! began the new arrived,
 Few words will set my wonder forth, and guide
 Thy wisdom's light to what in me is dark.

Equipped for heaven, I left my native place ;
 But first beyond the realms of light I bent
 My course ; and there, in utter darkness, far
 Remote, I beings saw forlorn in wo,
 Burning continually, yet unconsumed.
 And there were groans that ended not, and sighs
 That always sighed, and tears that ever wept
 And ever fell, but not in Mercy's sight ;
 And still I heard these wretched beings curse
 Almighty God, and curse the Lamb, and curse
 The Earth, the Resurrection morn, and seek,
 And ever vainly seek for utter death :
 And from above the thunders answered still,
 " Ye knew your duty, but ye did it not."
 And every where throughout that horrid deo,
 I saw a form of Excellence, a form
 Of beauty without spot, that nocht could see
 And not admire—admire, and not adore.

And from its own essential beams it gave
Light to itself, that made the gloom more dark ;
And every eye in that infernal pit
Beheld it still; and from its face, how fair !
O how exceeding fair ! for ever sought,
But ever vainly sought, to turn away.
That image, as I guess, was Virtue, for
Nought else hath God given countenance so fair.
But why in such a place should it abide ?
What place is it ? What beings there lament ?
Whence came they ? and for what their endless groan ?
Why curse they God ? why seek they utter death ?
And chief, what means the resurrection morn ?
My youth expects thy reverend age to tell.

Thou rightly deem'st, fair youth, began the bard ;
The form thou saw'st was virtue, ever fair.
Virtue, like God, whose excellent majesty,
Whose glory virtue is, is omnipresent ;
No being, once created rational,
Accountable, endowed with moral sense,
With sapience of right and wrong endowed,
And charged, however fallen, debased, destroyed ;
However lost, forlorn, and miserable ;
In guilt's dark shrouding wrapt however thick ;
However drunk, delirious, and mad,
With sin's full cup ; and with whatever damned
Unnatural diligence it work and toil,
Can banish virtue from its sight, or once
Forget that she is fair. Hides it in night,
In central night ; takes it the lightning's wing,
And flies forever on beyond the bounds
Of all ; drinks it the maddest cup of sin ;
Dives it beneath the ocean of despair ;
It dives, it drinks, it flies, it hides in vain.
For still the eternal beauty, image fair,
Once stamp'd upon the soul, before the eye
All lovely stands, nor will depart ; so God
Ordains—and lovely to the worst she seems,

And ever seems ; and as they look, and still
 Must ever look upon her loveliness,
 Remembrance dire of what they were, of what
 They might have been, and bitter sense of what
 They are, polluted, ruined, hopeless, lost,
 With most repenting torment rend their hearts.
 So God ordains—their punishment severe,
 Eternally inflicted by themselves.

'Tis this—this Virtue hovering evermore
 Before the vision of the damned, and in
 Upon their monstrous moral nakedness
 Casting unwelcome light, that makes their wo,
 That makes the essence of the endless flame :
 Where this is, there is Hell—darker than aught
 That he, the bard three-visioned, darkest saw.

The place thou saw'st was hell ; the groans thou heard'st
 The wailings of the damned—of those who would
 Not be redeemed—and at the judgment day,
 Long past, for unrepented sins were damned.
 The seven loud thunders which thou heard'st, declare
 The eternal wrath of the Almighty God.
 But whence, or why they came to dwell in wo,
 Why they curse God, what means the glorious morn
 Of Resurrection,—these a longer tale
 Demand, and lead the mournful lyre far back
 Thro' memory of Sin, and mortal man.
 Yet haply not rewardless we shall trace
 The dark disastrous years of finished Time :
 Sorrows remembered sweeten present joy.
 Nor yet shall all be sad ; for God gave peace,
 Much peace, on earth, to all who feared his name.

But first it needs to say, that other style,
 And other language than thy ear is wont,
 Thou must expect to hear—the dialect
 Of man ; for each in heaven a relish holds
 Of former speech that points to whence he came.

But whether I of person speak, or place ;
Event or action ; moral or divine ;
Or things unknown compare to things unknown ;
Allude, imply, suggest, apostrophize ;
Or touch, when wandering thro' the past, on moods
Of mind thou never felt'st the meaning still,
With easy apprehension, thou shalt take ;
So perfect here is knowledge, and the strings
Of sympathy so tuned, that every word
That each to other speaks, tho' never heard
Before, at once is fully understood,
And every feeling uttered, fully felt.

So shalt thou find, as from my various song,
That backward rolls o'er many a tide of years,
Directly or inferred, thy asking, thou,
And wondering doubt, shalt learn to answer, while
I sketch in brief the history of Man.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK II.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK II.

A description of the earth when first created ; and the formation of man ; a reasonable free agent, upright and immortal. The command given was a test of filial love, loyalty, obedience and faith. The temptation, sin and fall of man, and redemption from death by the death of Christ. Many would not accept the free offer of life and salvation, and in consequence, incurred the punishment of the second death and hell.—That they acted thus, and thus perversely chose, well assured of the consequence, by the information contained and given them in the Bible ; which was a code of laws, containing the will of heaven, and defined the bounds of vice and virtue, and of life and death. Mankind were required to read, believe, and obey, and although many did so believe, and were saved, yet many turned the truth of God into a lie, transforming the meaning of the text to suit their own vile and wicked purposes, deceiving and deceived.—That the voice of God, against which nothing could bribe to sleep the truths of Judgment, and a Judge, caused the wicked to be ill at ease : on which account many ran into impious idolatry, and worshiped ten thousand deities, imagined worse than he who craved their peace.

The Magistrate often turned religion into a trick of state, despising the truth, and forcing the consciences of men : while the enslaved mimicking the follies of the great, despised her too. The other influences which led to error, are mentioned ; short sighted reason, vanity, indolence, and finally pride, self adorning pride was primal cause of all sin past, all pain, all wo to come.

Course of Time.
BOOK II.

THUS said, he waked the golden harp, and thus,
While on him inspiration breathed, began.

As from yon everlasting hills, that gird
Heaven northward, I thy course espied, I judge
Thou from the Arctic regions came ? Perhaps
Thou noticed on thy way a little orb,
Attended by one moon—her lamp by night ;
With her fair sisterhood of planets seven,
Revolving round their central sun ; she third
In place, in magnitude the fourth ; that orb—
New made, new named, inhabited anew,
(Tho' whiles we sons of Adam visit still,
Our native place ; not changed so far but we
Can trace our ancient walks—the scenery
Of childhood, youth, and prime, and hoary age—
But scenery most of suffering and wo,))
That little orb, in days remote of old,
When angels yet were young, was made for man,
And titled Earth—her primal virgini name ;
Created first so lovely, so adorned
With hill, and lawn, and winding vale ;
Woodland and stream, and lake, and rolling seas ;
Green mead and fruitful tree, and fertile grain,
And herb and flower : So lovely, so adorned
With numerous beasts of every kind, with fowl

Of every wing and every tuneful note ;
And with all fish that in the multitude
Of waters swam : so lovely, so adorned,
So fit a dwelling place for man, that as
She rose complete at the creating word,
The moraing stars—the Sons of God, aloud
Shouted for joy ; and God beholding, saw
The fair design, that from eternity
His mind conceived, accomplished, and, well pleased,
His six days finished work most good pronounced,
And man declared the sovereign prince of all.

All else was prone, irrational, and mule,
And unaccountable, by instinct led :
But man He made of angel form erect,
To hold communion with the heavens above,
And on his soul impressed His image fair,
His own similitude of holiness,
Of virtue, truth, and love ; with reason high
To balance right and wrong, and conscience quick,
To choose or to reject ; with knowledge great,
Prudence and wisdom, vigilance and strength,
To guard all force or guile ; and last of all,
The highest gift of God's abundant grace,
With perfect, free, unbiassed will. Thus man
Was made upright, immortal made, and crowned
The king of all ; to eat, to drink, to do
Freely and sovereignly his will entire :
By one command alone restrained, to prove,
As was most just, his filial love, sincere,
His loyalty, obedience due, and faith.
And thus the prohibition ran, expressed,
As God is wont, in terms of plainest truth.

Of every tree that in the garden grows
Thou mayest freely eat ; but of the tree
That knowledge hath of good and ill, eat not,
Nor touch ; for in the day thou eatest, thou
Shalt die. Go, and this one command obey

Adam, live and be happy, and, with thy Eve,
Fit consort, multiply and fill the earth.

Thus they, the representatives of men,
Were placed in Eden—choicest spot of Earth ;
With royal honor and with glory crowned,
Adam, the lord of all, majestic walked,
With godlike countenance sublime, and form
Of lofty towering strength ; and by his side
Eve, fair as morning star, with modesty
Arrayed, with virtue, grace, and perfect love ;
In holy marriage wed, and eloquent
Of thought and comely words, to worship God
And sing his praise—the giver of all good.
Glad, in each other glad, and glad in hope ;
Rejoicing in their future happy race.

O lovely, happy, ~~blest~~, immortal pair !
Pleased with the present, full of glorious hope.
But short, alas, the song that sings their bliss !
Henceforth the history of man grows dark :
Shade after shade of deepening gloom descends
And Innocence laments her robes defiled.
Who farther sings must change the pleasant lyre
To heavy notes of wo. Why—dost thou ask,
Surprised ? The answer will surprise thee more.
Man sinned—tempted, he ate the guarded tree,
Tempted of whom thou afterward shalt hear ;
Audacious, unbelieving, proud, ungrateful,
He ate the interdicted fruit, and fell ;
And in his fall, his universal race ;
For they in him by delegation were,
In him to stand or fall—to live or die.

Man most ingrate ! so full of grace to sin—
Here interposed the new arrived—so full
Of bliss—o sin against the Gracious One !
The holy, just, and good ! the Eternal Love !
Unseen, unheard, unthought of wickedness !

Why slumbered vengeance? No, it slumbered not.
The ever just and righteous God would let
His fury loose, and satisfy his threat.

That had been just, replied the reverend bard;
But done, fair youth, thou ne'er had'st met me here:
I ne'er had seen yon glorious throne in peace.

Thy powers are great, originally great;
And purified even at the fount of light.
Exert them now; call all their vigor out;
Take room; think vastly; meditate intensely;
Reason profoundly; send conjecture forth;
Let fancy fly; stoop down; ascend; all length,
All breadth explore; all moral, all divine;
Ask prudence, justice, mercy ask, and might;
Weigh good with evil, balance right with wrong,
With virtue vice compare—batred with love;
God's holiness, God's justice, and God's truth,
Deliberately and cautiously compare
With sinful, wicked, vile, rebellious man,
And see if thou canst punish sin, and let
Mankind go free. Thou fail'st—be not surpriz'd
I bade thee search in vain. Eternal love—
Harp lift thy voice on high—Eternal love,
Eternal, sovereign love, and sovereign grace,
Wisdom, and power, and mercy infinite,
The Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, God,
Devised the wondrous plan—devised, achieved;
And in achieving made the marvel more.
Attend, ye heavens! ye heaven of heavens, attend!
Attend, and wonder! wonder evermore!
When man had fallen, rebelled, insulted God;
Was most polluted, yet most madly proud;
Indebted infinitely, yet most poor;
Cap'tive to sin, yet unwilling to be bound;
To God's incensed justice and hot wrath
Exposed; due victim of eternal death
And utter wo—Harp lift thy voice on high!

Ye everlasting Hills !—ye angels bow !
 Bow ye redeemed of men ! God was made flesh,
 And dwelt with man on earth ! the Son of God,
 Only begotten, and well beloved, between
 Men and his Father's justice interposed ;
 Put human nature on : His wrath sustained ;
 And in their name suffered, obeyed, and died,
 Making his soul an offering for sin ;
 Just for unjust and innocent for guilt,
 By doing, suffering, dying unconstrained,
 Save by omnipotence of boundless grace,
 Complete atonement made to God appeased ;
 Made honorable his insulted law,
 Turning the wrath aside from pardoned man.
 Thus Truth with Mercy met, and Righteousness,
 Stooping from highest heaven, embraced fair Peace,
 That walked the earth in fellowship with Love.

O love divine ! O mercy infinite !
 The audience here in glowing rapture broke—
 O love, all height above, all depth below,
 Surpassing far all knowledge, all desire,
 All thought, the Holy One for sinners dies !
 The Lord of life for guilty rebels bleed—
 Quenches eternal fire with blood divine.
 Abundant mercy ! overflowing grace !
 There whence I came, I something heard of men ;
 Their name had reached us, and report did speak
 Of some abominable horrid thing
 Of desperate offence they had committed ;
 And something too of wondrous grace we heard ;
 And oft of our celestial visitants
 What man, what God had done, inquired ; but they Forbid, our asking never met directly,
 Exhorting still to persevere upright,
 And we should hear in heaven, tho' greatly blest
 Ourselves, new wonders of God's wondrous love.
 This hinting, keener appetite to know
 Awaked ; and as we talked, and much admired

What new we there should learn, we hasted each
 To nourish virtue to perfect on up,
 'That we might have our wondering resolved,
 And leave of louder praise, to greater deeds
 Of loving kindness due. Mysterious love !
 God was made flesh, and dwelt with men on earth !
 Blood holy, blood divine for sinners shed—
 My asking ends—but makes my wonder more.
 Saviour of men ! henceforth be thou my theme !
 Redeeming love, my study day and night !
 Mankind were lost, all lost, and all redeemed !

Thou err'st again—but innocently err'st ;
 Not knowing sin's depravity, nor man's
 Sincere and persevering wickedness.
 All were redeemed ? not all—or thou had'st heard
 No human voice in hell. Many refused,
 Altho' beseeched, refused to be redeemed ;
 Redeemed from death to life, from wo to bliss !

Can'st thou believe my song when thus I sing ?
 When man had fallen, was ruined, hopeless, lost ;
 Ye choral harps ! ye angels that excel
 In strength ! and loudest, ye redeemed of men !
 To God—to Him that sits upon the throne
 On high, and to the Lamb sing honor, sing
 Dominion, glory ; blessing sing, and praise :
 When man had fallen, was ruined, hopeless, lost,
 Messiah, Prince of peace, Eternal King.
 Died, that the dead might live, the lost be saved.
 Wonder, O, heavens ! and be astonished, earth !
 Thou ancient, thou forgotten earth ! Ye worlds admire !
 Admire, and be confounded ! and thou, Hell !
 Deepen thy eternal groan—men would not be Redeemed—I speak of many, not of all—
 Would not be saved for lost, have life for death !

Mysterious song ! the new arrived exclaimed ;
 Mysterious mercy ! most mysterious hate !

To disobey was mad, this madder far,
 Incurable insanity of will.
 What now but wrath could guilty men expect ?
 What more could love, what more could mercy do ?

No more, resumed the bairl, no more they could :
 Thou hast seen hell—the wicked there lament ;
 And why ? for love and mercy twice despised ;
 The husbandman, who sluggishly forgot
 In spring to plow, and sow, could censure none,
 Though winter clamored round his empty barns ;
 But he who having thus neglected, did
 Refuse, when Autumn came, and famine threatened,
 To reap the golden field that charity
 Bestowed—Nay, more obdurate, proud, and blind,
 And stupid still, refused, tho' much beseeched,
 And long entreated, even with Mercy's tears,
 To eat what to his very lips was held
 Cooked temptingly—he certainly, at least,
 Deserved to die of hunger unbemoaned.
 So did the wicked spurn the grace of God ;
 And so were punished with the second death.
 The first, no doubt, punition less severe
 Intended, death belike of all entire ;
 But this incurred, by God discharged, and life
 Freely again presen'ed, and again despised,
 Despised, tho' brought with mercy's proper blood—
 'Twas this dug hell, and kindled all its bounds
 With wrath and inextinguishable fire.

Free was the offer, free to all, of life
 And of salvation ; but the proud of heart,
 Because 'twas free, would not accept ; and still
 To merit wished ; and choosing—thus unshipped,
 Uncompassed, unprovisioned, and bestormed,
 To swim a sea of breadth immeasurable,
 They scorned the goodly bark, whose wings the breath
 Of God's eternal Spirit filled for heaven,
 That stopped to take them in—and so were lost.

What wonders dost thou tell ? to merit, how ?
 Of creature meriting in sight of God,
 As right of service done, I never heard
 Till now : we never fell ; in virtue stood
 Upright, and persevered in holiness ;
 But stood by grace, by grace we persevered ;
 Ourselves, our deeds, our holiest, highest deeds
 Unworthy aught—grace worthy endless praise.
 If we fly swift, obedient to his will,
 He gives us wings to fly ; if we resist
 Temptation, and ne'er fall, it is his shield
 Omnipotent that wards it off ; if we
 With love unquenchable, before him burn,
 'Tis he that lights and keeps alive the flame.
 Men surely lost their reason in their fall,
 And did not understand the offer made.

They might have understood, the bard replied—
 They had the Bible—hast thou ever heard
 Of such a book ? the author God himself ;
 The subject God and man ; salvation, life
 And death—eternal life, eternal death—
 Dread words ! whose meaning has no end, no bounds.
 Most wondrous book ! bright candle of the Lord !
 Star of eternity ! the only star
 By which the bark of man could navigate
 The sea of life, and gain the coast of bliss
 Securely ; only star which rose on Time,
 And, on its dark and troubled billows, still,
 As generation drifting swiftly by
 Succeeded generation, threw a ray
 Of heaven's own light, and to the hills of God,
 The everlasting hills, pointed the sinner's eye :
 By prophets, seers, and priests, and sacred bards,
 Evangelists, apostles, men inspired.
 And by the Holy Ghost anointed, set
 Apart and consecrated to declare
 To earth the counsels of the Eternal One,
 This book—this holiest, this sublimest book.

Was sent—Heaven's will, Heaven's code of laws
 'entire
 To man, this book contained ; defined the bounds
 Of vice and virtue, and of life and death ;
 And what was shadow, what was substance taught.
 Much it revealed ; important all ; the least
 Worth more than what else seemed of highest worth
 But this of plainest, most essential truth—
 That God is one, eternal, holy, just,
 Omnipotent, omniscient, infinite :
 Most wise, most good, most merciful and true ;
 In all perfection most unchangeable :
 That man—that every man of every clime
 And hue, of every age, and every rank,
 Was bad—by nature and by practice bad ;
 In understanding blind, in will perverse,
 In heart corrupt ; in every thought, and word,
 Imagination, will, and desire,
 Most utterly depraved throughout, and ill,
 In sight of Heaven, tho' less in sight of man,
 At enmity with God his maker born,
 And by his very life an heir of death :
 That man—that every man was farther, most
 Unable to redeem himself, or pay
 One mite of his vast debt to God—ray, more,
 Was most reluctant and averse to be
 Redeemed, and sin's most voluntary slave ;
 That Jesus, Son of God, of Mary born
 In Bethlehem, and by Pilate crucified
 On Calvary—for man thus fallen and lost,
 Died ; and by death, life and salvation bought,
 And perfect righteousness, for all who should
 In his great name believe—that He, the third
 In the eternal Essence, to the prayer
 Sincere should come, should come as soon as asked,
 Proceeding from the Father and the Son,
 To give faith and repentance, such as God
 Accepts—to open the intellectual eyes
 Blinded by sin ; to bend the stubborn will,

Perversely to the side of wrong inclined,
To God and his commandments, just and good ;
The wild, rebellious passions to subdue,
And bring them back to harmony with heaven ;
To purify the conscience, and to lead
The mind into all truth, and to adorn
With every holy ornament of grace,
And sanctify the whole renewed soul,
Which henceforth might no more fall totally
But persevere, though erring oft, amidst
The mists of time, in piety to God,
And sacred works of charity to men :
That he, who thus believed, and practised thus,
Should have his sins forgiven, however vile ;
Should be sustained at mid-day, morn, and even,
By God's omnipotent, eternal grace ;
And in the evil hour of sore disease,
Temptation, persecution, war, and death,
For temporal death, altho' unstinged, remained,
Beneath the shadow of the Almighty's wings
Should sit unhurt, and at the judgment day,
Should share the resurrection of the just,
And reign with Christ in bliss forevermore :
That all, however named, however great,
Who would not thus believe, nor practise thus,
But in their sins impenitent remained,
Should in perpetual fear and terror live ;
Should die unpardoned, unredeemed, unsaved ;
And at the hour of doom, should be cast out
To utter darkness in the night of hell,
By mercy and by God abandoned, there
To reap the harvests of eternal wo.

This did that book declare in obvious phrase,
In most sincere and honest words, by God
Himself selected and arranged ; so clear,
So plain, so perfectly distinct, that none
Who read with humble wish to understand,
And asked the Spirit, given to all who asked,

Could miss their meaning, blazed in heavenly light.

This book—this holy book, on every line
 Marked with the seal of high divinity ;
 On every leaf bedewed with drops of love
 Divine, and with the eternal heraldry
 And signature of God Almighty stampt
 From first to last—this ray of sacred light,
 This lamp, from off the everlasting throne,
 Mercy took down, and in the night of Time
 Stood, casting on the dark her gracious bow ;
 And evermore beseeching men, with tears
 And earnest sighs, to read, believe, and live :
 And many to her voice gave ear, and read,
 Believed, obeyed ; and now, as the Amen,
 True, Faithful Witness swore, with snowy robes
 And braochy palms surround the fount of life,
 And drink the streams of immortality,
 For ever happy, and for ever young.

Many believed ; but more the truth of God
 Turned to a lie, deceiving and deceived ;—
 Each, with the accursed sorcery of sin,
 To his own wish and vile propensity
 Transforming still the meaning of the text.

Hear ! while I briefly tell what mortals proved,
 By effort vast of ingenuity,
 Most wondrous, though perverse and damnable ;
 Proved from the Bible, which, as thou hast heard,
 So plainly spoke that all could understand.
 First, and not least in number, argued some,
 From out this book itself, it was a lie,
 A fable framed by crafty men to cheat
 The simple herd, and make them bow the knee
 To kings and priests,—these in their wisdom left
 The light revealed, and turned to fancies wild ;
 Maintaining loud, that ruined, helpless man,
 Needed no Saviour. Others proved that men

Might live and die in sin, and yet be saved
For so it was decreed ; binding the will,
By God left free, to unconditional,
Unreasonable fate. Others believed
That he who was most criminal, debased,
Condemned, and dead, unaided might ascend
The heights of Virtue ; to a perfect law
Giving a lame, half-way obedience, which
By useless effort only served to show
The impotence of him who vainly strove
With finite arm to measure infinite ;
Most useless effort ! when to justify
In sight of God it meant, as proof of faith
Most acceptable, and worthy of all praise.
Another held, and from the Bible held,
He was infallible,—most fallen by such
Pretence—that nooe the Scriptures, open to all,
And most to humble-hearted, ought to read,
But priests ; that all who ventured to disclaim
His forged authority, incurred the wrath
Of Heaven ; and he who, in the blood of such,
Through father, mother, daughter, wife, or son,
Imbruued his hands, did most religious work,
Well pleasing to the heart of the Most High.
Others, in outward rite, devotion placed ;
In meats, in drinks ; in robe of certain shape—
In bodily abasements, bended knees ;
Days, numbers, places, vestments, words, and names—
Absurdly in their hearts imagining,
That God, like men, was pleased with outward show.
Another, stranger and more wicket s'ill,
With dark and dolorous labor, ill applied,
With many a gripe of conscience, and with most
Unhealthy and abortive reasoning,
That brought his sanity to serious doubt,
Among wise and honest men, maintained that He,
First Wisdom, Great Messiah, Prince of Peace,
The second of the uncreated Three,
Was naught but man—of earthly origin ;

Thus making void the sacrifice Divine,
And leaving guilty men, God's holy law
Still unatoned, to work them endless death.

These are a part ; but to relate thee all
The monstrous, unbaptized phantasies,
Imaginative fearfully absurd,
Hob-goblin rites, and moon-struck reveries,
Distracted creeds and visionary dreams,
More bodiless and hideously misshapen
Than ever fancy, at the noon of night,
Playing at will, framed in the madman's brain,
That from this book of simple truth were proved,
Were proved, as foolish men were wont to prove—
Would bring my word in doubt, and thy belief
Stagger, though here I sit and sing, within
The pale of truth, where falsehood never came.

The rest, who lost the heavenly light revealed,
Not wishing to retain God in their minds,
In darkness wandered on : yet could they not,
Though moral night around them drew her pall
Of blackness, rest in utter unbelief.
The voice within, the voice of God, that naught
Could bribe to sleep, though steeped in sorceries
Of Hell, and much abused by whisperings
Of Evil Spirits in the dark, announced
A day of judgment, and a judge,—a day
Of misery, or bliss ;—and being ill
At ease, for gods they chose them stocks and stones,
Reptiles, and weeds, and beasts, and creeping things,
And Spirits accursed—ten thousand Deities !
(Imagined worse than he who craved their peace,)
And bowing, worshipped these as best besemed,
With midnight revelry obscene and loud,
With dark, infernal, devilish ceremonies,
And horrid sacrifice of human flesh,
That made the fair heavens blush. So bad was sin.
So lost, so ruined, so depraved was man !—

Created first in God's own image fair !

Oh, cursed, cursed, sin ! traitor to God,
 And ruiner of man ! mother of Wo,
 And Death, and Hell,—wretched, yet seeking worse ;
 Polluted most, yet wallowing in the mire ;
 Most mad, yet drinking Frenzy's giddy cup ;
 Depth ever deepening, darkness darkening still ;
 Folly for wisdom, guilt for innocence ;
 Anguish for rapture, and for hope despair ;
 Destroyed destroying ; in tormenting pained ;
 Unawed by wrath ; by mercy unreclaimed ;
 Thing most unsightly, most forlorn, most sad—
 Thy time on earth is past, thy war with God
 And holiness : but who, oh who shall tell,
 Thy unrepentable and ruinous thoughts ?
 Thy sighs, thy groans ? Who reckon thy burning tears,
 And damned looks of everlasting grief,
 Where now, with those who took their part with thee.
 Thou sitt'st in Hell, gnawed by the eternal Worm—
 To burt no more, on all the holy hills ?

That those, deserting once the lamp of truth,
 Should wander ever on, from worse to worse
 Erroneously thy wonder needs not ask :
 But that enlightened, reasonable men,
 Knowing themselves accountable, to whom
 God spoke from heaven, and by his servants warned,
 Both day and night, with earnest, pleading voice,
 Of retribution equal to their works,
 Should persevere in evil, and be lost—
 This strangeness, this unpardonable guilt,
 Demands an answer, which my song unfolds
 In part directly, but hereafter more,
 To satisfy thy wonder, thou shalt learn,
 Inferring much from what is yet to sing.

Know then, of men who sat in highest place

Exalted, and for sin by others done
Were chargeable, the king and priest were chief.
Many were faithful, holy, just, upright,
Faithful to God and man—reigning renowned
In righteousness, and, to the people, loud
And fearless, speaking all the words of life.
These at the judgment-day, as thou shalt hear,
Abundant harvest reaped ; but many too,
Alas, how many ! famous now in Hell,
Were wicked, cruel, tyrannous and vile ;
Ambitious of themselves, abandoned, mad ;
And still from servants hastening to be gods,
Such gods as now they serve in Erebus.
I pass their lewd example by, that led
So many wrong, for courtly fashion lost,
And prove them guilty of one crime alone.
Of every wicked ruler, prince supreme,
Or magistrate below, the one intent,
Purpose, desire, and struggle day and night,
Was evermore to wrest the crown from off
Messiah's head, and put it on his own ;
And in His place give spiritual laws to men ;
To bind religion—free by birth, by God,
And nature free, and made accountable
To none but God—behind the wheels of state ;
To make the holy altar, where the Prince
Of life incarnate bled to ransom man,
A footstool to the throne ; for this they met,
Assembled, counselled, meditated, planned,
Devised in open and secret ; and for this
Enacted creeds of wondrous texture, creeds
The Bible never owned, unsanctioned too,
And reprobate in heaven ; but by the power
That made, (exerted now in gentler form,
Monopolizing rights and privileges,
Equal to all, and waving now the sword
Of persecution fierce, tempered in hell,)
Forced on the conscience of inferior men
The conscience that sole monarchy in man,

Owing allegiance to no earthly prince ;
 Made by the edict of creation free ;
 Made sacred, made above all human laws ;
 Holding of heaven alone ; of most divine,
 And iudefeasible authority ;
 An individual sovereignty, that none
 Created might, unpunished, bind or touch ;
 Unbound, save by the eternal laws of God,
 And unamenable to all below.

Thus did the uncircumcised potentates
 Of earth debase religion in the sight
 Of those they ruled—who, looking up, beheld
 The fair celestial gift despised, enslaved ;
 And, mimicking the folly of the great,
 With prompt docility despised her too.

The prince or magistrate, however named
 Or praised, who knowing better, acted thus,
 Was wicked, and received, as he deserved,
 Damnation. But the unfaithful priest, what tongue
 Enough shall execrate ? His doctrine may
 Be passed, tho' mixed with most unhallowed leaven,
 'That proved to those who foolishly partook,
 Eternal bitterness :—but this was still
 His sin—beneath what cloak soever veiled,
 His ever growing and perpetual sin,
 First, last, and middle thought, whence every wish,
 Whence every action rose, and ended both—
 To mount to place and power of worldly sort ;
 To ape the gaudy pomp and equipage
 Of earthly state, and on his mitred brow
 To place a royal crown : for this he sold
 The sacred truth to him who most would give
 Of titles, benefices, honors, names ;
 For this betrayed his master ; and for this
 Made merchandise of the immortal souls
 Committed to his care—this was his sin.

Of all who office held unfairly, none
 Could plead excuse ; he least, and last of all.
 By solemn, awful ceremony, he
 Was set apart to speak the truth entire,
 By action and by word ; and round him stood
 The people, from his lips expecting knowledge ;
 One day in seven, the Holy Sabbath termed,
 They stood ; for he had sworn in face of God
 And man, to deal sincerely with their souls ;
 To preach the gospel for the gospel's sake ;
 Had sworn to hate and put away all pride,
 All vanity, all love of earthly pomp ;
 To seek all mercy, meekness, truth, and grace ;
 And being so endowed himself, and taught,
 In them like works of holiness to move ;
 Dividing faithfully the word of life.
 And oft indeed the word of life he taught ;
 But practising, as thou hast heard, who could
 Believe ? Thus was religion wounded sore
 At her own altars, and among her friends.
 The people went away, and like the priest,
 Fulfilling what the prophet spoke before,
 For honor strove, and wealth, and place, as if
 'The preacher had rehearsed an idle tale.
 The enemies of God rejoiced, and loud
 The unbeliever laughed, boasting a life
 Of fairer character than his, who owned,
 For king and guide, the undefiled One.

Most guilty, villainous, dishonest man !
 Wolf in the clothing of the gentle lamb !
 Dark traitor in Messiah's holy camp !
 Leper in saintly garb !—assassin masked
 In Virtue's robe ! vile hypocrite accursed !
 I strive in vain to set his evil forth.
 The words that should sufficiently accuse,
 And execrate such reprobate, had need
 Come glowing from the lips of eldest hell.
 Among the saddest in the den of wo,

Thou saw'st him saddest, 'mong the damned, most damned.

But why should I with indignation burn,
Not well beseeming here, and long forgot?
Or why one censure for another's sin?
Each had his conscience, each his reason, will,
And understanding, for himself to search,
To choose, reject, believe, consider, act:
And God proclaimed from heaven, and by an oath
Confirmed, that each should answer for himself;
And as his own peculiar work should be,
Done by his proper self, should live, or die.
But sin, deceitful and deceiving still,
Had gained the heart, and reason led astray.

A strange belief, that leaned its idiot back
On folly's topmost twig—belief that God,
Most wise, had made a world, had creatures made,
Beneath his care to govern, and protect,—
Devoured its thousands. Reason, not the true,
Learned, deep, sober, comprehensive, sound;
But bigoted, one-eyed, short-sighted Reason,
Most zealous, and sometimes, no doubt, sincere—
Devoured its thousands. Vanity to be
Renowned for creed eccentric—devoured
Its thousands: but a lazy, corpulent,
And over-credulous faith, that leaned on all
It met, nor asked if 'twas a reed or oak;
Stepped on, but never earnestly inquired
Whether to heaven or hell the journey led—
Devoured its tens of thousands, and its hands
Made reddest in the precious blood of souls.

In Time's pursuits men ran till out of breath.
The astronomer soared up, and counted stars,
And gazed, and gazed upon the Heaven's bright face,
Till he dropped down dim-eyed into the grave:
The numerist in calculations deep

Grew gray : the merchant at his desk expired :
 The statesman hunted for another place,
 Till death o'ertook him and made him his prey :
 The miser spent his eldest energy,
 In grasping for another mite : the scribe
 Rubbed pensively his old and wither'd brow
 Devising new impediments to hold
 In doubt the suit that threatened to end too soon
 The priest collected tithes, and pleaded rights
 Of decimation to the very last.
 In science, learning, all philosophy,
 Men labored all their days, and labored hard,
 And dying, sighed how little they had done :
 But in religion they at once grew wise.
 A creed in print, tho' never understood ;
 A theologic system on the shelf,
 Was spiritual lore enough, and served their turn ;
 But served it ill. They sinned, and never knew :
 For what the Bible said of good and bad,
 Of holiness and sin, they never asked.

Absurd—prodigiously absurd, to think
 That man's minute and feeble faculties,
 Even in the very childhood of his being,
 With mortal shadows dimmed, and wrapt around
 Could comprehend at once the mighty scheme,
 Where rolled the ocean of eternal love ;
 Where wisdom infinite its master stroke
 Displayed ; and where omnipotence, opprest,
 Did travel in the greatness of its strength ;
 And everlasting justice lifted up
 The sword to smite the guiltless Son of God ;
 And mercy smiling bade the sinner go !
 Redemption is the science, and the song
 Of all eternity : archangels day
 And night into its glories look ; the saints,
 The elders round the throne, old in the years
 Of heaven, examine it perpetually ;
 And every hour, get clearer, ampler views

Of right and wrong—see virtue's beauty more ;
 See vice more utterly depraved, and vile ;
 And this with a more perfect bated hate ;
 That daily love with a more perfect love.

But whether I for man's perdition blame
 Office administered amiss ; pursuit
 Of pleasure false ; perverted reason blind ;
 Or indolence that ne'er inquired ; I blame
 Effect and consequence : the branch, the leaf.
 Who finds the fount and bitter root, the first
 And guiltiest cause whence sprung this endless wo,
 Must deep descend into the human heart,
 And find it there. Dread passion ! making men
 On earth, and even in hell, if Mercy yet
 Would stoop so low, unwilling to be saved,
 If saved by grace of God—Hear, then, in brief,
 What peopled hell, what holds its prisoners there.

Pride, self-adoring pride, was primal cause
 Of all sin past, all pain, all wo to come.
 Unconquerable pride ! first, eldest sin—
 Great fountain-head of evil—highest source,
 Whence flowed rebellion 'gainst the Omnipotent,
 Whence hate of man to man, and all else ill.
 Pride at the bottom of the human heart
 Lay, and gave root and nourishment to all
 That grew above. Great ancestor of vice !
 Hate, unbelief, and blasphemy of God ;
 Envy and slander ; malice and revenge ;
 And murder, and deceit, and every birth
 Of damned sort, was progeny of pride.
 It was the ever-moving, acting force,
 The constant aim, and the most thirsty wish
 Of every sinner unrenewed, to be
 A god :—in purple or in rags, to have
 Himself adored : whatever shape or form
 His actions took : whatever phrase he threw
 About his thoughts, or mantle o'er his life,

To be the highest, was the inward cause
 Of all—the purpose of the heart to be Set up, admired, obeyed. But who would bow
 The knee to one who served, and was dependent ?
 Hence man's perpetual struggle, night and day,
 To prove he was his own proprietor,
 And independent of his God, that what
 He had might be esteemed his own, and praised
 As such—He labored still, and tried to stand
 Alone, unpropped—to be obliged to none ;
 And in the madness of his pride he bade
 His God farewell, and turned away to be
 A god himself ; resolving to rely,
 Whatever came, upon his own right hand.

O desperate frenzy ! madness of the will !
 And drunkenness of the heart ! that nought could quench
 But floods of wo, poured from the sea of wrath,
 Behind which mercy set. To think to turn
 The back on life original, and live—
 The creature to set up a rival throne
 In the Creator's realm—to deify
 A worm—and in the sight of God be proud—
 To lift an arm of flesh against the shafts
 Of the Omnipotent, and midst his wrath
 To seek for happiness—insanity
 Most mad! guilt most complete! seest thou those worlds
 That roll at various distance round the throne
 Of God, innumerable, and fill the calm
 Of heaven with sweetest harmony, when saints
 And angels sleep—as one of these, from love
 Centrif' al withdrawing, and from light,
 And heat, and nourishment cut off, should rush
 Abandoned o'er the line that runs between
 Create and increase ; from ruin driven
 To ruin still, thro' the abortive waste :
 So pride from God drew off the bad ; and so
 Forsaken of him, he lets them ever try

Their single arm against the second death ;
Amidst vindictive thunders lets them try
The stoutness of their heart ; and lets them try
To quench their thirst amid the unfading fire ;
And to reap joy where he has sown despair :
To walk alone unguided, unbemoaned,
Where Evil dwells, and Death, and moral Night ;
In utter emptiness to find enough ;
In utter dark find light ; and find repose
Where God with tempest plagues for evermore :
For so they wished it, so did pride desire.

Such was the cause that turned so many off
Rebelliously from God, and led them on
From vain to vainer still, in endless chase.
And such the cause that made so many cheeks
Pale, and so many knees to shake, when men
Rose from the grave ; as thou shalt hear anon.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK III.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK III.

In this book the bard shows that however men disobeyed the command to love God, truth, and virtue, they still strove to gain happiness : but which could only be gained by obedience to the command, for the attainment of which men pursued many strange and crooked paths, in none of which could it be found ; as happiness was indissolubly united to virtue. Yet men pursued the phantom Hope, which danced before them in every path, and ever mocked their grasp, till earth, beneath them, broke and wrapt them in the grave.

Many sought for happiness in the enjoyment of pleasures, but it ever proved vain, in hope, or in possession. Many sought for happiness in the attainment of riches. This, also, mostly ended in bitterness and wo. Many pursued the phantom Fame, that fame which raised not in the resurrection morn, Earthly fame, but all in vain. Many sought happiness in dissipation, in inebriation ; deliberately resolving to be mad ; some in hawking and hunting, some in the search after curiosities, and some even in hopeless scepticism sought happiness.

And thus mankind followed vanities in despite of wisdom's warning voice ; in despite of the teaching of all animated and unanimated nature ; in despite of the offers of mercy continually held out to them ; in spite, even, of the threatenings of death, to make repentance vain. men rushed on determined, to ruin, and shut their ears to all advice, to all reproof, till death, the great teacher, convinced each, too late, that Eternity is all.

Course of Time.
BOOK III.

BEHOLD'ST thou yonder, on the crystal sea,
Beneath the throne of God, an image fair,
And in its hand a mirror large and bright!—
'Tis truth, immutable, eternal truth,
In figure emblematical expressed.
Before it Virtue stands, and smiling sees,
Well pleased, in her reflected soul, no spot.
The sons of heaven, archangel, seraph, saint,
There daily read their own essential worth ;
And as they read, take place among the just ;
Or high, or low, each as his value seems.
There each his certain interest learns, his true
Capacity ; and going thence, pursues,
Unerringly thro' all the tracts of thought,
As God ordains, best ends by wisest means.

The Bible held this mirror's place on earth :
But, few would read, or, reading, saw themselves.
The chase was after shadows, phantoms strange,
That in the twilight walked of Time, and mocked
The eager hunt, escaping evermore ;
Yet with so many promises and looks
Of gentle sort, that he whose arms returned
Empty a thousand times, still stretched them out,
And grasping, brought them back again unfilled.

In rapid outline thou hast heard of man ;
His death ; his offered life ; that life by most
Despised ; the Star of God—the Bible, scorned,
That else to happiness and heaven had led,
And saved my lyre from narrative of wo.
Hear now more largely of the ways of Time ;
The fond pursuits and vanities of men.

Love God, love truth, love virtue, and be happy :
These were the words first uttered in the ear
Of every being rational made, and made
For thought, or word, or deed accountable.
Most men the first forgot, the second none.
Whatever path they took, by hill or vale,
By night or day, the universal wish,
The aim, and sole intent, was happiness :
But, erring from the heaven-appointed path,
Strange tracts indeed they took through barren wastes,
And up the sandy mountain climbing toiled,
Which pining lay beneath the curse of God,
And naught produced : yet did the traveller look,
And point his eye before him greedily,
As if he saw some verdant spot, where grew
The heavenly flower, where sprung the well of life,
Where undisturbed felicity reposed ;
Though Wisdom's eye no vestige could discern,
That happiness had ever passed that way.

Wisdom was right : for still the terms remained Unchanged, unchangeable ; the terms on which
True peace was given to man ; unchanged as God,
Who, in his own essential nature, binds
Eternally to virtue happiness ;
Nor lets them part through all his Universe.

Philosophy, as thou shalt hear, when she
Shall have her praise—her praise and censure too,
Did much, refining and exalting man ;
But could not nurse a single plant that bore

True happiness.—From age to age she toiled ;
 Shed from her eyes the mist that dimmed them still,
 Looked forth on man ; explored the wild and tame,
 The savage and polite, the sea and land,
 And starry heavens ; and then retired far back
 To meditation's silent shady seat ;
 And there sat pale, and thoughtfully, and weighed
 With wary, most exact and scrupulous care,
 Man's nature, passions, hopes, propensities,
 Relations and pursuits, in reason's scale ;
 And searched and weighed, and weighed and searched
 again,
 And many a fair and goodly volume wrote,
 That seemed well worded too, wherein were found
 Uncountable recip's, pretending each,
 If carefully attended to, to cure
 Mankind of folly ;—to root out the briars,
 And thorns, and weeds that choked the growth of joys
 And showing too, in plain and decent phrase,
 Which sounded much like wisdom's, how to plant,
 To shelter, water, culture, prune, and rear
 The tree of happiness ; and oft their plans
 Were tried ;—but still the fruit was green and sour.

Of all the trees that in Earth's vineyard grew,
 And with their clusters tempted man to pull
 And eat,—one tree, one tree alone, the true
 Celestial manna bore which filled the soul,
 The tree of Holiness—of heavenly seed,
 A native of the skies ; tho' stunted much,
 And dwarfed, by Time's cold, damp, ungenial soil,
 And chilling winds, yet yielding fruit so pure,
 So nourishing and sweet, as, on his way,
 Refreshed the pilgrim ; and begot desire
 Unquenchable to climb the arduous path
 To where her sister plants in their own clime
 Around 'he fount, and by the stream of life,
 Blooming beneath the Sun that never sets,—
 Bear fruit of perfect relish fully ripe.

To plant this tree, uprooted by the fall,
To earth the Son of God descended, shed
His precious blood ; and on it evermore,
From off his living wings, the spirit shook
The dews of heaven, to nurse and hasten its growth.
Nor was this care, this infinite expense,
Not needed to secure the holy plant.
To root it out, and wither it from earth,
Hell strove with all its strength, and blew with all
Its blasts ; and Sin, with cold consumptive breath,
Involved it still in clouds of mortal damp.
Yet did it grow, thus kept, protected thus ;
And bear the only fruit of true delight ;
The only fruit worth plucking under heaven.

But, few, alas ! the holy plant could see,
For heavy mists that Sin around it threw
Perpetually ; and few the sacrifice
Would make by which alone its clusters stooped,
And came within the reach of mortal man.
For this, of him who would approach and eat,
Was rigorously exacted to the full :—
To tread and bruise beneath the foot, the world
Entire ; its prides, ambitions, hopes, desires ;
Its gold, and all its broidered equipage ;
To loose its loves and friendships from the heart,
And cast them off ; to shut the ear against
Its praise, and all its flatteries abhor ;
And having thus behind him thrown what seemed
So good and fair—then must he lowly kneel,
And with sincerity, in which the Eye
That slumbers not, nor sleeps, could see no lack,
This prayer pray :—"Lord God ! thy will be done;
Thy holy will, howe'er it cross my own."
Hard labor this for flesh and blood ! too hard
For most it seemed : so, turning, they the tree
Derided, as mere bramble that could bear
No fruit of special taste ; and so set out
Upon ten thousand different routes to seek

What they had left behind ; to seek what they
Had lost—for still as something once possest.
And lost, true happiness appeared : all thought
They once were happy : and even while they smoked
And panted in the chase—believed themselves
More miserable to-day than yesterday—
To-morrow than to-day. When youth complained,
The ancient sinner shook his hoary head,
As if he meant to say : Stop till you come
My length, and then you may have cause to sigh.
At twenty, cried the boy, who now had seen
Some blemish in his joys : How happily
Plays yonder child that busks the mimic babe,
And gathers gentle flowers, and never sighs.
At forty in the fervor of pursuit,
Far on in disappointment's dreary vale,
The grave and sage-like man looked back upon
The strippling youth of plump unseared hope,
Who galloped gay and briskly up behind—
And moaning wished himself eighteen again.
And he of threescore years and ten, in whose
Chilled eye, fatigued with gaping after hope,
Earth's freshest verdure seemed but blasted leaves,—
Praised childhood, youth and manhood, and denounced
Old age alone as barren of all joy.
Decisive proof that men had left behind
The happiness they sought, and taken a most Erroneous path ; since every step they took
Was deeper mire. Yet did they onward run—
Pursuing hope that danced before them still,
And beckoned them to proceed—and with their hands,
That shook and trembled piteously with age,
Grasped at the lying Shade, even till the Earth
Beneath them broke, and wrapped them in the grave.

Sometimes indeed when wisdom in their ear
Whispered, and with its disenchanting wand
Effectually touched the sorcery of their eyes,
Directly pointing to the holy Tree.

Where grew the food they sought, they turned, surprised
That they had missed so long what now they found.
As one upon whose mind some new and rare
Idea glances, and retires as quick,
Ere memory have time to write it down ;
Stung with the loss, into a thoughtful cast,
He throws his face ; and rubs his vexed brow :
Searches each nook and corner of his soul
With frequent care ; reflects, and re-reflects,
And tries to touch relations that may start
The fugitive again ; and oft is foiled ;
Till something like a seeming chance, or flight
Of random fancy, when expected least,
Calls back the wandered thought, long sought in vain,
Then does uncommon joy fill all his mind ;
And still he wonders, as he holds it fast,
What lay so near he could not sooner find :
So did the man rejoice, when from his eye
The film of folly fell, and what he day
And night, and far and near, had idly searched
Sprung up before him suddenly displayed ;
So wondered why he missed the tree so long.

But, few returned from folly's giddy chase.
Few heard the voice of wisdom, or obeyed.
Keen was the search, and various and wide ;
Without, within, along the flowery vale,
And up the rugged cliff, and on the top
Of mountains high, and on the ocean wave.
Keen was the search, and various and wide,
And ever and anon a shout was heard :
Ho ! here's the tree of life ; come, eat, and live !
And round the new discoverer quick they flocked
In multitudes, and plucked, and with great haste
Devoured ; and sometimes in the lips 'twas sweet,
And promised well ; but in the belly, gall.
Yet after him that cried again : Ho ! here's
The tree of life ; again they ran, and pulled,

And chewed again, and found it bitter still.
From disappointment on to disappointment,
Year after year, age after age pursued :
The child, the youth, the hoary headed man.
Alike pursued ! and ne'er grew wise, for it
Was folly's most peculiar attribute,
And native act, to make experience void.

But hastily as pleasures tasted turned
To loathing and disgust, they needed not
Even such experiment to prove them vain.
In hope or in possession, Fear, alike,
Boding disaster, stood. Over the flower
Of fairest sort, that bloomed beneath the sun,
Protected most, and sheltered from the storm,
The Spectre, like a dark and thunderous cloud,
Hung dismally, and threatened before the hand
Of him that wished, could pull it, to descend,
And o'er the desert drive its withered leaves ;
Or being pulled, to blast it unenjoyed,
While yet he gazed upon its loveliness,
And just began to drink its fragrance up.

Gold many hunted, sweat and bled for gold ;
Waked all the night, and labored all the day.
And what was this allurement, dost thou ask ?
A dust dug from the bowels of the earth,
Which, being cast into the fire, came out
A shining thing that fools admired, and called
A god ; and in devout and humble plight
Before it kneeled, the greater to the less.
And on its altar sacrificed ease, peace,
Truth, faith, integrity ; good conscience, friends,
Love, charity, benevolence, and all
The sweet and tender sympathies of life ;
And to complete the horrid murderous rite,
And signalize their folly, offered up
Their souls and an eternity of bliss,
To gain them—what ? an hour of dreaming joy :

A feverish hour that hastened to be done,
And ended in the bitterness of wo.

Most for the luxuries it bought—the pomp,
The praise, the glitter, fashion, and renown,
This yellow phantom followed and adored.
But there was one in folly farther gone ;
With eye awry, incurable and wild,
The laughing-stock of devils and of men.
And by his guardian angel quite given up—
The miser, who with dust inanimate
Held wedded intercourse. Ill guided wretch !
Thou might'st have seen him at the midnight hour,
When good men slept, and in light winged dreams
Ascended up to God,—in wasteful hall,
With vigilance and fasting worn to skin
And bone, and wrapped in most debasing rags.—
Thou might'st have seen him bending o'er his heape,
And holding strange communion with his gold ;
And as his thievish fancy seemed to hear
The night-man's foot approach, starting alarmed,
And in his old, decrepit, withered hand,
That palsy shook, grasping the yellow earth
To make it sure. Of all God made upright,
And in their nostrils breathed a living soul,
Most fallen, most prone, most earthly, most debased ;
Of all that sold eternity for Time
None bargained on so easy terms with death.
Illustrious fool ! Nay, most inhuman wretch !
He sat among his bags, and with a look
Which hell might be ashamed of, drove the poor
Away unalmsed ; and midst abundance died—
Sorest of evils ! died of utter want.

Before this Shadow in the vales of earth,
Fools saw another glide, which seemed of more
Intrinsic worth. Pleasure her name—good name
Tho' ill applied. A thousand forms she took,
A thousand garbs she wore ; in every age

And clime changing, as in her votaries changed
 Desire : but, inwardly, the same in all.
 Her most essential lineaments we trace ;
 Her general features every where alike.

Of comely form she was, and fair of face ;
 And underneath her eyelids sat a kind
 Of witching sorcery that nearer drew
 Whoever with unguarded look beheld ;
 A dress of gaudy hue loosely attired
 Her loveliness ; her air and manner frank,
 And seeming free of all disguise ; her song
 Enchanting ; and her words which sweetly dropt,
 As honey from the comb, most large of promise,
 Still prophecyng days of new delight,
 And rapturous nights of undecaying joy.
 And in her hand, where'er she went, she held
 A radiant Cup that seemed of nectar full—
 And by her side danced fair delusive Hope.
 The fool pursued enamoured, and the wise
 Experienced man who reasoned much, and thought,
 Was sometimes seen laying his wisdom down,
 And vying with the stripling in the chase.

Nor wonder thou ! for she was really fair ;
 Decked to the very taste of flesh and blood.
 And many thought her sound within ; and gay
 And healthy at the heart : but thought amiss :
 For she was full of all disease ; her bones
 Were rotten : consumption licked her blood, and drank
 Her marrow up ; her breath smelled mortally ;
 And in her bowels plague and fever lurked ;
 And in her very heart, and veins and life,
 Corruption's worm gnawed greedily unseen.

Many her haunts, thou might'st have seen her now
 With Indolence, lolling on the mid-day couch,
 And whispering drowsy words ; and now at dawn,
 Loudly and rough, joining the sylvan horn :

Or sauntering in the park, and to the tale
Of slander giving ear ; or sitting fierce,
Rude, blasphemous, malicious, raving, mad,
Where fortune to the fickle die was bound.

But chief she loved the scene of deep debauch,
Where revelry, and dance, and frantic song,
Disturbed the sleep of honest men. And where
The drunkard sat, she entered in, well pleased,
With eye brimful of wanton mirthfulness,
And urged him still to fill another cup.

And at the shadowy twilight—in the dark
And gloomy night, I looked, and saw her come
Abroad, arrayed in harlot's soft attire ;
And walk without in every street, and lie
In wait at every corner, full of guile.
And as the unwary youth of simple heart,
And void of understanding, passed, she caught
And kissed him, and with lips of lying said :
I have peace-offerings with me ; I have paid
My vows this day ; and therefore came I forth
To meet thee, and to seek thee diligently,
To seek thy face, and I have found thee here.
My bed is decked with robes of tapestry,
With carved work, and sheets of linen fine ;
Perfumed with aloes, myrrh, and cinnamon.
Sweet are stolen waters ! pleasant is the bread
In secret eaten ! the goodman is from home.
Come, let us take our fill of love till morn
Awake ; let us delight ourselves with loves.
With much fair speech she caused the youth to yield ;
And forced him with the flattering of her tongue.
I looked and saw him follow to her house,
As goes the ox to slaughter ; as the fool
To the correction of the stocks; or bird
That hastens into the subtle fowler's snare,
And knows not, simple thing, 'tis for its life.
I saw him enter in ; and heard the door

Behind them shut ; and in the dark, still night,
 When God's unsleeping eye alone can see,
 He went to her adulterous bed. At morn
 I looked, and saw him not among the youths .
 I heard his father mourn, his mother weep :
 For none returned that went with her. The dead
 Were in her house ; her guests in depths of hell :
 She wove the winding-sheet of souls, and laid
 Them in the urn of everlasting death.

Such was the Shadow fools pursued on earth,
 Under the name of pleasure,—fair outside,
 Within corrupted, and corrupting still :
 Ruined, and ruinous : her sure reward,
 Her total recompence was still, as he,
 The bard, recorder of Earth's seasons, sung,
 "Vexation, disappointment, and remorse."
 Yet at her door the young and old, and some
 Who held high character among the wise,
 Together stood,—and strove among themselves,
 Who first should enter, and be ruined first.

Strange competition of immortal souls !
 To sweat for death ! to strive for misery !
 But think not Pleasure told her end was death.
 Even human folly then had paused at least,
 And given some signs of hesitation ; nor
 Arrived so hot and out of breath at wo.
 Though contradicted every day by facts,
 That sophistry itself would stumble o'er,
 And to the very teeth a liar proved
 Ten thousand times, as if unconscious still
 Of inward blame, she stood, and waved her hand,
 And pointed to her bower, and said to all
 Who passed : Take yonder flowery path ; my steps
 Attend; I lead the smoothest way to heaven ;
 This world receive as surety for the next.
 And many simple men, most simple, tho'
 Renowned for learning much, and wary skill.

Believed, and turned aside, and were undone.

Another leaf of finished Time we turn,
And read of Fame, terrestrial Fame, which died,
And rose not at the Resurrection morn.
Not that by virtue earned, the true renown,
Begun on earth, and lasting in the skies,
Worthy the lofty wish of seraphim,—
The approbation of the Eye that sees
The end from the beginning, sees from cause
To most remote effect : of it we read
In book of God's remembrance, in the book
Of life, from which the quick and dead were judged;
The book that lies upon the throne, and tells
Of glorious acts by saints and angels done ;
The record of the holy, just, and good.

Of all the phantoms fleeting in the mist
Of Time, tho' meagre all, and ghostly thin,
Most unsubstantial, unessential shade,
Was earthly Fame. She was a voice alone,
And dwelt upon the noisy tongues of men.
She never thought ; but gabbled ever on ;
Applauding most what least deserved applause :
The motive, the result was naught to her :
The deed alone, tho' dyed in human gore,
And steeped in widow's tears, if it stood out
The prominent display, she talked of much,
And roared around it with a thousand tongues.
As chaoged the wind her organ, so she changed
Perpetually ; and whom she praised to-day,
Vexing his ear with acclamations loud,
To-morrow blamed, and hissed him out of sight.

Such was her nature, and her practice such :
But, O ! her voice was sweet to mortal ears ;
And touched so pleasantly the strings of pride
And vanity, which in the heart of man
Were ever strung harmonious to her note,

That many thought to live without her song
 Was rather death than life ; to live unknown,
 Unnoticed, unrenowned ! to die unpraised !
 Unepitaphed ! to go down to the pit,
 And moulder in the dust among vile worms !
 And leave no whispering of a name on earth !
 Such thought was cold about the heart, and chilled
 The blood. Who could endure it ? who could choose,
 Without a struggle, to be swept away
 From all remembrance ? and have part no more
 With living men ? Philosophy failed here :
 And self-approving pride. Hence it became
 The aim of most, and main pursuit, to win
 A name—to leave some vestige as they passed,
 That following ages might discern they once
 Had been on earth, and acted something there.

Many the roads they took, the plans they tried ;
 The man of science to the shade retired,
 And laid his head upon his hand, in mood
 Of awful thoughtfulness ; and dived, and dived
 Again—deeper and deeper still, to sound
 The cause remote—resolved, before he died,
 To make some grand discovery, by which
 He should be known to all posterity.

And in the silent vigils of the night,
 When uninspired men reposed, the bard,
 Ghastly of countenance, and from his eye
 Oft streaming wild unearthly fire, set up ;
 And sent imagination forth ; and searched
 The far and near—heaven, earth and gloomy hell—
 For fiction new, for thought, unthought before ;
 And when some curious rare idea peered
 Upon his mind, he dipped his hasty pen,
 And by the glimmering lamp, or moonlight beam,
 That thro' his lattice peeped, wrote fondly down
 What seemed in truth imperishable song.

And sometimes too, the reverend divine,
In meditation deep of holy things,
And vanities of Time, heard Fame's sweet voice
Approach his ear—and hang another flower,
Of earthly sort, about the sacred truth ;
And ventured whiles to mix the bitter text,
Which relish suited to the sinner's taste.

And oft-times too, the simple hind, who seemed
Ambitionless, arrayed in humble garb,
While round him spreading, fed his harmless flock,
Sitting was seen, by some wild warbling brook,
Carving his name upon his favorite staff ;
Or, in ill-favored letters, tracing it
Upon the aged thorn ; or on the face
Of some conspicuous oft frequented stone,
With persevering wondrous industry ;
And hoping, as he toiled a main, and saw
The characters take form, some other wight,
Long after he was dead, and in the grave,
Should loiter there at noon and read his name.

In purple some, and some in rags, stood forth
For reputation ; some disp'layed a limb
Well-fashioned : some of lowlier mind, a cane
Of curious workmanship, and marvellous twist :
In strength some sought it, and in beauty more.
Long, long the fair one labored at the glass,
And, being tired, called in auxiliar skill,
To have her sails, before she went abroad.
Full spread, and nicely set, to catch the gale
Of praise. And much she caught, and much deserved,
When outward loveliness was index fair
Of purity within : but oft alas !
The bloom was on the skin alone ; and when
She saw, sad sight ! the roses on her cheek
Wither, and heard the voice of fame retire
And die away, she heaved most piteous sighs,
And wept most lamentable tears ; and whiles,

In wild delirium, made rash attempt,
 Unholy mimickry of Nature's work !
 To re-create, with frail and mortal things,
 Her wither'd face. Attempt how fond and vain !
 Her frame itself, soon moulder'd down to dust ;
 And in the land of deep forgetfulness,
 Her beauty and her name were laid beside
 Eternal silence, and the loathsome worm ;
 Into whose darkness flattery ventured not ;
 Where none had ears to hear the voice of Fame.

Many the roads they took, the plans they tried.
 And awful oft the wickedness they wrought.
 To be observed, some scrambled up to thrones,
 And sat in vestures dripping wet with gore.
 The warrior dipped his sword in blood, and wrote
 His name on lands and cities desolate.
 The rich bought fields, and houses built, and raised
 The monumental piles up to the clouds,
 And called them by their names. And, strange to tell !
 Rather than be unknown, and pass away
 Obscurely to the grave, some, small of soul,
 That else had perished unobserved, acquired
 Considerable renown by oaths profane,
 By jesting boldly with all sacred things,
 And uttering fearlessly wha'e'er occurred ;—
 Wild, blasphemous, perditionable thoughts,
 That Satan in them moved ; by wiser men
 Suppressed, and quickly banished from the mind.

Many the roads they took, the plans they tried :
 But all in vain. Who grasped at earthly fame,
 Grasped wind: nay worse, a serpent grasped, that thro'
 His hand slid smoothly, and was gone ; but left
 A sting behind which wrought him endless pain ;
 For oft her voice was old Abaddon's lure,
 By which he charmed the foolish soul to death.
 So happiness was sought in pleasure, gold,
 Renown—hy many sought. But should I sing

Of all the trifling race, my time, thy faith,
Would fail—of things erectly organized,
And having rational, articulate voice,
And claiming outward brotherhood with man,—
Of him that labored sorely, in his sweat
Smoking afar, then hurried to the wine,
Deliberately resolving to be mad :
Of him who taught the ravenous bird to fly
This way or that, thereby supremely blest :
Or rode in fury with the howling pack,
Afronting much the noble animal,
He spurred into such company : of him
Who down into the bowels of the earth
Descended deeply, to bring up the wreck
Of some old earthen ware, which having stowed
With every proper care, he home returned
O'er many a sea, and many a league of land,
Triumphantly to show the marvellous prize :
And him that vexed his brain, and theories built
Of gossamer upon the brittle winds ;
Perplexed exceedingly why shells were found
Upon the mountain tops ; but wondering not
Why shells were found at all, more wondrous still !
Of him who strange enjoyment took in tales
Of fairy folk, and sleepless ghosts, and sounds
Unearthly, whispering in the ear of night
Disastrous things : and him who still foretold
Calamity which never came, and lived
In terror all his days of comets rude,
That should unmannerly and lawless drive
Athwart the path of Earth, and burn mankind :
As if the appointed hour of doom, by God
Appointed, ere its time should come : as if
Too small the number of substantial ills,
And real fears to vex the sons of men.—
These,—had they not possessed immortal souls,
And been accountable, might have been passed
With laughter, and forgot ; but as it was,
And is,—their folly asks a serious tear.

Keen was the search, and various and wide,
 For happiness. Take one example more—
 So strange, that common fools looked on amazed,
 And wise and sober men together drew,
 And trembling stood ; and angels in the heavens
 Grew pale, and talked of vengeance as at hand—
 The sceptic's route—the unbeliever's, who,
 Despising reason, revelation, God,
 And kicking 'gainst the pricks of conscience, rushed
 Deliriously upon the bossy shield
 Of the Omnipotent : and in his heart
 Purposed to deify the idol chance.
 And labored hard—oh, labor worse than naught !
 And toiled with dark and crooked reasoning,
 To make the fair and lovely Earth which dwelt
 In sight of heaven, a cold and fatherless,
 Forsaken thing, that wandered on, forlorn,
 Undestined, uncompassioned, unupheld ;
 A vapor eddying in the whirl of chance,
 And soon to vanish everlastingily.
 He travailed sorely, and made many a tack,
 His sails oft shifting, to arrive—dread thought !
 Arrive at utter nothingness; and have
 Being no more—no feeling, memory,
 No lingering consciousness that e'er he was.
 Guilt's midnight wish ! las', most abhorred thought :
 Most desperate effort of extremest sin !
 Others preoccupied, ne'er saw true hope ;
 He seeing, aimed to stab her to the heart,
 And with infernal chemistry to wring
 The last sweet drop from sorrow's cup of gall ;
 To quench the only ray that cheered the earth,
 And leave mankind in night which had no star.
 Others the streams of pleasure troubled, he
 Toiled much to dry her very fountain head,
 Unpardonable man ! sold under sin !
 He was the Devil's pioneer, who cut
 The feoces down of virtue, sapped her walls,
 And opened a smooth and easy way to death.

Traitor to all existence ! to all life !
 Soul-suicide ! determined foe of being !
 Intended murderer of God, Most High !
 Strange road, most strange ! to seek for happiness !
 Hell's mad-houses are full of such ; too fierce,
 Too furiously insane, and desperate,
 To rage unbound 'mong evil spirits damned !

Fertile was earth in many things : not least
 In fools, who mercy both and judgment scorned :
 Scorned love, experience scorned: and onward rushed
 To swift destruction, giving all reproof ;
 And all instruction, to the winds : and much
 Of both they had—and much despised of both.

Wisdom took up her harp, and stood in place
 Of frequent concourse—stood in every gate,
 By every way, and walked in every street ;
 And lifting up her voice, proclaimed : Be wise
 Ye fools ! be of an understanding heart.
 Forsake the wicked : come not near his house :
 Pass by : make haste : depart and turn away.
 Me follow—me, whose ways are pleasantness,
 Whose paths are peace, whose end is perfect joy.
 The Seasons came and went, and went and came,
 To teach men gratitude ; and as they passed,
 Gave warning of the lapse of time, that else
 Had stolen unheeded by : the gentle Flowers
 Retired, and, stooping o'er the wilderness,
 Talked of humility, and peace, and love.
 The Dews came down unseen at evening tide,
 And silently their bounties shed, to teach
 Mankind unstentatious charity.
 With arm in arm the forest rose on high,
 And lesson gave of brotherly regard.
 And on the rugged mountain brow exposed,
 Bearing the blast alone—the ancient oak
 Stood, lifting high his mighty arm, and still
 To courage in distress exhorted loud.

The flocks, the herds, the birds, the streams, the breeze,
Attuned the heart to melody and love.

Mercy stood in the cloud, with eye that wept
Essential love ; and, from her glorious bow,
Bending to kiss the earth in token of peace,
With her own lips, her gracious lips, which God
Of sweetest accent made, she whispered still,
She whispered to Revenge :—Forgive, forgive !

The Sun rejoicing round the earth, announced
Daily the wisdom, power, and love of God.

The Moon awoke, and from her maiden face,
Shedding her cloudy locks, looked meekly forth,
And with her virgin stars walked in the heavens,
Walked nightly there, conversing as she walked,
Of purity, and holiness, and God.

In dreams and visions sleep instructed much.

Day uttered speech to day, and night to night
Taught knowledge : silence had a tongue : the grave,
The darkness, and the lonely waste, had each
A tongue, that ever said—Man ! think of God !

Think of thyself ! think of eternity !

Fear God, the thunders said ; fear God, the waves ;
Fear God, the lightning of the storm replied ;
Fear God, deep loudly answered back to deep,
And, in the temples of the Holy One—

Messiah's messengers, the faithful few—

Faithful 'mong many false—the Bible opened,
And cried : Repent ! repent ye Sons of Men !
Believe, be saved : and reasoned awfully
Of temperance, righteousness, and judgment soon
To come—of ever-during life and death.

And chosen bards from age to age awoke
The sacred lyre, and full on folly's ear,
Numbers of righteous indignation poured.
And God omnipotent, when mercy failed,
Made bare his holy arm ; and with the stroke
Of vengeance smote ; the fountains of the deep
Broke up ; heaven's windows opened ; and sent on men
A flood of wrath ; sent plague and famine forth ;

With earthquake rocked the world beneath ; with storms

Above ; laid cities waste ; and turned fat lands
To barrenness ; and with the sword of war
In fury marched, and gave them blood to drink.

Angels remonstrated : Mercy beseeched :
Heaven smiled, and frowned : Hell groaned : Time fled : Death shook

His dart, and threatened to make repentance vain—

Incredible assertion ! men rushed on

Determinedly to ruin : shut their ears,

Their eyes to all advice, to all reproof—

O'er mercy and o'er judgment downward rushed
To misery : and, most incredible

Of all ! to misery rushed along the way

Of disappointment and remorse, where still

At every step, adders, in pleasure's form,

Stung mortally ; and Joys,—whose bloomy cheeks
Seemed glowing bigh with immortality,

Whose bosoms prophesied superfluous bliss,—

While in the arms received, and locked in close

And riotous embrace, turned pale, and cold,

And died, and smelled of putrifaction rank :

Turned, in the very moment of delight,

A loathsome, heavy corpse, that with the clear

And hollow eyes of Death, stared horribly.

All tribes, all generations of the earth,

Thus wantonly to ruin drove alike :

We heard indeed of golden and silver days ;

And of primeval innocence unstained—

A pagan tale ! but by baptized bards,

Philosophers, and statesmen, who were still

Held wise and cunning men, talked of so much,

That most believed it so, and asked not why.

The pair, the family first made, were ill ;

And for their great peculiar sin incurred

The Curse, and left it due to all their race ;

And bold example gave of every crime—
 Hate, murder, unbelief, reproach, revenge.
 A time, 'tis true, there came, of which thou soon
 Shalt hear—the Sabbath Day, the Jubilee
 Of Earth, when righteousness and peace prevailed.
 This time except, who writes the history
 Of men, and writes it true, must write them bad.
 Who reads, must read of violence and blood.
 The man who could the story of one day
 Peruse ; the wrongs, oppressions, cruelties ;
 Deceits, and perjuries, and vanities ;
 Rewarded worthlessness, rejected worth ;
 Assassinations, robberies, thefts, and wars ;
 Disastrous accidents, life thrown away ;
 Divinity insulted ; Heaven despised ;
 Religion scorned ;—and not been sick at night,
 And sad, had gathered greater store of mirth,
 Than ever wise man in the world could find.

One cause of folly, one especial cause
 Was this—few knew what wisdom was ; tho' well
 Defined in God's own words, and printed large,
 On heaven and earth in characters of light,
 And sounded in the ear by every wind.

Wisdom is humble, said the voice of God.
 'Tis proud, the world replied. Wisdom, said God,
 Forgives, forbears and suffers, not for fear
 Of man, but God. Wisdom revenges, said
 The world ; is quick and deadly of resentment ;
 Thrusts at the very shadow of affront,
 And hastens, by death, to wipe its honor clean.
 Wisdom, said God, loves enemies, entreats,
 Solicits, begs for peace. Wisdom, replied
 The world, hates enemies ; will not ask peace,
 Conditions spurns, and triumphs in their fall.
 Wisdom mistrusts itself, and leans on heaven,
 Said God. It trusts and leans upon itself,
 The world replied. Wisdom retires, said God,

And counts it bravery to bear reprach
 And shame, and lowly poverty upright ;
 And weeps with all who have just cause to weep.
 Wisdom, replied the world, struts forth to gaze ;
 Treads the broad stage of life with clamorous foot ;
 Attracts all praises ; counts it bravery
 Alone to wield the sword and rush on death ;
 And never weeps, but for its own disgrace.
 Wisdom, said God, is highest, when it stoops
 Lowest before the Holy Throne, throws down
 Its crown abased, forgets itself, admires,
 And breathes adoring praise. There wisdom stoops
 Indeed, the world replied—there stoops, because
 It must : but stoops with dignity ; and thinks
 And meditates the while of inward worth.

Thus did Almighty God, and thus the world,
 Wisdom define. And most the world believed ;
 And boldly called the truth of God a lie.
 Hence, he that to the worldly wisdom shaped
 His character, became the favorite
 Of men—was honorable termed , a man
 Of spirit ; noble, glorious, lofty soul !
 And as he crossed the earth in chase of dreams,
 Received prodigious shouts of warm applause.
 Hence, who to godly wisdom framed his life,
 Was counted mean, and spiritless, and vile.
 And as he walked obscurely in the path
 Which led to heaven,fools hissed with serpent tongue,
 And poured contempt upon his holy head ;
 And poured contempt on all who praised his name.

But false as this account of wisdom was—
 The world's I mean—it was its best : the creed
 Of sober, grave, and philosophic men ;
 With much research and cogitation framed ;
 Of men, who with the vulgar scorned to sit.

The popular belief seemed rather worse,

When heard replying to the voice of truth,

The wise man, said the Bible, walks with God,
 Surveys far on the endless line of life ;
 Values his soul ; thinks of eternity ;
 Both worlds considers, and provides for both ;
 With reason's eye his passions guards ; abstains
 From evil ; lives on hope, on hope, the fruit
 Of faith ; looks upward ; purifies his soul ;
 Expands his wings, and mounts into the sky ;
 Passes the sun, and gains his father's house ;
 And drinks with angels from the fount of bliss.

The multitude aloud replied—replied
 By practice, for they were not bookish men ;
 Nor apt to form their principles in words—
 The wise man first of all eradicates,
 As much as possible, from out his mind,
 All thought of death, God, and eternity ;
 Admires the world, and thinks of Time alone ;
 Avoids the Bible, all reproof avoids ;
 Ricks conscience, if he can, asleep ; puts out
 The eye of reason; prisons, tortures, binds ;
 And makes her thus by violence and force,
 Give wicked evidence against herself :
 Lets passion loose ; the substance leaves ; pursues
 The shadow vehemently, but ne'er o'er takes ;
 Puts by the cup of holiness and joy ;
 And drinks, carouses deeply in the bowl
 Of death ; grovels in dust ; pollutes, destroys
 His soul ; is miserable to acquire
 More misery ; deceives to be deceived ;
 Strives, labors to the last to shun the truth ;
 Strives, labors to the last to damn himself ;
 Turns desperate, shudders, groans, blasphemers, and dies,
 And sinks—where could he else ?—to endless wo :
 And drinks the wine of God's eternal wrath.

The learned thus, and thus the unlearned world,
 Wisdom defined—in sound they disagreed ;
 In substance, in effect, in end the same ;
 And equally to God and truth opposed ;
 Opposed as darkness to the light of heaven.
 Yet were there some that seemed well meaning men,
 Who systems planned, expressed in supple words,
 Which praised the man as wisest, that in one
 United both ; pleased God, and pleased the world ;
 And with the saint, and with the sinner had,
 Changing his garb unseen, a good report.
 And many thought their definition best ;
 And in their wisdom grew exceeding wise.

Union abhorred ! dissimulation vain !
 Could holiness embrace the harlot sin ?
 Could life wed death? could God with Mammon dwell ?
 Oh, foolish men ! oh men, for ever lost !
 In spite of mercy lost, in spite of wrath !
 In spite of Disappointment and Remorse,
 Which made the way to ruin ruinous !

Hear what they were :—the progeny of sin
 Alike ; and oft combined : but differing much
 In mode of giving pain. As felt the gross,
 Material part, when in the furnace cast,
 So felt the soul the victim of remorse.
 It was a fire which on the verge of God's
 Commandment's burned, and on the vitals fed
 Of all who passed. Who passed, there met remorse.
 A violent fever seized his soul ; the heavens
 Above, the earth beneath, seemed glowing brass,
 Heated seven times ; he heard dread voices speak,
 And mutter horrid prophecies of pain,
 Severer and severer yet to come :
 And as he writhed and quivered, scorched within,
 The Fury round his torrid temples flapped
 Her fiery wings, and breathed upon his lips,
 And parched tongue, the withered blasts of hell.

*It was the suffering begun, thou saw'st
In symbol of the Worm that never dies.*

The other—Disappointment, rather seemed
Negation of delight. It was a thing
Sluggish and torpid, tending towards death.
Its breath was cold, and made the sportive blood,
Stagnant, and dull, and heavy round the wheels
Of life : the roots of that whereon it blew,
Decayed, and with the genial soil no more
Held sympathy—the leaves, the branches drooped,
And mouldered slowly down to formless dust ;
Not tossed and driven by violence of winds ;
But withering where they sprung and rotting there.
Long disappointed, disappointed still,
The hopeless man, hopeless in his main wish,
As if returning back to nothing felt
In strange vacuity of being hung,
And rolled, and rolled his eye on emptiness,
That seemed to grow more empty every hour.

One of this mood I do remember well :
We name him not, what now are earthly names ?
In humble dwelling born, retired, remote,
In rural quietude ; 'mong hills, and streams,
And melancholy deserts, where the sun
Saw, as he passed, a shepherd only, here
And there watching his little flock ; or heard
The plowman talking to his steers—his hopes,
His morning hopes, awoke before him smiling,
Among the dews, and holy mountainto airs ;
And fancy colored them with every hue
Of heavenly loveliness : but soon his dreams
Of childhood fled away—those rainbow dreams,
So innocent and fair, that withered age,
Even at the grave, cleared up his dusty eye,
And passing all between, looked fondly back
To see them once again ere he departed.—
These fled away—and anxious thought, that wished

To go, yet whither knew not well to go,
 Possessed his soul, and held it still awhile.
 He listened—and heard from far the voice of fame—
 Heard, and was charmed ; and deep and sudden vow
 Of resolution made to be renowned :
 And deeper vowed again to keep his vow.
 His parents saw—his parents whom God made
 Of kindest heart—saw, and indulged his hope.
 The ancient page he turned ; read much ; thought much ;
 And with old bards of honorable name
 Measured his soul severely ; and looked up
 To fame, ambitious of no second place.
 Hope grew from inward faith, and promised fair :
 And out before him opened many a path
 Ascending, where the laurel highest waved
 Her branch of endless green. He stood admiring ;
 But stood, admired not long. The harp he seized ;
 The harp he loved—loved better than his lile ;
 The harp which uttered deepest notes, and held
 The ear of thought a captive to its song.
 He searched, and meditated much, and whiles
 With rapturous hand in secret touched the lyre,
 Aiming at glorious strains—and searched again
 For theme deserving of immortal verse :
 Chose now, and now refused unsatisfied ;
 Pleased, then displeased, and hesitating still.

Thus stood his mind, when round him came a cloud ;
 Slowly and heavily it came ; a cloud
 Of ills we mention not : enough to say
 'Twas cold, and dead, impenetrable gloom.
 He saw its dark approach ; and saw his hopes,
 One after one, put out, as nearer still
 It drew his soul, but fainted not at first ;
 Fainted not soon. He knew the lot of man
 Was trouble, and prepared to bear the worst :
 Endure whate'er should come, without a sigh
 Endure, and drink, even to the very dregs,

The bitterest cup that Time could measure out :
And, having done, look up, and ask for more.

He called Philosophy, and with his heart
Reasoned : he called Religion too, but called
Reluctantly, and therefore was not heard.
Ashamed to be o'ermatched by earthly woes,
He sought, and sought with eye that dimmed apace,
To find some avenue to light, some place
On which to rest a hope—but sought in vain.
Darker and darker still the darkness grew ;
At length he sunk, and disappointment stood
His only comforter, and mournfully
Told all was past. His interest in life,
In being ceased : and now he seemed to feel,
And shuddered as he felt ; his powers of mind
Decaying in the spring-time of his day.
The vigorous, weak became ; the clear, obscure ;
Memory gave up her charge ; decision reeled ;
And from her flight fancy returned, returned
Because she found no nourishment abroad.
The blue heavens withered, and the moon, and sun,
And all the stars, and the green earth, and morn
And evening withered ; and the eyes, and smiles,
And faces of all men and women withered ;
Withered to him ; and all the universe,
Like something which had been, appeared, but now
Was dead and mouldering fast away. He tried
No more to hope : wished to forget his vow :
Wished to forget his harp : then ceased to wish.
That was his last. Enjoyment now was done.
He had no hope—no wish—and scarce a fear.
Of being sensible, and sensible
Of loss, he, as soine atom seemed which God
Had made superfluously, and needed not
To build creation with ; but back again
To nothing threw, and left it in the void,
With everlasting sense that once it was.

Oh, who can tell what days, what nights he spent
 Of tideless, waveless, sailless, shoreless wo !
 And who can tell, how many, glorious once,
 To others, and themselves of promise full,
 Conducted to this pass of human thought,
 This wilderness of intellectual death,
 Wasted and pined, and vanished from the earth,
 Leaving no vestige of memorial there !

It was not so with him : when thus he lay,
 Forlorn of heart, withered and desolate,
 As leaf of Autumn, which the wolfish winds,
 Selecting from its falling sisters, chase
 Far from its native grove, to lifeless wastes,
 And leave it there alone to be forgotten
 Eternally—God passed in mercy by,
 His praise be ever new ! and on him breathed ;
 And bade him live ; and put into his hands
 A holy harp, into his lips a song,
 That rolled its numbers down the tide of Time.
 Ambitious now but little to be praised
 Of men alone ; ambitious most to be Approved of God, the Judge of all ; and have
 His name recorded in the book of life.

Such things were Disappointment, and Remorse :
 And oft united both, as friends severe,
 To teach men wisdom : but the fool untaught
 Was foolish still. His ear he stopped ; his eyes
 He shut ; and blindly, deafly obstinate,
 Forced desperately his way from wo to wo.

One place, one only place there was on earth,
 Where no man ere was fool—however mad.
 “ Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die.
 Ah ! 'twas a truth most true ; and sung in time,
 And to the sons of men, by one well known
 On earth for lofty verse, and lofty sense.

Much hast thou seen, fair youth ! much heard ; but thou

Hast never seen a death-bed, never heard
A dying groan. Men saw it often : 'twas sad,
To all most sorrowful and sad—to guilt
'Twas anguish, terror, darkness without baw.
But O, it had a most convincing tongue,
A potent oratory, that secured
Most mute attention : and it spoke the truth
So boldly, plainly, perfectly distinct,
That none the meaning could mistake, or doubt.
And had withal a disenchanting power,
A most omnipotent and wondrous power,
Which in a moment broke, forever broke,
And utterly dissolved the charms, and spells,
And cunning sorceries of Earth and Hell.
And thus it spoke to him who ghastly lay,
And struggled for another breath : Earth's cup
Is poisoned : Her renown, most infamous ;
Her gold, seem as it may, is really dust ;
Her titles, slanderous names ; her praise, reproach ;
Her strength an idiot's boast ; her wisdom, blind ;
Her gain, eternal loss ; her hope, a dream ;
Her love, her friendship, enmity with God ;
Her promises, a lie ; her smile, a harlot's ;
Her beauty, paint, and rotten within ; her pleasure,
Deadly assassins masked ; her laughter, grief ;
Her breasts, the sting of Death ; her total sum,
Her all, most utter vanity ; and all
Her lovers mad ; insane most grievously ;
And most insane, because they know it not.

Thus did the mighty reasoner Death declare ;
And volumes more : and in one word confirmed
The Bible whole—Eternity is all.
But few spectators, few believed of those
Who staid behind. The wisest, best of men
Believed not to the letter full ; but turned,
And on the world looked forth, as if they thought

The well trimmed hypocrite had something still
Of inward worth : the dying man alone
Gave faithful audience, and the words of Death
To the last jot believed ; believed and felt ;
But oft, alas ! believed and felt too late.

And had Earth then no joys ? no native sweets,
No happiness, that one who spoke the truth
Might call her own ? She had ; true, native sweets ;
Indigenous delights, which up the Tree
Of holiness, embracing as they grew,
Ascended, and bore fruit of heavenly taste :
In pleasant memory held, and talked of oft,
By yonder Saints who walk the golden streets
Of New-Jerusalem, and compass round
The throne, with nearest vision blest—of these
Hereafter thou shalt hear, delighted hear ;
One page of beauty in the life of man.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK IV.

F

ANALYSIS OF BOOK IV.

The essence of earthly liberty and independence was united with lust for power ; each sought to make all subject to his will, while real liberty was the freedom from sin ; he only was free, whom the truth of God made free.

Strange conflicts exhibited by the inconsistent and opposite principles of the Christian heart. Yet final victory was found on the side of holiness, and, after all his internal struggles, the christian was triumphant, and brought to the world of glory.

The Books composed in Time, together with their authors, were doomed to oblivion under the curse which returns dust to dust.

The Books entitled "The Medicine of the Mind," which were written for the help of virtue, were alone exempted from oblivion.

The inscrutable and mysterious providences of God, why deeds decreed were accountable, the Trinity, and Incarnation, were subjects, which Theology, Philosophy, Fancy, and finite wisdom, toiled in vain to comprehend.

The unequal distribution of worldly possessions and intellectual gifts, plainly taught that God did not estimate men by outward circumstances only, or by their knowledge, but by their moral worth. Illustrated by the history of the gifted Byron.

Course of Time.
BOOK IV.

THE world had much of strange and wonderful
In passion much, in action, reason, will ;
And much in Providence, which still retired
From human eye, and led philosophy,
That ill her ignorance liked to own, thro' dark
And dangerous paths of speculation wild.
Some striking features, as we pass, we mark,
In order such as memory suggests.

One passion prominent appears !—the lust
Of power, which oft-times took the fairer name
Of liberty, and hung the popular flag
Of freedom out. Many indeed, its names,
When on the throne it sat, and round the neck
Of millions riveted its iron chain,
And on the shoulders of the people laid
Burdens unmerciful—it title took
Of tyranny, oppression, despotism ;
And every tongue was weary cursing it.
When in the multitude it gathered strength,
And, like an ocean bursting from its bounds,
Long heat in vain, went forth resistlessly,
It bore the stamp and designation then,
Of popular fury, anarchy, rebellion—
And honest men bewailed all order void ;
All laws, annulled ; all property, destroyed ;

The venerable, murdered in the streets ;
 The wise, despised ; streams, red with human blood,
 Harvests, beneath the frantic foot trod down ;
 Lands desolate ; and famine, at the door.

These are a part ; but other names it had
 Innumerous as the shapes and robes it wore.
 But under every name—in nature still
 Invariably the same, and always bad.
 We own indeed that oft against itself
 It fought, and sceptre both and people gave
 An equal aid, as long exemplified
 In Albion's isle—Albion, queen of the seas—
 And in the struggle something like a kind
 Of civil liberty grew up, the best
 Of mere terrestrial root ; but sickly too,
 And living only, strange to tell ! in strife
 Of factions equally contending ; dead,
 That very moment dead that one prevailed.

Conflicting cruelly against itself,
 By its own hand it fell; part slaying part.
 And men who noticed not the suicide,
 Stood wondering much, why earth from age to age,
 Was still enslaved, and erring causes gave.

This was earth's liberty—its nature this—
 However named, in whomsoever found,
 And found it was in all of woman born,
 Each man to make all subject to his will ;
 To make them do, undo, eat, drink, stand, move,
 Talk, think, and feel, exactly as he chose.
 Hence the eternal strife of brotherhoods,
 Of individuals, families, commonwealths.
 The root from which it grew was pride—bad root !
 And bad the fruit it bore. Then wonder not
 That long the nations from it richly reaped
 Oppression, slavery, tyranny, and war ;
 Confusion, desolation, trouble, shame.

And marvellous tho' it seem, this monster, when
 It took the name of slavery, as oft
 It did, had advocates to plead its cause ;
 Beings that walked erect, and spoke like men ;
 Of Christian parentage descended too,
 And dipt in the baptismal font, as sign
 Of dedication to the Prince who bowed
 To death, to set the sin-bound prisoner free.

Unchristian thought ! on what pretence soe'er
 Of right inherited, or else acquired ;
 Of loss, or profit, or what plea you name,
 To buy and sell, to barter, whip, and hold
 In chains a being of celestial make—
 Of kindred form, of kindred faculties,
 Of kindred feelings, passions, thoughts, desires ;
 Born free, and heir of an immortal hope !—
 Thought villainous, absurd, detestable !
 Unworthy to be harbored in a field !
 And only overreached in wickedness
 By that, birth too of earthly liberty,
 Which aimed to make a reasonable man
 By legislation think, and by the sword.
 Believe. This was that liberty renowned,
 Those equal rights of Greece and Rome, where men,
 All, but a few, were bought, and sold, and scourged,
 And killed, as interest or caprice enjoined :
 So aftertimes talked of, written of so much,
 That most by sound, and custom led away,
 Believed the essence answered to the name.
 Historians on this theme were long and warm ;
 Statesmen, drunk with the fumes of vain debate,
 In lofty swelling phrase, called it perfection ;
 Philosophers its rise, advance, and fall
 Traced carefully ; and poets kindled still,
 As memory brought it up ; their lips were touched
 With fire, and uttered words that men adored,
 Even he—true bard of Zion, holy man !
 To whom the Bible taught this precious verse :

"He is the freeman whom the truth makes free,"
By fashion, tho' by fashion little swayed,
Scarce kept his heart from pagan freedom's praise.

The captive prophet, whom Jehovah gave
The future years, described it best, when he
Beheld it rise in vision of the night—
A dreadful beast, and terrible, and strong
Exceedingly, with mighty iron teeth ;
And lo, it brake in pieces, and devoured,
And stamped the residue beneath its feet !

True liberty was christian, sanctified,
Baptised, and found in Christian hearts alone.
First born of Virtue ! daughter of the skies !
Nursling of truth divine ! sister of all
The graces, meekness, holiness, and love :
Giving to God, and man, and all below,
That symptom showed of sensible existence,
Their due unasked ; fear to whom fear was due ;
To all, respect, benevolence, and love.
Companion of religion ! where she came
There freedom came ; where dwelt, there freedom dwelt ;
Ruled where she ruled, expired where she expired.

"He was the freeman whom the truth made free :"
Who first of all, the bands of Satan broke ;
Who broke the bands of Sin ; and for his soul,
In spite of fools consulted seriously ;
In spite of fashion persevered in good ;
In spite of wealth or poverty, upright ;
Who did as reason, not as fancy bade ;
Who heard temptation sing, and yet turned not
Aside ; saw sin bedeck her flowery bed,
And yet would not go up ; felt at his heart
The sword unsheathed, yet would not sell the truth ;
Who, having power, had not the will to hurt ;
Who blushed alike to be, or have a slave ;

Who blushed at naught but sin, feared naught but God;
 Who, finally, in strong integrity
 Of soul, 'midst want, or riches, or disgrace,
 Uplifted calmly sat, and heard the waves
 Of stormy folly breaking at his feet ;
 Now shrill with praise, now hoarse with foul reproach,
 And both despised sincerely ; seeking this
 Alone—the approbation of his God,
 Which still with conscience witnessed to his peace.

This, this is freedom, such as angels use,
 And kindred to the liberty of God.
 First born of Virtue ! daughter of the skies !
 The man, the state in whom she ruled, was free ;
 All else were slaves of Satan, Sin, and Death.

Already thou hast something heard of good
 And ill, of vice and virtue, perfect each :
 Of those redeemed, or else abandoned quite ;
 And more shalt hear, when at the judgment day
 The characters we of mankind review.—
 Seems aught which thou hast heard astonishing ?
 A greater wonder now thy audience asks :
 Phenomenon in all the universe
 Of moral being most anomalous ;
 Inexplicable most, and wonderful.
 I'll introduce thee to a single heart ;
 A human heart : we enter not the worst ;
 But one by God's renewing Spirit touched ;
 A christian heart, awaked from sleep of sin.
 What seest thou here ? what mark'st ? observe it well.
 Will, passion, reason ; hopes, fears ; joy, distress ;
 Peace, turbulence ; simplicity, deceit ;
 Good, ill ; corruption, immortality.
 A temple of the Holy Ghost, and yet
 Oft lodging fiends ; the dwelling place of all
 The heavenly virtues—charity and truth,
 Humility, and holiness, and love ;
 And yet the common haunt of anger, pride,

Hatred, revenge, and passions foul with lust :
 Allied to heaven, yet parleying oft with hell :
 A soldier listed in Messiah's band,
 Yet giving quarter to Abaddon's troops :
 With seraph's drinking from the well of life,
 And yet carousing in the cup of death :
 An heir of heaven, and walking thitherward,
 Yet casting back a covetous eye on earth :
 Emblem of strength, and weakness ; loving now
 And now abhorring sin ; indulging now,
 And now repenting sore ; rejoicing now,
 With joy unspeakable, and full of glory ;
 Now weeping bitterly, and clothed in dust.
 A man willing to do, and doing not ;
 Doing, and willing not ; embracing what
 He hates, what most he loves abandoning.
 Half saint, and sinner half—half life, half death :
 Commixture strange of heaven, and earth, and hell !

What seest thou here ? what mark'st ? a battle-field ;
 Two banners spread ; two dreadful fronts of war
 In shock of opposition fierce engaged—
 God, angels, saw whole empires rise in arms ;
 Saw Kings exalted ; heard them tumbled down ;
 And others raised,—and heeded not : but here,
 God, angels, looked ; God, angels, fought ; and Hell,
 With all his legions, fought : here error fought
 With truth ; with darkness light ; and life with death :
 And here not kingdoms, reputations, worlds,
 Were won ; the strife was for eternity ;
 The victory was never-ending bliss ;
 The badge a chaplet from the tree of life.

While thus within contending armies strove,
 Without the Christian had his troubles too.
 For, as by God's unalterable laws,
 And ceremonial of the heaven of heavens,
 Virtue takes place of all, and worthiest deeds
 Sit highest at the feast of bliss ; on Earth

The opposite was fashion's rule polite,
 Virtue the lowest place at table took,
 Or served, or was shut out : the Christian still
 Was mocked, derided, persecuted, slain :
 And slander, worse than mockery, or sword,
 Or death, stood nightly by her horrid forge,
 And fabricated lies to stain his name,
 And wound his peace—but still he had a source
 Of happiness, that men could neither give
 Nor take away : the avenues that led
 To immortality before him lay ;
 He saw, with faith's far reaching eye, the fount
 Of life, his Father's house, his Saviour God,
 And borrowed thence to help his present want.

Encountered thus with enemies without,
 Within, like bark that meets opposing winds
 And floods, this way, now that, she steers athwart :
 Tossed by the wave, and driven by the storm ;
 But still the pilot, ancient at the helm,
 The harbor keeps in eye ; and after much
 Of danger past, and many a prayer rude,
 He runs her safely in—So was the man
 Of God beset, so tossed by adverse winds ;
 And so his eye upon the land of life
 He kept. Virtue grew daily stronger, sin
 Decayed ; his enemies repulsed, retired ;
 Till at the stature of a perfect man
 In Christ arrived, and with the Spirit filled,
 He gained the harbor of eternal rest."

But think not virtue else than dwells in God
 Essentially, was perfect, without spot.
 Examine yonder suns ! at distance seen,
 How bright they burn ! how gloriously they shine,
 Mantling the worlds around in beamy light !
 But nearer viewed, we through their lustre see
 Some dark behind : so virtue was on earth,
 So is in heaven, and so shall always be.

Though good it seem, immaculate, and fair,
 Exceedingly to saint or angel's gaze,
 The uncreated Eye, that searches all,
 Sees it imperfect ; sees, but blames not ; sees,
 Well-pleased ; and best with those who deepest dive
 Into themselves, and know themselves the most :
 Taught thence in humbler reverence to bow
 Before the Holy One ; and oftener view
 His excellence, that in them still may rise,
 And grow his likeness, growing evermore.

Nor think that any, born of Adam's race,
 In his own proper virtue, entered heaven.
 Once fallen from God and perfect holiness,
 No being, unassisted, ere could rise
 Or sanctify, the sin-polluted soul.
 Oft was the trial made ; but vainly made.
 So oft as men in Earth's best livery clad,
 However fair, approached the gates of heaven,
 And stood presented to the eye of God,
 Their impious pride so oft his soul abhorred.
 Vain hope ! in patch-work of terrestrial grain,
 To be received into the courts above ;
 As vain, as towards yonder suns to soar,
 On wing of waxen plumage melting soon.

Look round, and see those numbers infinite,
 That stand before the throne, and in the bands
 Palms waving high, as token of victory
 For battles won—these are the sons of men
 Redeemed, the ransomed of the Lamb of God :
 All these, and millions more of kindred blood,
 Who now are out on messages of love—
 All these—their virtue, beauty, excellence,
 And joy, are purchase of redeeming blood ;
 Their glory, bounty of redeeming love.

O love divine ! harp, lift thy voice on high !
 Shout, angels ! shout aloud, ye sons of men !

And burn my heart with the eternal flame !
 My lyre be eloquent with endless praise !
 O love divine ! immeasurable love !
 Stooping from heaven to earth, from earth to hell,
 Without beginning, endless, boundless love !
 Above all asking, giving far to those
 Who naught deserved, who naught deserved but death,
 Saving the vilest ! saving me ! O love
 Divine ! O Saviour God ! O Lamb once slain !
 At thought of thee, thy love, thy flowing blood,
 All thoughts decay ; all things remembered, fade ;
 All hopes return ; all actions done by men
 Or angels disappear, absorbed and lost :
 All fly—as from the great white throne, which he,
 The prophet, saw, in vision wrapped—the heavens,
 And earth, and sun, and moon, and starry host,
 Confounded fled, and found a place no more.

One glance of wonder, as we pass, deserve
 The books of Time. Productive was the world
 In many things ; but most in books : like swarms
 Of locusts, which God sent to vex a land
 Rebellious long, admonished long in vain,
 Their numbers they poured annually on man.
 From heads conceiving still : perpetual birth !
 Thou wonderest, how the world contained them all !
 Thy wonder stay : like men, this was their doom —
 That dust they were, and should to dust return.
 And oft their fathers, childless and bereaved,
 Wept o'er their graves, when they themselves were green ;
 And on them fell, as fell on every age,
 As on their authors fell, oblivious Night,
 Which o'er the past lay darkling, heavy, still,
 Impenetrable, motionless, and sad,
 Having his dismal leaden plumage, stirred
 By no remembrancer, to show the men
 Who after came what was concealed beneath.

The story-telling tribe alone, outran
All calculation far, and left behind,
Lagging, the swiftest numbers: dreadful, even
To fancy, was their never ceasing birth ;
And room had lacked, had not their life been short.
Excepting some—their definition take
Thou thus, exprest in gentle phrase, which leaves
Some truth behind :—A Novel was a book
Three-volumed, and once read; and oft crammed full
Of poisonous error, blackening every page;
And oftener still of trifling, second-hand
Remark, and old, diseased, putrid thought;
And miserable incident, at war
With nature, with itself, and truth at war :
Yet charming still the greedy reader on,
Till done—he tried to recollect his thoughts,
And nothing found, but dreaming emptiness.
These, like ephemera sprung in a day,
From lean and shallow soiled brains of sand,
And in a day expired : yet while they lived,
Tremendous oftentimes was the popular roar ;
And cries of—Live for ever—struck the skies.

One kind alone remained, seen thro' the gloom,
And sullen shadow of the past ; as lights
At intervals they shone, and brought the eye,
That backward travelled, upward, till arrived
At him, who on the hills of Midian, sang
The patient man of Uz ; and from the lyre
Of angels, learned the early dawn of Time.
Not light and momentary labor these,
But discipline and self-denial long,
And purpose staunch, and perseverance, asked,
And energy that inspiration seemed.
Composed of many thoughts, possessing each,
Innate and underived vitality :
Which having fitly shaped, and well arranged
In brotherly accord, they builded up—
A stately superstructure, that, nor wind,

Nor wave, nor shock of falling years could move ;
 Majestic and indissolubly firm ;
 As ranks of veteran warriors in the field ;
 Each by himself alone, and singly seen—
 A tower of strength ; in massy phalanx knit,
 And in embattled squadron rushing on—
 A sea of valor, dread ! invincible !
 Books of this sort, or sacred, or profane,
 Which virtue helped, were titl'd not amiss,
 The medicine of the mind : who read them read
 Wisdom, and was refreshed ; and on his path
 Of pilgrimage with healthier step advanced.

In mind, in matter, much was difficult
 To understand : but what in deepest night
 Retired ; inscrutable, mysterious, dark,
 Was evil ; God's decrees ; and deeds decreed,
 Responsible. Why God, the just, and good,
 Omnipotent and wise, should suffer sin
 To rise. Why man was free, accountable ;
 Yet God foreseeing, overruling all.

 Where'er the eye could turn, whatever track
 Of moral thought it took, by reason's torch,
 Or scripture's led, before it still this mount
 Sprung up, impervious, insurmountable ;
 Above the human stature rising far ;
 Horizon of the mind—surrounding still
 The vision of the soul with clouds and gloom.
 Yet did they oft attempt to scale its sides,
 And gain its top. Philosophy, to climb
 With all her vigor, toiled from age to age ;
 From age to age, Theology, with all
 Her vigor toiled ; and vagrant fancy toiled.
 Not weak and foolish only, but the wise,
 Patient, courageous, stout, sound-headed men,
 Of proper discipline, of excellent wind,
 And strong of intellectual limb, toiled hard ;
 And oft above the reach of common eye
 Ascended far, and seemed well nigh the top ;

But only seemed ; for still another top
Above them rose, till giddy grown and mad,
With gazing at these dangerous heights of God,
They tumbled down, and in their raving said,
They o'er the summit saw : and some believed ;
Believed a lie ; for never man on earth,
That mountain crossed, or saw its farther side.
Around it lay the wreck of many a Sage—
Divine—Philosopher ; and many more
Fell daily, undeterred by millions fallen ;
Each wondering why he failed to comprehend
God, and with finite measure infinite.
To pass it was no doubt desirable ;
And few of any intellectual size,
That did not sometime in their day attempt ;
But all in vain ; for as the distant hill,
Which on the right, or left the traveller's eye
Bounds, seems advancing as he walks, and oft
He looks, and looks, and thinks to pass ; but still
It forward moves, and mocks his baffled sight,
Till night descends and wraps the scene in gloom :
So did this moral beight the vision mock ;
So lifted up its dark and cloudy head,
Before the eye, and met it evermore.
And some provoked—accused the righteous God.
Accused of what ? hear human boldness now !
Hear guilt, hear folly, madness, all extreme !
Accused of what ? the God of truth accused ?
Of cruelty, injustice, wickedness !
Abundant sin ! Because a mortal man,
A worm at best of small capacity,
With scarce an atom of Jehovah's works
Before him, and with scarce an hour to look
Upon them, should presume to censure God—
The infinite and uncreated God !
To sit in judgment—on Himself, his works,
His providence ! and try, accuse, condemn !
If there is aught, thought or to think, absurd,
Irrational, and wicked, this is more—

This most ; the sin of devils, or of those
 To devils growing fast : wise men and good,
 Accused themselves, not God ; and put their hands
 Upon their mouths and in the dust adored.

The Christian's faith had many mysteries too.
 The uncreated holy Three in One ;
 Divine incarnate ; human in divine ;
 The inward call ; the sanctifying Dew
 Coming unseen, unseen departing thence ;
 Anew creating all, and yet not heard ;
 Compelling, yet not felt :—mysterious these ;
 Not that Jehovah to conceal them wished ;
 Not that religion wished : the Christian faith,
 Unlike the timorous creeds of pagan priests,
 Was frank, stood forth to view, invited all,
 To prove, examine, search, investigate,
 And gave herself a light to see her by.
 Mysterious these—because too large for eye
 Of man, too long for human arm to mete.

Go to yon mount, which on the north side stands
 Of New Jerusalem, and lifts its head
 Serene in glory bright, except the hill,
 The Sacred Hill of God, whereon no foot
 Must tread, highest of all creation's walks,
 And overlooking all in prospect vast,
 From out the ethereal blue—that cliff ascend ;
 Gaze thence; around thee look ; nought now impedes
 Thy view ; yet still thy vision, purified
 And strong although it be, a boundary meets.
 Or rather thou wilt say, thy vision fails
 To gaze throughout illimitable space,
 And find the end of infinite : and so
 It was with all the mysteries of faith ;
 God set them forth unveiled to the full gaze
 Of man, and asked him to investigate ;
 But reason's eye, however purified,
 And on whatever tall, and goodly height

Of observation placed, to comprehend
 Then fully sought in vain. In vain seeks still ;
 But wiser now and humbler, she concludes
 From what she knows already of his love,
 All gracious, which she cannot understand ;
 And gives him credit, reverence, praise for all.

Another feature in the ways of God,
 That wondrous seemed, and made some men complain,
 Was the unequal gift of worldly things.
 Great was the difference indeed of men
 Externally, from beggar to the prince.
 The highest take, and lowest—and conceive
 The scale between. A noble of the earth,
 One of its great, in splendid mansion dwelt ;
 Was robed in silk and gold ; and every day
 Fared sumptuously ; was titled, honored, served.
 Thousands his nod awaited, and his will
 For law received : whole provinces his march
 Attended, and his chariot drew, or on
 Their shoulders bore aloft the precious man.
 Millions, abased, fell prostrate at his feet ;
 And millions more thundered adoring praise.
 As far as eye could reach, he called the land
 His own, and added yearly to his fields.
 Like tree that of the soil took healthy root,
 He grew on every side, and towered on high,
 And over half a nation shadowing wide
 He spread his ample boughs : air, earth, and sea,
 Nature entire, the brute, and rational,
 To please him ministered, and vied among Themselves, who most should his desires prevent,
 Watching the moving of his rising thoughts
 Attentively, and hasting to fulfil.
 His palace rose and kissed the gorgeous clouds :
 Streams bent their music to his will ; trees sprung ;
 The naked waste put on luxuriant robes ;
 And plains of happy cottages cast out
 Their tenants, and became a hunting field.

Before him bowed the distant isles, with fruits
 And spices rare ; the south her treasures brought
 The east and west sent ; and the frigid north
 Came with her offering of glossy furs.
 Musicians soothed his ear with airs select ;
 Beauty held out her arms ; and every man
 Of cunning skill, and curious device,
 And endless multitudes of liveried wights,
 His pleasure waited with obsequious look.
 And when the wan's of nature were supplied,
 And common-place extravagances filled,
 Beyond their asking ; and caprice itself,
 In all its zig-zag appetites, gorged full,—
 The man, new wants, and new expenses planned :
 Nor planned alone : wise, learned, sober men,
 Of cogitation deep, took up his case :
 And planned for him new modes of folly wild :
 Contrived new wishes waots, and wondrous means
 Of spending with despatch : yet after all,
 His fields extended still, his riches grew,
 And what seemed splendor infinite, increased.
 So lavishly upon a single man
 Did Providence his bounties daily shower.

Turn now thy eye, and look on poverty !
 Look on the lowest of her ragged sons !
 We find him by the way, sitting in dust ;
 He has no bread to eat, no tongue to ask ;
 No limbs to walk ; no home, no house, no friend.
 Observe his goblin cheek ; his wretched eye ;
 See how his hand, if any hand he has,
 Involuntary opeos, and trembles for'h, .
 As comes the traveller's foot : and bear his groan,
 His long and lamentable groan, announce
 The want that gnaws within : severely now
 The sun scorches and burns his old bald head ;
 The frost now glues him to the chilly earth ;
 On him hail, rain, and tempest, rudely beat :
 And all the winds of heaven, in jocular mood,

Sport with his withered rags, that, tossed about,
 Display his nakedness to passers by,
 And grievously burlesque the human form.
 Observe him yet more narrowly : his limbs,
 With palsy shaken, about him blasted lie ;
 And all his flesh is full of putrid sores,
 And noisome wounds, his bones of racking pains.
 Strange vesture this for an immortal soul !
 Strange retinue to wait a lord of earth !
 It seems as nature, in some surly mood,
 After debate and musing long, had tried,
 How vile and miserable thing her hand
 Could fabricate, then made this meagre man.
 A sight so full of perfect misery,
 That passengers their faces turned away,
 And hasted to be gone ; and delicate
 And tender women took another path.

This great disparity of outward things
 Taught many lessons ; but this taught in chief,
 Though learned by few : that God no value set,
 That man should none, on goods of worldly kind ;
 On transitory, frail, external things,
 Of migratory, ever changing sort.
 And further taught, that in the soul alone,
 The thinking, reasonable, willing soul,
 God placed the total excellence of man ;
 And meant him evermore to seek it there.

But stranger still the distribution seemed
 Of intellect ; though fewer here complained ;
 Each with his share, upon the whole, content.
 One man there was,—and many such you might,
 Have met—who never had a dozen thoughts
 In all his life, and never changed their course ;
 But told them o'er, each in its 'customed place,
 From morn till night, from youth till hoary age.
 Little above the ox which grazed the field
 His reason rose : so weak his memory.

The name his mother called him by, he scarce
Remembered ; and his judgment so untaught,
That what at evening played along the swamp,
Fantastic, clad in robe of fiery hue,
He thought the devil in disguise, and fled
With quivering heart, and winged footsteps home.
The word philosophy he never heard,
Or science ; never heard of liberty,
Necessity ; or laws of gravitation :
And never had an unbelieving doubt.
Beyond his native vale he never looked ;
But thought the visual line, that girt him round,
The world's extreme : and thought the silver moon.
That nightly o'er him led her virgin host,
No broader than his father's shield. He lived—
Lived where his father lived—died where he died ;
Lived happy, and died happy, and was saved.
Be not surprised. He loved, and served his God.

There was another, large of understanding,
Of memory infinite, of judgment deep :
Who knew all learning, and all science knew ;
And all phenomena in heaven and earth,
Traced to their causes ; traced the labyrinths
Of thought, association, passion, will ;
And all the subtle, nice affinities
Of matter, traced ; its virtues, motions, laws ;
And most familiarly and deeply talked
Of mental, moral, natural, divine.
Leaving the earth at will, he soared to heaven,
And read the glorious visions of the skies ;
And to the music of the rolling spheres
Intelligently listened ; and gazed far back,
Into the awful depths of Deity.
Did all that mind assisted most could do ;
And yet in misery lived, in misery died,
Because he wanted holiness of heart.

A deeper lesson this to mortals taught.

And nearer cut the branches of their pride :
 That not in mental, but in moral worth,
 God, excellence placed ; and only to the good,
 To virtue granted happiness alone.

Admire the goodness of Almighty God !
 He riches gave, he intellectual strength
 To few, and therefore none commands to be,
 Or rich, or learned ; nor promises reward
 Of peace to these. On all, He moral worth
 Bestowed ; and moral tribute asked from all.
 And who that could not pay ? who born so poor,
 Of intellect so mean, as not to know
 What seemed the best; and knowing, might not do?
 As not to know what God and conscience bade,
 And what they had not able to obey?
 And he who acted thus fulfilled the law
 Eternal, and its promise reaped of peace:
 Found peace this way alone : who sought it else,
 Sought mellow grapes beneath the icy pole;
 Sought blooming roses on the cheek of death;
 Sought substance in a world of fleeting shades.

Take one example ; to our purpose quite.
 A man of rank, and of capacious soul ;
 Who riches had, and fame beyond desire ;
 An heir of flattery, to titles born,
 And reputation, and luxurious life.
 Yet not content with ancestral name ;
 Or to be known, because fathers his were ;
 He on this height hereditary stood,
 And gazing higher, purposed in his heart
 To take another step. Above him seemed
 Alone the mount of Song—the lofty seat
 Of canonized bards ; and thitherward,
 By nature taught, and inward melody,
 In prime of youth, he bent his eagle eye.
 No cost was spared. What books he wished, he read ;
 What sage to hear, he heard : what scenes to see,

He saw. And first in rambling school-boy days,
 Britannia's mountain-walks, and heath-girt lakes,
 And story-telling glens, and founts, and brooks ;
 And maids, as dew-drops pure and fair, his soul
 With grandeur filled, and melody, and love.
 Then travel came, and took him where he wished,
 He cities saw, and courts, and princely pomp :
 And mused alone on ancient mountain brows ;
 And mused on battle-fields, where valor fought
 In other days ; and mused on ruins grey
 With years : and drank from old and fabulous wells
 And plucked the vine that first born prophets plucked,
 And mused on famous tombs ; and on the wave
 Of ocean mused ; and on the desert waste.
 The heavens, and earth of every country saw :
 Where'er the old inspiring Genii dwelt,
 Aught that could rouse, expand, refine the soul,
 Thither he went, and meditated there.

He touched his harp, and nations heard, entranced,
 As some vast river of unfailing source,
 Rapid, exhaustless, deep, his numbers flowed,
 And opened new fountains in the human heart.
 Where fancy halted, weary in her flight,
 In other men, his fresh as morning rose,
 And soared untrodden heights, and seemed at home,
 Where angels bashful looked. Others, tho' great,
 Beneath their argument seemed struggling ; whiles
 He from above descending, stooped to touch
 The loftiest thought ; and proudly stooped, as tho'
 It scarce deserved his verse. With Nature's self
 He seemed an old acquaintance, free to jest
 At will with all her glorious majesty.
 He laid his hand upon "the Ocean's mane,"
 And played familiar with his hoary locks.
 Stood on the Alps, stood on the Appenines,
 And with the thunder talked, as friend to friend ;
 And wove his garland of the lightning's wing,
 In sportive twist—the lightning's fiery wing.

Which, as the footsteps of the dreadful God,
Marching upon the storm in vengeance seemed—
Then turned, and with the grasshopper, who sung
His evening song beneath his feet, conversed.
Suns, moons, and stars, and clouds his sisters were ;
Rocks, mountains, meteors, seas, and winds, and storms,
His brothers—younger brothers, whom he scarce
As equals deemed. All passions of all men—
The wild and tame—the gentle and severe ;
All thoughts, all maxims, sacred and profane ;
All creeds ; all seasons, Time, Eternity ;
All that was hated, and all that was dear ;
All that was hoped, all that was feared by man,
He tossed about, as tempest, withered leaves,
Then smiling looked upon the wreck he made.
With terror now he froze the cowering blood ;
And now dissolved the heart in tenderness :
Yet would not tremble, would not weep himself
But back into his soul retired, alone,
Dark, sullen, proud : gazing contemptuously
On hearts and passions prostrate at his feet.
So Ocean from the plains, his waves had late
To desolation swept, retired to pride,
Exulting in the glory of his might,
And seemed to mock the ruin he had wrought,

As some fierce comet of tremendous size,
To which the stars did reverence, as it passed ;
So he through learning, and through fancy took
His flight sublime; and on 'the loftiest top
Of Fame's dread mountain sat : not soiled, and worn
As if he from the earth had labored up—
But as some bird of heavenly plumage fair,
He looked, which down from higher regions came,
And perched it there, to see what lay beneath.

The nations gazed, and wondered much, and praised.
Critics before him fell in humble plight ;
Confounded fell ; and made debasing signs

To catch his eye; and stretched, and swelled themselves
 To bursting nigh, to utter bulky words
 Of admiration vast: and many too,
 Many that aimed to imitate his flight,
 With weaker wing, unearthly fluttering made,
 And gave abundant sport to after days.

Great man! the nations gazed, and wondered much,
 And praised: and many called his evil good.
 Wits wrote in favor of his wickedness;
 And kings to do him honor took delight.
 Thus full of titles, flattery, honor, fame;
 Beyond desire, beyond ambition full,—
 He died—he died of what? Of wretchedness.
 Drank every cup of joy, heard every trump
 Of fame; drank early, deeply drank; drank draughts
 That common millions might have quenched—then died
 Of thirst, because there was no more to drink.
 His goddess, Nature, wooed, embraced, enjoyed,
 Fell from his arms, abhorred; his passions died;
 Died all but dreary solitary pride:
 And all his sympathies in being died.
 As some ill-guided bark, well built and tall,
 Which angry tides cast out on desert shore,
 And then retiring, left it there to rot
 And moulder in the winds and rains of heaven:
 So he, cut from the sympathies of life,
 And cast ashore from pleasure's boisterous surge—
 A wandering, weary, worn, and wretched thing;
 Scorched and desolate, and blasted soul;
 A gloomy wilderness of dying thought—
 Repined, and groaned, and withered from the earth.
 His groanings filled the land, his numbers filled:
 And yet he seemed ashamed to groan. Poor man!
 Ashamed to ask, and yet he needed help.

Proof this, beyond all lingering of doubt,
 That not with natural or mental wealth,

Was God delighted, or his peace secured :
That not in natural or mental wealth,
Was human happiness or grandeur found.
Attempt how monstrous ! and how surely vain !
With things of earthly sort, with aught but God,
With aught but moral excellence, truth and love,
To satisfy and fill the immortal soul !
Attempt, vain inconceivably ! attempt,
To satisfy the ocean with a drop ;
To marry Immortality to Death ;
And with the unsubstantial Shade of Time,
To fill the embrace of all Eternity !

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK V.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK V.

Actions done in time live in Eternity.

Men may be absolved from the consequence of sin, but the evil deed, altho' not imputed, remains a dark spot on the annals of the past.

True happiness was within the reach of all; and that, which was joy to one, was misery to another.

True happiness always accompanied duty.

Among the contributions to happiness were, the bliss and joy of childhood, of maternal affection, of youthful love, and of friendship ; the study of nature ; recollections of the past ; anticipations of the future, repose after labor, and even grief afforded joys.

From whatever sources men experienced joy, the pious enjoyed the same in the highest degree.

Of the Millennium, the thousand years of Messiah's reign, foretold by the prophets, preceded by the conflict between Truth and error.

THE
Course of Time.
BOOK V.

RAISE God, ye servants of the Lord ! praise God,
Ye angels strong ! praise God, ye sons of men !
Praise him who made, and who redeemed your souls ;
Who gave you hope, reflection, reason, will ;
Minds that can pierce eternity remote,
And live at once on future, present, past ;
Can speculate on systems yet to make,
And back recoil on ancient days of Time.
Of Time, soon past ; soon lost among the shades
Of buried years. Not so the actions done
In Time, the deeds of reasonable men ;
As if engraven with pen of iron grain,
And laid in flinty rock, they stand unchanged,
Written on the various pages of the past :
If good, in rosy characters of love ;
If bad, in letters of vindictive fire.

God may forgive, but cannot blot them out.
Systems begin, and end ; eternity
Rolls on his endless years ; and men absolved
By mercy from the consequence, forget
The evil deed ; and God imputes it not :
But neither systems ending, nor begun ;
Eternity that rolls his endless years ;
Nor men absolved, and sanctified, and washed
By mercy from the consequence ; nor yet

Forgetfulness ; nor God imputing not,
 Can wash the guilty deed once done, from oul
 The faithful annals of the past ; who reads,
 And many read, there find it, as it was,
 And is, and shall for ever be—a dark,
 Unnatural and loathly moral spot.

The span of Time was short indeed ; and now
 Three-fourths were past, the last begun, and on
 Careering to its close, which soon we sing :
 But first our promise we redeem, to tell
 The joys of Time—her joys of native growth ;
 And briefly must, what longer tale deserves.

Wake, dear remembrances ! wake, childhood-days !
 Loves, friendships, wake ! and wake thou morn, and even !

Sun ! with thy orient locks ; night, moon, and stars
 And thou, celestial bower ! and all ye woods,
 And hills, and vales ; fast trode in dawning life !
 And hours of holy musing, wake ! wake earth !
 And smiling to remembrance, come ; and bring,
 For thou canst bring, meet argument for song
 Of heavenly harp ; meet hearing for the ear
 Of heavenly auditor, exalted high.

God gave much peace on earth, much holy joy :
 Oped fountains of perennial spring, whence flowed
 Abundant happiness to all who wished
 To drink : not perfect bliss ; that dwells with us,
 Beneath the eyelids of the Eternal One,
 And sits at his right hand alone ; but such,
 As well deserved the name—abundant joy.
 Pleasures, on which the memory of saints
 Of highest glory, still delights to dwell.

It was, we own, subject of much debate,
 And worthy men stood on opposing sides,
 Whether the cup of mortal life had more

Of sour or sweet. Vain question this, when asked
 In general terms, and worthy to be left
 Unsolved. If most was sour—the drinker, not
 The cup, we blame. Each in himself the means
 Possessed to turn the bitter sweet, the sweet
 To bitter : hence from out the self-same fount,
 One nec'ar drank, another draughts of gall.
 Hence from the self-same quarter of the sky,
 One saw ten thousand angels look, and smile ;
 Another saw as many demons frown.
 One discord heard, where harmony inclined
 Another's ear. The sweet was in the taste ;
 The beauty in the eye ; and in the ear
 The melody ; and in the man—for God
 Necessity of sinning laid on none—
 To form the taste, to purify the eye,
 And tune the ear, that all he tasted, saw,
 Or heard, might be harmonious, sweet, and fair.
 Who would, might groan : who would, might sing
 for joy.

Nature lamented little ; undevoured
 By spurious appetites, she found enough,
 Where least was found : with gleanings satisfied,
 Or crumbs, that from the hand of luxury fell ;
 Yet seldom these she ate : but ate the bread
 Of her own industry, made sweet by toil :
 And walked in robes that her own hand had spun
 And slept on down, her early rising bought.
 Frugal, and diligent in business, chaste
 And abstinent, she stored for helpless age.
 And keeping in reserve her spring-day health,
 And dawning relishes of life, she drank
 Her evening cup with excellent appetite ;
 And saw her eldest sun decline, as fair
 As rose her earliest morn, and pleased as well.

Whether in crowds, or solitudes—in streets
 Or shady groves, dwelt happiness, it seems

In vain to ask ; her nature makes it vain:
 'Tho' poets much, and hermits talked and sung
 Of brooks, and crystal founts, and weeping dews,
 And myrtle bowers, and solitary vales ;
 And with the nymph made assignations there ;
 And wooed her with the love-sick oaten reed.
 And sages too, although less positive,
 Advised their sons to court her in the shade.
 Delirious babble all ! Was happiness,
 Was self-approving, God approving joy,
 In drops of dew, however pure ? in gales,
 However sweet ? in wells, however clear ?
 Or groves, however thick with verdant shade ?

True, these were of themselves exceeding fair :
 How fair at morn and even ! worthy the walk
 Of loftiest mind ; and gave, when all within
 Was right, a feast of overflowing bliss,
 But were the occasion, not the cause of joy :
 They waked the native fountains of the soul,
 Which slept before ; and stirred the holy tides
 Of feeling up ; giving the heart to drink
 From its own treasures, draughts of perfect sweet.

The Christian faith, which better knew the heart
 Of man—him thither sent for peace ; and thus
 Declared : Who finds it, let him find it there :
 Who finds it not, forever let him seek
 In vain : 'tis God's most holy, changeless will.

True happiness had no localities ;
 No tones provincial ; no peculiar garb.
 Where duty went, she went ; with justice went ;
 And went with meekness, charity, and love.
 Where'er a tear was dried ; a wounded heart
 Bound up ; a bruised spirit with the dew
 Of sympathy anointed ; or a pang
 Of honest suffering soothed ; or injury
 Repeated oft, as oft by love forgiven ;

Where'er an evil passion was subdued,
 Or Virtue's feeble embers fanned ; where'er
 A sin was heartily abjured, and left ;
 Where'er a pious act was done, or breathed
 A pious prayer, or wished a pious wish—
 There was a high and holy place, a spot
 Of sacred light, a most religious fane,
 Where Happiness, descending, sat and smiled.

But these apart. In sacred memory lives
 The morn of life ; first morn of endless days.
 Most joyful morn ! nor yet for nought the joy :
 A being of eternal date commenced ;
 A young immortal then was born ; and who
 Shall tell what strange variety of bliss
 Burst on the infant soul, when first it looked Abroad on God's creation fair, and saw
 The glorious earth, and glorious heaven, and face
 Of man sublime ? and saw all new, and felt
 All new ? when thought awoke ; thought never more
 To sleep ? when first it saw, heard, reasoned, willed
 And triumphed in the warmth of conscious life ?

Nor happy only ; but the cause of joy,
 Which those who never tasted always mourned.
 What tongue? no tongue shall tell what bliss o'erflowed
 The mother's tender heart, while round her hung
 The offspring of her love, and lisped her name ;
 As living Jewels dropt unstained from heaven,
 That made her fairer far, and sweeter seem,
 Than every ornament of costliest hue.
 And who hath not been ravished, as she passed
 With all her playful band of little ones,
 Like Luna, with her daughters of the sky,
 Walking in matron majesty and grace ?
 All who had hearts, here pleasure found : and oft
 Have I, when tired with heavy task, for tasks,
 Were heavy in the world below, relaxed
 My weary thoughts among their guiltless sports ;

And led them by their little hands afield ;
 And watched them run and crop the tempting flower,
 Which oft, unasked, they brought me, and bestow'd
 With smiling face, that waited for a look
 Of praise—and answered curious questions, put
 In much simplicity, but ill to solve :
 And heard their observations strange and new,
 And settled whiles their little quarrels, soon
 Ending in peace, and soon forgot in love.
 And still I looked upon their loveliness ;
 And sought through nature for similitudes
 Of perfect beauty, innocence, and bliss,
 And fairest imagery around me thronged :—
 Dew-drops at day-spring on a seraph's locks ;
 Roses that bathe about the well of life ;
 Young Loves, young Hopes, dancing on Morning's cheek ;
 Gems leaping in the coronet of love :
 So beautiful, so full of life, they seemed
 As made entire of beams of angel's eyes.
 Gay, guileless, sportive, lovely, little things !
 Playing around the den of sorrow, clad
 In smiles ; believing in their fairy hopes ;
 And thinking man and woman true : all joy :
 Happy all day, and happy all the night.

Hail, holy love ! thou word that sums all bliss !
 Gives and receives all bliss ; fullest when most
 Thou givest. Spring-head of all felicity !
 Deepest when most is drawn. Emblem of God !
 Overflowing most when greatest numbers drink :
 Essence that binds the uncreated Three :
 Chain that unites creation to its Lord :
 Centre to which all being gravitates :
 Eternal, evergrowing, happy love !
 Enduring all, hoping, forgiving all ;
 Instead of law, fulfilling every law.
 Entirely blest, because thou seek'st no more ;
 Hopes not, nor fears ; but on the present lives,

And holds perfection smiling in thy arms.
 Mysterious, infinite, exhaustless love !
 On earth mysterious, and mysterious still
 In heaven : sweet chord, that harmonizes all
 The harps of Paradise : the spring, the well,
 That fills the bowl, and banquet of the sky.

But why should I to thee of love divine ?
 Who happy, and not eloquent of love ?
 Who holy, and as thou art, pure, and not
 A temple where her glory ever dwells,
 Where burn her fires, and beams her perfect eye ?

Kindred to this, part of this holy flame,
 Was youthful love—the sweetest boon of Earth.
 Hail love ! first love, thou word that sums all bliss
 The sparkling cream of all Time's blessedness,
 The silken down of happiness complete :
 Discerner of the ripest grapes of joy—
 She gathered and selected with her bane.
 All finest relishes, all fairest sights ;
 All rarest odors, all divinest sounds ;
 All thoughts, all feelings dearest to the soul ;
 And brought the holy mixture home, and filled
 The heart with all superlatives of bliss.
 But who would that expound which words transcends,
 Must talk in vain—Behold a meeting scene
 Of early love, and thence infer its worth.

It was an eve of Autumn's holiest mood ;
 The corn fields, bathed in Cynthia's silver light,
 Stood ready for the reaper's gathering hand ;
 And all the winds slept soundly ; Nature seemed,
 In silent contemplation, to adore
 Its maker : now and then the aged leaf
 Fell from its fellows, rustling to the ground ;
 And, as it fell, bade man think on his end.
 On vale and lake, on wood and mountain high,
 With pensive wing outspread, sat heavenly thought,

Conversing with itself : Vesper looked forth,
 From out her westerly hermitage, and smiled ;
 And up the east unclouded rode the Moon
 With all her stars, gazing on earth intense,
 As if she saw some wonder walking there.

Such was the night—so lovely, still, serene ;
 When, by a hermit thorn that on the hill
 Had seen a hundred flowery ages pass,
 A damsel kneeled to offer up her prayer ;
 Her prayer nightly offered, nightly heard.
 This ancient thorn had been the meeting place
 Of love, before his country's voice had called
 The ardent youth to fields of honor far
 Beyond the wave. And hither now repaired,
 Nightly, the maid ; by God's all-seeing eye
 Seen only, while she sought this boon alone :—
 Her lover's safety, and his quick return.
 In holy, bumble attitude she kneeled ;
 And to her bosom, fair as moon-beam pressed
 One hand, the other lifted up to heaven ;
 Her eye upturned, bright as the star of morn,
 As violet meek, excessive ardor streamed,
 Wafting away her earnest heart to God.
 Her voice scarce uttered ; soft as Zephyr sighs
 On morning lily's cheek ; tho' soft and low
 Yet heard in heaven, heard at the mercy-seat,
 A tear-drop wandered on her lovely face :
 It was a tear of faith, and holy fear,
 Pure as the drops that hang at dawning time,
 On yonder willows by the stream of life.
 On her the moon looked stedfastly, the stars,
 That circle nightly round the eternal throne,
 Glanced down, well pleased ; and everlasting love
 Gave gracious audience to her prayer sincere.

O had her lover seen her thus alone,
 Thus holy, wrestling thus, and all for him !
 Nor did he not : for oft-times Providence,

With unexpected joy the fervent prayer
 Of faith surprised :—returned from long delay,
 With glory crowned of righteous actions won,
 The sacred thorn to memory dear, first sought
 The youth, and found it at the happy hour,
 Just when the damsel kneeled herself to pray.
 Wrapt in devotion, pleading with her God,
 She saw him not, heard not his foot approach.
 All holy images seemed too impure
 To emblem her he saw. A seraph kneeled,
 Beseeching for his ward, before the throne,
 Seemed fittest, pleased him best. Sweet was the thought ;
 But sweeter still the kind remembrance came,
 That she was flesh and blood, formed for himself,
 The plighted partner of his future life.
 And as they met, embraced, and sat embowered
 In woody chambers of the starry night,—
 Spirits of love about them ministered,
 And God approving, blessed the holy joy.

Nor unremembered is the hour when friends
 Met ; friends but few on earth, and therefore dear.
 Sought oft, and sought almost as of in vain :
 Yet always sought ; so native to the heart,
 So much desired, and coveted by all.
 Nor wonder thou—thou wonder'st not, nor need'st:
 Much beautiful, and excellent, and fair
 Was seen beneath the sun : but nought was seen
 More beautiful, or excellent, or fair
 Than face of faithful friend ; fairest when seen
 In darkest day. And many sounds were sweet,
 Most ravishing, and pleasant to the ear ;
 But sweeter none than voice of faithful friend ;
 Sweet always, sweetest heard in loudest storm.
 Some I remember, and will ne'er forget ;
 My early friends, friends of my evil day ;
 Friends in my mirth, friends in my misery too ,
 Friends given by God in mercy and in love ;

My counsellors, my comforters, and guides ;
 My joy in grief, my second bliss in joy ;
 Companions of my young desires ; in doubt
 My oracles, my wings in high pursuit.
 O, I remember, and will ne'er forget,
 Our meeting spots, our chosen sacred hours ;
 Our burning words, that uttered all the soul ;
 Our faces beaming with unearthly love ;—
 Sorrow with sorrow sighing, hope with hope
 Exulting, heart embracing heart entire.
 As birds of social feather helping each
 His fellow's flight, we soared into the skies,
 And cast the clouds beneath our feet, and earth,
 With all her tardy leaden-footed cares,
 And talked the speech, and ate the food of heaven.
 These I remember, these selectest men ;
 And would their names record—but what avails
 My mention of their name : before the throne
 They stand illustrious 'mong the loudest harps,
 And will receive thee glad, my friend and theirs
 For all are friends in heaven ; all faithful friends :
 And many friendships in the days of Time
 Begun, are lasting here, and growing still :
 So grows ours evermore, both theirs and mine.

Nor is the hour of lonely walk forgot,
 In the wide desert, where the view was large.
 Pleasant were many scenes, but most to me
 The solitude of vast extent, untouched
 By hand of art, where nature sowed, herself,
 And reaped her crops; whose garments were the clouds
 Whose minstrels, brooks ; whose lamps, the moor
 and stars ;
 Whose organ-quire, the voice of many waters ;
 Whose banquets, morning dews; whose heroes, storms
 Whose warriors, mighty winds; whose lovers, flowers
 Whose orators, the thunderbolts of God ;
 Whose palaces, the everlasting hills ;
 Whose ceiling, heaven's unfathomable blue ;

And from whose rocky turrets battled high,
 Prospect immense spread out on all sides round ;
 Lost now between the welkin and the main,
 Now walled with hills that slept above the storm.

Most fit was such a place for musing men ;
 Happiest sometimes when musing without aim.
 It was indeed a wondrous sort of bliss
 The lonely bard enjoyed, when forth he walked
 Unpurposed ; stood, and knew not why ; sat down,
 And knew not where ; arose, and knew not when ;
 Had eyes, and saw not ; ears, and nothing heard ;
 And sought—sought neither heaven nor earth—sought
 nought,
 Nor meant to think ; but ran, meantime, thro' vast
 Of visionary things, fairer than aught
 That was ; and saw the distant tops of thoughts,
 Which men of common stature never saw,
 Greater than aught that largest words could hold,
 Or give idea of, to those who read.
 He entered in to Nature's holy place,
 Her inner chamber, and beheld her face
 Unveiled ; and heard unutterable things,
 And incomunicable visions saw :—
 Things then unutterable, and visions then
 Of incomunicable glory bright ;
 But by the lips of after ages formed
 To words, or by their pencil pictured forth :
 Who entering farther in beheld again,
 And heard unspeakable and marvellous things,
 Which other ages in their turn revealed ;
 And left to others greater wonders still.

The earth abounded much in silent wastes ;
 Nor yet is heaven without its solitudes,
 Else incomplete in bliss, whither who will
 May oft retire, and meditate alone,
 Of God, redemption, holiness, and love :
 Nor needs to fear a setting sun, or haste

Him home from rainy tempest unforeseen ;
Or, sighing, leave his thoughts for want of time.

But whatsoever was both good and fair,
And highest relish of enjoyment gave,
In intellectual exercise was found :
When gazing through the future, present, past,
Inspired thought linked to thought, harmonious flowed
In poetry—the loftiest mood of mind.
Or when philosophy the reason led
Deep thro' the outward circumstance of things ;
And saw the master wheels of Nature move ;
And travelled far along the endless line
Of certain and of probable ; and made,
At every step, some new discovery,
That gave the soul sweet sense of larger room.
High these pursuits—and sooner to be named
Deserved ; at present only named ; again
To be resumed, and praised in longer verse.

Abundant and diversified above
All number, were the sources of delight ;
As infinite as were the lips that drank ;
And to the pure, all innocent and pure ;
The simplest still to wisest men the best.
One made acquaintanceship with plants and flowers,
And happy grew in telling all their names.
One classed the quadrupeds ; a third the fowls ;
Another found in minerals his joy.
And I have seen a man, a worthy man,
In happy mood conversing with a fly ;
And as he through his glass made by himself,
Beheld its wondrous eye, and plumage fine,
From leaping scarce he kept for perfect joy.

And from my path, I with my friend have turned,
A man of excellent mind, and excellent heart,
And climbed the neighboring hill, with arduous step,
Fetching from distant cairn, or from the earth

Digging with labor sore, the ponderous stone,
 Which having carried to the highest top,
 We downward rolled ; and as it strove at first
 With obstacles that seemed to match its force,
 With feeble crooked motion to and fro
 Wavering, he looked with interest most intense,
 And prayed almost ; and as it gathered strength,
 And straitened the current of its furious flow--
 Exulting in the swiftness of its course,
 And rising now with rainbow-bound immense,
 Leaped down careering o'er the subject plain,
 He clapped his hands in sign of boundless bliss ;
 And laughed and talked, well paid for all his toil :
 And when at night the story was rehearsed,
 Uncommon glory kindled in his eye.

And there were too—harp ! lift thy voice on high,
 And run in rapid numbers o'er the face
 Of Nature's scenery—and there were day
 And night ; and rising suns, and setting suns ;
 And clouds, that seemed like chariots of saints,
 By fiery coursers drawn—as brightly hued,
 As if the glorious, bushy, golden locks
 Of thousand cherubim, had been shorn off,
 And on the temples hung of morn and even.
 And there were moons, and stars, and darkness streaked
 With light ; and voice of tempest heard secure.
 And there were seasons coming evermore,
 And going still, all fair, and always new,
 With bloom, and fruit, and fields of hoary grain.
 And there were hills of flock, and groves of song ;
 And flowery streams, and garden walks embowered,
 Where side by side the rose and lily bloomed.
 And sacred founts, wild harps, and moonlight glens
 And forest's vast, fair lawns, and lonely oaks
 And little willows sipping at the brook :
 Old wizard haunts, and dancing seats of mirth ;
 Gay festive bowers, and palaces in dust ;
 Dark owl-nooks, and caves, and battled rocks ;

And winding vallies, roofed with pendant shade ;
And tall and perilous cliffs, that overlooked
The breadth of ocean, sleeping on his waves.
Sounds, sights, smells, tastes ; the heaven and earth,
profuse
In endless sweets, above all praise of song :
For not to use alone did Providence
Abound, but large example gave to man
Of grace, and ornament, and splendor rich ;
Suited abundantly to every taste,
In bird, beast, fish, winged and creeping thing ;
In herb and flower ; and in the restless change,
Which on the many-colored seasons made
The annual circuit of the fruitful earth.

Nor do I aught of earthly sorri remember,—
If partial feeling to my native place
Lead not my lyre astray,—of fairer view,
And comelier walk, than the blue mountain-paths,
And snowy cliffs of Albion renowned ;
Albion, an isle long blessed with gracious laws,
And gracious kings, and favored much of Heaven :
Though yielding oft penurious gratitude.
Nor do I of that isle remember aught
Of prospect more sublime and beautiful,
Than Scotia's northern battlement of hills,
Which first I from my father's house beheld,
At dawn of life : beloved in memory still ;
And standard still of rural imagery :
What most resembles them, the fairest seems,
And stirs the eldest sentiments of bliss ;
And pictured on the tablet of my heart,
Their distant shapes eternally remain,
And in my dreams their cloudy tops arise.

Much of my native scenery appears,
And presses forward to be in my song ;
But must not now : for much behind awaits
Of higher note. Four trees I pass not by,

Which o'er our house their evening shadow threw :—
 Three ash, and one of elm : tall trees they were,
 And old ; and had been old a century
 Before my day : none living could say ought
 About their youth ; but they were goodly trees :
 And oft I wondered, as I sat and thought
 Beneath their summer shade, or in the night
 Of winter, heard the spirits of the wind
 Growling among their boughs,—how they had grown
 So high, in such a rough tempestuous place :
 And when a hapless branch, torn by the blast,
 Fell down, I mourned, as if a friend had fallen.

These I distinctly hold in memory still,
 And all the desert scenery around.
 Nor strange, that recollection there should dwell,
 Where first I heard of God's redeeming love ;
 First felt and reasoned, loved and was beloved,
 And first awoke the harp to holy song.

To hoar and green there was enough of joy.
 Hopes, friendships, charities, and warm pursuit,
 Gave comfortable flow to youthful blood.
 And there were old remembrances of days,
 When on the glittering dews of orient life,
 Shone sunshine hopes—unfailed, unperjured then :
 And there were childish sports, and school-boy feats,
 And school-boy sports, and earnest vows of love,
 Uttered, when passion's boisterous tide ran high ;
 Sincerely uttered, though but seldom kept :
 And there were angel looks ; and sacred hours
 Of rapture ; hours that in a moment passed,
 And yet were wished to last for evermore :
 And venturesome exploits ; and hardy deeds ;
 And bargains shrewd, achieved in manhood's prime ;
 And thousand recollections, gay and sweet,
 Which, as 'he old and venerable man
 Approached the grave, around him, smiling, flocked ;
 And breathed new ardor through his ebbing veins ;

And touched his lips with endless eloquence ;
And cheered, and much refreshed his withered heart.

Indeed, each thing remembered, all but guilt,
Was pleasant, and a constant source of joy.
Nor lived the old on memory alone.
He in his children lived a second life ;
With them again took root ; sprang with their hopes ;
Entered into their schemes ; partook their fears ;
Laughed in their mirth ; and in their gain grew rich.
And sometimes on the eldest cheek was seen
A smile as hearty as on face of youth,
That saw in prospect sunny hopes invite,
Hope's pleasures—sung to harp of sweetest note ;
Harp, heard with rapture on Britannia's hills ;
With rapture heard by me, in morn of life.

Nor small the joy of rest to mortal men ;
Rest after labor ; sleep approaching soft,
And wrapping all the weary faculties
In sweet repose. Then Fancy, unrestrained
By sense or judgment, strange confusion made,
Of future, present, past ; combining things
Unseemly, things unsociable in Nature,
In most absurd communion, laughable,
Tho' sometimes vexing sore the slumbering soul.
Sporting at will, she thro' her airy halls—
With moon beams paved, and canopied with stars,
And tapestried with marvellous imagery,
And shapes of glory, infinitely fair,
Moving and mixing in most wondrous dance—
Fantastically walked ; but pleased so well,
That ill she liked the judgment's voice severe,
Which called her home when noisy morn awoke.
And oft she sprang beyond the bounds of Time,
On her swift pinion lifting up the souls
Of righteous men, on high, to God, and heaven,
Where they beheld unutterable things ;
And heard the glorious music of the blest,

Circling the throne of the Eternal Three ;
 And with the spirits unincarnate took
 Celestial pastime, on the hills of God ;
 Forgetful of the gloomy pass between.

Some dreams were useless—moved by turbid course
 Of animal disorder ; not so all :
 Deep moral lessons some impressed, that nought
 Could afterwards deface. And oft in dreams,
 The master passion of the soul displayed
 His huge deformity, concealed by day—
 Warning the sleeper to beware, awake.
 And oft in dreams, the reprobate and vile,
 Unpardonable sinner—as he seemed
 Toppling upon the perilous edge of hell—
 In dreadful apparition, saw before
 His vision pass, the shadows of the damned ;
 And saw the glare of hollow, cursed eyes,
 Spring from the skirts of the infernal night ;
 And saw the souls of wicked men, new dead,
 By devils hearsed into the fiery gulf ;
 And heard the burning of the endless flames ;
 And heard the weltering of the waves of wrath.
 And sometimes, too, before his fancy, passed
 The Worm that never dies, writhing its fold
 In hideous sort, and with eternal Death
 Held horrid colloquy ; giving the wretch
 Unwelcome earnest of the wo to come.
 But these we leave, as unbefitting song,
 That promised happy narrative of joy.

But what of all the joys of earth was most
 Of native growth, most proper to the soil—
 Not elsewhere known, in worlds that never fell—
 Was joy that sprung from disappointed wo.
 The joy in grief ; the pleasure after pain ;
 Fears turned to hopes ; meetings expected not ;
 Deliverances from dangerous attitudes ;
 Better for worse ; and best sometimes for worst ;

And all the seeming ill, ending in good—
A sort of happiness composed, which none
Has had experience of, but mortal man.
Yet not to be despised. Look back, and one
Behold, who would not give her tear for all
The smiles that dance about the cheek of Mirth.

Among the tombs she walks at noon of night,
In miserable garb of widowhood.
Observe her yonder, sickly, pale, and sad,
Bending her wasted body o'er the grave
Of him who was the husband of her youth.
The moon-beams trembling thro' these ancient yews,
That stand like ranks of mourners round the bed
Of death, fall dismally upon her face ;
Her little, hollow, withered face, almost
Invisible—so worn away with wo :
The tread of hasty foot, passing so late,
Disturbs her not ; nor yet the roar of mirth,
From neighboring revelry ascending loud.
She hears, sees nought ; fears nought ; one thought alone
Fills all her heart and soul ; half hoping, half
Remembering, sad, unutterable thought !
Uttered by silence, and by tears alone.
Sweet tears ! the awful language, eloquent
Of infinite affection ; far too big
For words. She sheds not many now : that grass,
Which springs so rankly o'er the dead, has drunk
Already many showers of grief : a drop
Or two are all that now remain behind,
And from her eye that darts strange fiery beams,
At dreary intervals, drip down her cheek,
Falling most mournfully from bone to bone.
But yet she wants not tears : that babe, that hangs
Upon her breast, that babe that never saw
Its father—he was dead before its birth—
Helps her to weep, weeping before its time ;
Taught sorrow by the mother's melting voice,

Repeating oft the father's sacred name.
 Be not surprised at this expense of wo !
 The man she mourns was all she called her own :
 The music of her ear, light of her eye ;
 Desire of all her heart ; her hope, her fear :
 The element in which her passions lived—
 Dead now, or dying all. Nor long shall she
 Visit that place of skulls : night after night,
 She wears herself away : the moon beam now,
 That falls upon her unsubstantial frame,
 Scarce finds obstruction ; and upon her bones,
 Barren as leafless boughs in winter time,
 Her infant fastens his little hands, as oft,
 Forgetful, she leaves him a while unheld.
 But look, she passes not away in gloom :
 A light from far illumines her face ; a light
 That comes beyond the moon, beyond the sun—
 The light of truth divine ; the glorious hope
 Of resurrection at the promised morn,
 And meetings then which ne'er shall part again.

Indulge another note of kindred tone,
 Where grief was mixed with melancholy joy.

Oursights were numerous, and profuse our tears ;
 For she, we lost, was lovely, and we loved
 Her much : fresh in our memory, as fresh
 As yesterday, is yet the day she died.
 It was an April day ; and blithely all
 The youth of nature leaped beneath the sun,
 And promised glorious manhood ; and our hearts
 Were glad, and round them danced the lightsome blood.
 In healthy merriment—when tidings came,
 A child was born ; and tidings came again,
 That she who gave it birth was sick to death.
 So swift trod sorrow on the heel's of joy !
 We gathered round her bed, and bent our knees
 In fervent supplication to the Throne
 Of mercy : and perfumed our prayers with sighs

Sincere, and penitential tears, and looks
Of self-abasement ; but we sought to stay
An angel on the earth ; a spirit ripe
For heaven ; and Mercy, in her love, refused :
Most merciful, as oft, when seeming least !
Most gracious when she seemed the most to frown !
The room I well remember ; and the bed /
On which she lay ; and all the faces too /
That crowded dark and mournfully around.
Her father there, and mother bending stood,
And down their aged cheeks fell many drops
Of bitterness ; her husband, too, was there,
And brothers ; and they wept—her sisters, too,
Did weep and sorrow comfortless ; and I,
Too, wept, tho' not to weeping given : and all
Within the house was dolorous and sad.
This I remember well ; but better still,
I do remember, and will ne'er forget,
The dying eye—that eye alone was bright,
And brighter grew as nearer death approached :
As I have seen the gentle little flower
Look fairest in the silver bearn, which fell
Reflected from the thunder cloud that soon
Came down, and o'er the desert scattered far
And wide its loveliness. She made a sign
To bring her babe—'twas brought, and by her placed.
She looked upon its face, that neither smiled
Nor wept, nor knew who gazed upon't, and laid
Her hand upon its little breast ; and sought
For it, with look that seemed to penetrate
The heavens—unutterable blessings—such
As God to dying parents only granted,
For infants left behind them in the world.
“God keep my child,” we heard her say, and heard
No more : the Angel of the Covenant
Was come, and faithful to his promise stood
Prepared to walk with her thro’ death’s dark vale.
And now her eyes grew bright, and brighter still,
Too bright for ours to look upon, suffused

With many tears, and closed without a cloud.
 They set as sets the morning star, which goes
 Not down behind the darkened west, nor hides
 Obscured amoog the tempests of the sky,
 But melts away into the light of heaven.

Loves, friendships, hopes, and dear remembrances—
 'The kind embracings of the heart—and hours
 Of happy thought—and smiles coming to tears—
 And glories of the heaven and starry cope
 Above, and glories of the earth beneath—
 These were the rays that wandered through the gloom
 Of mortal life—wells of the wilderness ;
 Redeeming features in the face of Time ;
 Sweet drops, that made the mixed cup of Earth
 A palatable draught—too bitter else.

About the joys and pleasures of the world,
 This question was not seldom in debate—
 Whether the righteous man, or sinner, had
 The greatest share, and relished them the most ?
 Truth gives the answer thus, gives it distinct,
 Nor needs to reason long : The righteous man,
 For what was he denied of earthly growth,
 Worthy the name of good ? Truth answers—Nought.
 Had he not appetites, and sense, and will ?
 Might he not eat, if Providence allowed,
 The finest of the wheat ? Might he not drink
 The choicest wine ? True, he was temperate ;
 But then was temperance a foe to peace ?
 Might he not rise, and clothe himself in gold ?
 Ascend, and stand in palaces of kings ?
 True, he was honest still, and charitable :
 Were then these virtues foes to human peace ?
 Might he not do exploits, and gain a name ?
 Most true, he trod not down a fellow's right,
 Nor walked up to a throne on skulls of men ;
 Were justice, theo, and mercy, foes to peace ?
 Had he not friendships, loves, and smiles, and hopes ;

Sat not around his table sons and daughters ?
 Was not his ear with music pleased ? his eye
 With light ? his nostrils with perfumes ? his lips
 With pleasant relishes ? grew not his herds ?
 Fell not the rains upon his meadows ? reaped
 He not his harvests ? and did not his heart
 Revel at will thro' all the charities
 And sympathies of nature unconfined ?
 And were not these all sweetened, and sanctified
 By dews of holiness shed from above ?
 Might he not walk thro' fancy's airy halls ?
 Might be not History's ample page survey ?
 Might he not, finally, explore the depths
 Of mental, moral, natural, divine ?
 But why enumerate thus ? One word enough.
 There was no joy in all created things,
 No drop of sweet, that turned not in the end
 To sour, of which the righteous man did not
 Partake—partake, invited by the voice
 Of God, his Father's voice—who gave him all
 His heart's desire. And o'er the sinner still,
 The Christian had this one advantage more,
 That wheo his earthly pleasures failed, and fail
 They always did to every soul of man,
 He sent his hopes on high, looked up, and reached
 His sickle forth, and reaped the fields of heaven,
 And plucked the clusters from the vines of God.

Nor was the general aspect of the world
 Always a moral waste : a time there came,
 Tho' few believed it e'er should come, a time
 Typed by the Sabbath day recurring once
 In seven ; and by the year of rest indulged
 Septennial to the lands on Jordan's banks :
 A time foretold by Judah's bards in words
 Of fire : a time, seventh part of time, and set
 Before the eighth and last—the Sabbath day
 Of all the earth—when all had rest and peace.
 Before its coming many to and fro

Ran ; ran from various cause ; by many sent
 From various cause ; upright, and crooked both.
 Some sent, and ran for love of souls sincere ;
 And more at instance of a holy name.
 With godly zeal much vanity was mixed ;
 And circumstance of gaudy civil pomp ;
 And speeches buying praise for praise ; and lists,
 And endless scrolls, surcharged with modest names
 That sought the public eye ; and stories, told
 In quackish phrase, that hurt their credit, even
 When true—combined with wise and prudent means.
 Much wheat, much chaff, much gold, and much alloy :
 But God wrought with the whole—wrought most with what
 To man seemed weakest means—and brought result
 Of good from good and evil both ; and breathed
 Into the withered nations breath and life ;
 The breath and life of liberty and truth,
 By means of knowledge breathed into the soul.

Then was the evil day of tyranny !
 Of kingly and of priestly tyranny,
 That bruised the nations long. As yet, no state
 Beneath the heavens had tasted freedom's wine ;
 Tho' loud of freedom was the talk of all.
 Some groaned more deeply, being heavier tasked ;
 Some wrought with straw, and some without ; but all
 Were slaves or meant to be ; for rulers still
 Had been of equal mind—excepting few—
 Cruel, rapacious, tyrannous, and vile ;
 And had with equal shoulder propped the Beast.
 As yet, the Church, the holy spouse of God,
 In members few, had wandered in her weeds
 Of mourning, persecuted, scorned, reproached,
 And buffeted, and killed—in members few,
 Tho' seeming many whiles ; then fewest oft,
 When seeming most. She still had hung her harp
 Upon the willow-tree, and sighed, and wept
 From age to age. Satan began the war ;

And all his angels, and all wicked men,
Against her fought by wile, or fierce attack,
Six thousand years ; but fought in vain. She stood,
Troubled on every side, but not distressed :
Weeping, but yet despairing not ! cast down,
But not destroyed : for she upon the palms
Of God was graven, and precious in his sight,
As apple of his eye ; and like the bush
On Midia's mountain seen, burned unconsumed :
But to the wilderness retiring, dwelt,
Debased in sackcloth, and forlorn in tears.

As yet, had sung the scarlet-colored whore,
Who on the breast of civil power reposed
Her harlot head—the Church a harlot then,
When first she wedded civil power—and drunk
The blood of martyred saints ; whose priests were lords ;
Whose coffers held the gold of every land ;
Who held a cup of all pollutions full ;
Who with a double horn the people pushed ;
And raised her forehead, full of blasphemy,
Above the holy God, usurping oft
Jehovah's imcommunicable names.
The nations had been dark ; the Jews had pined,
Scattered without a name, beneath the curse ;
War had abounded ; Satan raged unchained ;
And earth had still been black with moral gloom.

But now the cry of men oppressed, went up
Before the Lord, and to remembrance came
The tears of all his saints—their tears, and groans.
Wise men had read the number of the name ;
The prophet-years had rolled ; the time, and times,
And half a time, were now fulfilled complete ;
The seven fierce vials of the wrath of God,
Poured by seven angels strong, were shed abroad
Upon the earth, and emptied to the dregs ;
The prophecy for conformation stood ;

And all was ready for the sword of God.

The righteous saw, and fled without delay,
 Into the chambers of Omnipotence :
 The wicked mocked, and sought for erring cause,
 To satisfy the dismal state of things—
 The public credit gone ; the fear in time
 Of peace ; the starving want in time of wealth ;
 The insurrection muttering in the streets ;
 And pallid consternation spreading wide ;
 And leagues, tho' holy termed, first ratified
 In hell, on purpose made to under-prop
 Iniquity, and crush the sacred truth.

Meantime a mighty angel stood in heaven,
 And cried aloud—Associate now yourselves,
 Ye princes ! potentates ! and men of war !
 And mitred heads ! associate now yourselves ;
 And be dispersed : embattle, and be broken :
 Gird on your armor, and be dashed to dust :
 Take counsel, and it shall be brought to naught :
 Speak, and it shall not stand.—And suddenly
 The armies of the saints imbannered stood
 On Zion hill ; and with them angels stood,
 In squadron bright, and chariots of fire ;
 And with them stood the Lord, clad like a man
 Of war, and to the sound of thunder, led
 The battle on. Earth shook, the kingdoms shook,
 The Beast, the lying Seer, dominions fell ;
 Thrones, tyrants fell, confounded in the dust,
 Scattered and driven before the breath of God,
 As chaff of summer threshing-floor before
 The wind. Three days the battle wasting slew.
 The sword was full, the arrow drunk with blood :
 And to the supper of Almighty God,
 Spread in Hamonah's vale, the fowls of heaven,
 And every beast invited came—and fed
 On captains' flesh, and drank the blood of kings.

And lo ! another angel stood in heaven,
 Crying aloud with mighty voice : Fallen, fallen,
 Is Babylon the Great—to rise no more !
 Rejoice, ye prophets ! over her rejoice,
 Apostles ! holy men, all saints, rejoice !
 And glory give to God, and to the Lamb.
 And all the armies of disburthened earth,
 As voice of many waters, and as voice
 Of thunderings, and voice of multitudes,
 Answered, Amen. And every hill and rock,
 And sea, and every beast, answered, Amen.
 Europa answered, and the farthest bounds
 Of woody Chili, Asia's fertile coasts,
 And Afric's burning wastes, answered, Amen.
 And Heaven, rejoicing, answered back, Amen.

Not so the wicked : they afar were heard
 Lamenting ; kings who drank her cup of whoredoms,
 Captains, and admirals, and mighty men,
 Who lived deliciously, and merchant's rich
 With merchandise of gold, and wine, and oil ;
 And those who traded in the souls of men—
 Known by their gaudy robes of priestly pomp ;
 All these afar off stood, crying, Alas !
 Alas ! and wept, and gnashed their teeth, and groaned ;
 And with the owl, that on her ruins sat,
 Made dolorous concert in the ear of Night.
 And over her again the heavens rejoiced,
 And earth returned again the loud response.

Thrice happy days! thrice blessed the man who saw
 Their dawn ! the Church and State, that long had held
 Unholy intercourse, were now divorced ;
 Princes were righteous men ; judges upright ;
 And first in general now—for in the worst
 Of times there were some honest seers—the priest
 Sought other than the fleece among his flocks,
 Best paid when God was honored most. And like
 A cedar, nourished well, Jerusalem grew,

And towered on high, and spread, and flourished fair ;
 And underneath her boughs the nation lodged ;
 All nations lodged, and sung the song of peace.
 From the four winds, the Jews, eased of the curse,
 Returned, and dwelt with God in Jacob's land,
 And drank of Sharon and of Carmel's vine.
 Satan was bound ; tho' bound, not banished quite ;
 But lurked about the timorous skirts of things,
 Ill lodged, and thinking whiles to leave the earth ;
 And with the wicked, for some wicked were,
 Held midnight meetings, as the saints were wont ;
 Fearful of day, who once was as the sun,
 And worshipped more. The bad, but few, became
 A taunt, and hissing now, as heretofore
 The good ; and blushing hastened out of sight.
 Disease was none : the voice of war, forgot :
 The sword, a share : a pruning-hook, the spear.
 Men grew and multiplied upon the earth,
 And filled the city, and the waste : and Death
 Stood waiting for the lapse of tardy age,
 That mocked him long. Men grew and multiplied :
 But lacked not bread : for God his promise brought
 To mind, and blessed the land with plenteous rain ;
 And made it blest, for dews, and precious things
 Of heaven, and blessings of the deep beneath ;
 And blessings of the sun, and moon ; and fruits
 Of day and night ; and blessings of the vale ;
 And precious things of the eternal hills ;
 And all the fullness of perpetual spring.

The prison-house, where chained felons pined,
 Threw open his ponderous doors ; let in the light
 Of heaven ; and grew into a Church, where God
 Was worshipped : none were ignorant ; selfish none :
 Love took the place of law ; where'er you met
 A man, you met a friend, sincere and true.
 Kind looks foretold as kind a heart within ;
 Words as they sounded, meant ; and promises
 Were made to be performed. Thrice happy days !

Philosophy was sanctified, and saw
 Perfection, which she thought a fable long.
 Revenge his dagger dropped, and kissed the hand
 Of Mercy : Anger cleared his cloudy brow,
 And sat with Peace : Envy grew red, and smiled
 On Worth : Pride stooped, and kissed Humility :
 Lust washed his miry hands, and, wedded, leaned
 On chaste Desire : and Falsehood laid aside
 His many-folded cloak, and bowed to Truth :
 And Treachery up from his mining came,
 And walked above the ground with righteous Faith :
 And Covetousness unclenched his sinewy hand,
 And opened his door to Charity, the fair :
 Hatred was lost in Love : and Vanity,
 With a good conscience pleased, her feathers cropped:
 Sloth in the morning rose with Industry :
 To Wisdom, Folly turned : and fashion turned
 Deception off, in act as good as word.
 The hand that held a whip was lifted up
 To bless ; slave was a word in ancient books
 Met only ; every man was free ; and all
 Feared God, and served him day and night in love.

How fair the daughter of Jerusalem then !
 How gloriously from Zion Hill she looked !
 Clothed with the sun ; and in her train the moon ;
 And on her head a coronet of stars ;
 And girdling round her waist, with heavenly grace,
 The bow of Mercy bright ; and in her hand,
 Immanuel's cross—her sceptre, and her hope.

Desire of every land ! The nations came,
 And worshipped at her feet ; all nations came,
 Flocking like doves. Columba's painted tribes,
 That from Magellan to the Frozen Bay,
 Beneath the Arctic dwelt, and drank the tides
 Of Amazonia, prince of earthly streams ;
 Or slept at noon beneath the giant shade
 Of Andes' mount ; or roving northward, heard

Niagara sing, from Erie's billow down
 To Frontenac, and hunted thence the fur
 To Labrador. And Afric's dusky swarms,
 That from Morocco to Angola dwelt,
 And drank the Niger from his native wells,
 Or roused the lion in Numidia's groves ;
 The tribes that sat among the fabled cliffs
 Of Atlas, looking to Atlanta's wave,
 With joy and melody arose and came ;
 Zara awoke, and came ; and Egypt came,
 Casting her idol gods into the Nile.
 Black Ethiopia, that shadowless,
 Beneath the Torrid burned, arose and came :
 Dauma and Medra, and the pirate tribes
 Of Algeri, with incense came, and pure
 Offerings, annoying now the seas no more.
 The silken tribes of Asia flocking came,
 Innumerous ; Ishmael's wandering race, that rode
 On camels o'er the spicy tract that lay
 From Persia to the Red Sea coast : the king
 Of broad Cathay, with numbers infinite,
 Of many lettered casts ; and all the tribes
 That dwelt from Tigris to the Ganges' wave ;
 And worshipped fire, or Brahma, fabled god !
 Cashimeres, Circassians, Banyans, tender race !
 That swept the insect from their path, and lived
 On herbs and fruits ; and those who peaceful dwelt
 Along the shady avenue that stretched
 From Agra to Lahore : and all the hosts
 That owned the Crescent late, deluded long.
 The Tartar hordes that roamed from Oby's bank,
 Ungoverned southward to the wondrous Wall.
 The tribes of Europe came ; the Greek redeemed
 From Turkish thrall ; the Spaniard came, and Gaul :
 And Britain with her ships ; and on his sledge,
 The Laplander, that nightly watched the bear
 Circling the Pole ; and those who saw the flames
 Of Hecla burn the drifted snow ; the Russ,
 Long whiskered and equestrian Pole ; and those

Who drank the Rhine, or lost the evening sun
 Behind the Alpine towers ; and she that sat
 By Arno, classic stream ; Venice and Rome,
 Head quarters long of sin ! first guileless now,
 And meaning as she seenied, stretched forth her hands.
 And all the isles of ocean, rose and catne,
 Whether they heard the roll of banished tides,
 Antipodes to Albion's wave ; or watched
 The moon ascending chalky Teneriffe,
 And with Atlanta holding nightly love.
 The Sun, the Moon, the Constellations came :
 Thrice twelve and ten that watch'd the Antarctic sleep ;
 Twice six that near the Ecliptic dwelt ; thrice twelve
 And one, that with the Streamers danced, and saw
 The Hyperborean ice guarding the Pole.
 The East, the West, the South, and snowy North,
 Rejoicing met, and worshipped reverently
 Before the Lord, in Zion's holy hill ;
 And all the places round about were blest.

The animals, as once in Eden, lived
 In peace : the wolf dwelt with the lamb ; the bear
 And leopard with the ox ; with looks of love,
 The tiger, and the scaly crocodile,
 Together met, at Gambia's palmy wave :
 Perched on the eagle's wing, the bird of song,
 Singing arose, and visited the sun ;
 And with the falcon sat the gentle lark.
 The little child leaped from his mother's arms,
 And stroked the crested snake, and roll'd unhurt
 Among his speckled waves—and wished him home.
 And sauntering school-boys, slow returning, played
 At eve about the lion's den, and wove,
 Into his shaggy mane, fantastic flowers :
 To meet the husbandman, early abroad,
 Hasted the deer, and waved its woody head :
 And round his dewy steps, the hare, unscared,
 Sported ; and toyed familiar with his dog :
 The flocks and herds, o'er hill and valley spread,

Exulting, cropp'd the ever-budding herb :
The desert blossomed, and the barren sung :
Justice and Mercy, Holiness and Love,
Among the people walked : Messiah reign'd :
And earth kept Jubilee a thousand years.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK VI.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK VI.

The Bard commences to sing of the final destruction of the earth. But checking himself, he sings of the time which followed the millennial rest.

Impiety and ungodliness abounded. Active ambition, and indolent sloth regained a general ascendancy, and sin in every form, as had existed before the millennium was renewed, and new forms were invented. The universal contempt of God was wholly wilful, for the age was polished and enlightened. Wondrous sights and strange forebodings gave presage of the earth's approaching dissolution. Perplexed, but not reformed, the race of men inquired the explanation of these prodigies; all warnings were soon forgotten, men continued following their guilty pleasures, and the earth filled up the measure of her wickedness.

A pause in the narrative ; as the numerous hosts of heaven look towards the unveiled Godhead, and join in the evening hymn of praise. The prophet Isaiah takes the harp, and before the throne, sings the holy song. At its close thousands of thousands Infinite, devoutly respond, Amen.

Course of Time.
BOOK VI.

RESUME thy tone of wo, immortal harp !
The song of mirth is past ; the Jubilee
Is ended ; and the sun begins to fade.
Soon past : for happiness counts not the hours ;
To her a thousand years seem as a day ;
A day a thousand years to misery.
Satan is loose, and Violence is heard,
And Riot in the street, and Revelry
Intoxicate, and Murder and Revenge.
Put on your armor now, ye righteous ! put
The helmet of salvation on, and gird
Your loins about with truth ; add righteousness,
And add the shield of faith ; and take the sword
Of God : awake ! and watch : the day is near ;
Great day of God Almighty, and the Lamb.
The harvest of the earth is fully ripe :
Vengeance begins to tread the great wine-press
Of fierceuess and of wrath ; and mercy pleads,
Mercy that pleaded long, she pleads no more.
Whence comes that darkness ? whence those yells of wo ?
What thunderings are these, that shake the world ?
Why fall the lamps from heaven as blasted figs ?
Why tremble righteous men ? why angels pale ?
Why is all fear ? what has become of hope ?
God comes ! God in his car of vengeance comes !

Hark ! louder on the blast, come hollow shrieks
Of dissolution ; in the fitful scowl
Of night, near and more near, angels of death
Incessant flap their deadly wings, and roar
Thro' all the fevered air : the mountains rock ;
The moon is sick ; and all the stars of heaven
Burn feebly ; oft and sudden gleams the fire,
Revealing awfully the brow of wrath.
The thunder, long and loud, utters his voice,
Responsive to the ocean's troubled growl.
Night comes, last night ; the long, dark, dark, dark night
That has no morn beyond it, and no star.
No eye of man hath seen a night like this !
Heaven's trampled justice girds itself for fight ;
Earth to thy knees, and cry for mercy ! cry
With earnest heart ; for thou art growing old
And hoary, unrepented, unforgiven :
And all thy glory mourns : thy vintage mourns ;
Bashan and Carmel mourn and weep : and mourn
Thou Lebanon ! with all thy cedars mourn.
Sun ! glorying in thy strength from age to age,
So long observant of thy hour, put on
Thy weeds of wo, and tell the moon to weep !
Utter thy grief at mid-day, morn, and even ;
Tell all the nations, tell the clouds that sit
About the portals of the east and west,
And wanton with thy golden locks, to wait
Thee not to-morrow ; for no morrow comes ;
Tell men and women, tell the new-born child,
And every eye that sees, to come, and see
Thee set behind Eternity ; for thou
Shalt go to bed to-night, and ne'er awake.
Stars ! walking on the pavement of the sky ;
Out-sentinels of heaven ! watching the earth,
Cease dancing now : your lamps are growing dim ;
Your graves are dug among the dismal clouds ;
And angels are assembling round your bier.
Orion, mourn ! and Mazzaroth, and thou,

Arcturus, mourn with all thy northern sons.
 Daughters of Pleiades ! that nightly shed
 Sweet influence : and thou, fairest of stars i
 Eye of the morning, weep—and weep at eve ;
 Weep setting, now to rise no more, “and flame
 On forehead of the dawn”—as sung the bard,
 Great hard ! who used on Earth a seraph’s lyre,
 Whose numbers wandered thro’ eternity,
 And gave sweet foretaste of the heavenly harps.
 Minstrel of sorrow ! native of the dark !
 Shrub-loving Philomel ! that wooed the Dews
 At midnight from their starry beds, and charmed,
 Held them around thy song till dawn awoke—
 Sad bird ! pour thro’ the gloom thy weeping song,
 Pour all thy dying melody of grief ;
 And with the turtle spread the wave of wo—
 Spare not thy reed, for thou shalt sing no more.

Ye holy bards ! if yet a holy bard
 Remain, what chord shall serve you now ? what harp !
 What harp shall sing the dying sun asleep,
 And mourn behind the funeral of the moon !
 What harp of boundless, deep, exhaustless wo,
 Shall utter forth the groanings of the damned !
 And sing the obsequies of wicked souls ;
 And wail their plunge in the eternal fire !
 Hold, hold your hands ; hold angels ; God laments,
 And draws a cloud of mourning round his throne ;
 The Organ of eternity is mute ;
 And there is silence in the Heaven of heavens.

Daughters of beauty ! choice of beings made !
 Much praised, much blamed, much loved ; but fairer far
 Than aught beheld ; than aught imagined else
 Fairest ; and dearer than all else most dear :
 Light of the darksome wilderness ! to Time
 As stars to night—whose eyes were spells that held
 The passenger forgetful of his way ;
 Whose steps were majesty ; whose words were song :

Whose smiles were hope; whose actions perfect grace;
 Whose love the solace, glory and delight
 Of man, his boast, his riches, his renown :
 When found, sufficient bliss ; when lost, despair :
 Stars of creation ! images of love !
 Break up the fountains of your tears ; your tears
 More eloquent than learned tongue, or lyre
 Of purest note ; your sunny raiment stain ;
 Put dust upon your heads ; lament and weep ;
 And utter all your minstrelsy of wo.

Go to, ye wicked, weep and howl ; for all
 That God hath written against you is at hand.
 The cry of violence hath reached his ear ;
 Hell is prepared ; and Justice whets his sword.
 Weep all of every name : begin the wo,
 Ye woods, and tell it to the doleful winds ;
 And doleful winds, wail to the howling hills ;
 And howling hills, mourn to the dismal vales ;
 And dismal vales, sigh to the sorrowing brooks ;
 And sorrowing brooks, weep to the weeping stream ;
 And weeping stream, awake the groaning deep ;
 And let the instrument take up the song,
 Responsive to the voice—harmonions wo !
 Ye heavens, great archway of the universe !
 Put sackcloth on ; and Ocean, clothe thyself
 In garb of widowhood, and gather all
 Thy waves into a groan, and utter it—
 Long, loud, deep, piercing, dolorous, immense :
 The occasion asks it ; Nature dies ; and God,
 And angels, come to lay her in the grave !

But we have overleaped our theme : behind
 A little season waits a verse or two :
 The years that followed the millennial rest.
 Bad years they were ; and first, as signal sure,
 That at the core religion was diseased,
 The sons of Levi strove again, for place,
 And eminence, and names of swelling pomp,

Setting their feet upon the people's neck,
 And slumbering in the lap of civil power ;
 Of civil power again tyrannical.
 And second sign, sure signo, whenever seen,
 That holiness was dying in a land,
 The Sabbath was profaned, and set at nought ;
 The honest seer, who spoke the truth of God
 Plainly, was left with empty walls ; and round
 The frothy orator who busked his tales
 In quackish pomp of noisy words, the ear
 Tickling, but leaving still the heart unprobed,
 The judgment uninformed,—numbers immense
 Flocked, gaping wide, with passions high inflamed
 And on the way returning, heated, home,
 Of eloquence and not of truth, conversed—
 Mean eloquence that wanted sacred truth.

Two principles from the beginning strove
 In human nature, still dividing man—
 Sloth and activity, the lust of praise,
 And indolence, that rather wished to sleep.
 And not unfrequently in the same mind,
 They dubious contest held ; one gaining now,
 And now the other crowned, and both again
 Keeping the field, with equal combat fought.
 Much different was their voice : Ambition called
 To action ; Sloth invited to repose.
 Ambition early rose, and, being up,
 Toiled ardently, and late retired to rest ;
 Sloth lay till mid-day, turning on his couch,
 Like ponderous door upon its weary hinge,
 And having rolled him out with much ado,
 And many a dismal sigh, and vain attempt,
 He sauntered out accoutred carelessly—
 With half-opened, misty, unobservant eye,
 Somniferous, that weighed the object down
 On which its burden fell—an hour or two,
 Then with a groan retired to rest again.
 The one, whatever deed had been achieved,

Thought it too little, and too small the praise :
The other tried to think, for thinking so
Answered his purpose best, that what of great
Mankind could do, had been already done ;
And therefore laid him calmly down to sleep.

Different in mode—destructive both alike :
Destructive always indolence ; and love
Of fame destructive always too, if less
Than praise of God it sought, content with less ;
Even then not current, if it sought his praise
From other motive than resistless love :
Tho' base, main-spring of action in the world ;
And under name of vanity and pride,
Was greatly practised on by cunning men.
It opened the niggard's purse ; clothed nakedness ;
Gave beggars food ; and threw the Pharisee
Upon his knees, and kept him long in act
Of prayer ; it spread the lace upon the fop,
His language trimmed, and planned his curious gait ;
It stuck the feather on the gay coquette,
And on her finger laid the heavy load
Of jewelry ; it did—what did it not ?
The gospel preached, the gospel paid, and sent
The gospel ; conquered nations ; cities built ;
Measured the furrow of the field with nice
Directed share ; shaped bulls, and cows, and rams ;
And threw the ponderous stone ; and pitiful,
Indeed, and much against the grain, it dragged
The stagnant, dull, predestinated fool,
Thro' learning's halls, and made him labor much
Abortively ; tho' sometimes not unpraised
He left the sage's chair, and home returned,
Making his simple mother think that she
Had borne a man. In schools, designed to root
Sin up, and plant the seeds of holiness
In youthful minds, it held a signal place.
The little infant man, by nature proud,
Was taught the Scriptures by the love of praise,

And grew religious as he grew in fame.
 And thus the principle, which out of heaven
 The devil threw, and threw him down to hell,
 And keeps him there, was made an instrument
 To moralize, and sanctify mankind ;
 And in their hearts beget humility :
 With what success it needs not now to say.

Destructive both we said, activity,
 And sloth—behold the last exemplified,
 In literary man. Not all at once,
 He yielded to the soothing voice of sleep ;
 But having seen a bough of laurel wave,
 He effort made to climb ; and friends, and even Himself, talked of his greatness, as at hand,
 And prophesying drew his future life.
 Vain prophecy ! his fancy, taught by sloth,
 Saw in the very threshold of pursuit,
 A thousand obstacles ; he halted first,
 And while he halted, saw his burning hopes,
 Grow dim and dimmer still ; ambition's self,
 The advocate of loudest tongue, decayed ;
 His purposes, made daily, daily broken,
 Like plant uprooted oft, and set again,
 More sickly grew, and daily wavered more
 Till at the last, decision, quite worn out,
 Decision, fulcrum of the mental powers,
 Resigned the blasted soul to staggering chance ;
 Sleep gathered fast, and weighed him downward still ;
 His eye fell heavy from the mount of fame ,
 His young resolves to benefit the world,
 Perished, and were forgotten ; he shut his ear
 Against the painful news of rising worth ;
 And drank with desperate thirst the poppy's juice ;
 A deep and mortal slumber settled down,
 Upon his weary faculties oppressed ;
 He rolled from side to side, and rolled again ;
 And snored, and groaned, and withered, and expired,
 And rotted on the spot, leaving no name.

The hero best example gives of toil
Unsanctified. One word his history writes :
He was a murderer above the laws,
And greatly praised for doing murderous deeds :
And now he grew, and reached his perfect growth ;
And also now the slattern soundest slept,
And by him lay the uninterred corpse.

Of every order, sin and wickedness,
Deliberate, cool, malicious villainy,
This age, attained maturity, unknown
Before : and seemed in travail to bring forth
Some last, enormous, monstrous deed of guilt—
Original, unprecedented guilt,
That might obliterate the memory
Of what had hitherto been done most vile.
Inventive men were paid, at public cost,
To plan new modes of sin : the holy word
Of God was burned with acclamations loud :
New tortures were invented for the good :
For still some good remained, as whiles thro' sky
Of thickest clouds, a wandering star appeared :
New oaths of blasphemy were framed, and sworn :
And men in reputation grew, as grew
The stature of their crimes. Faith was not found ;
Truth was not found ; truth always scarce ; so scarce
That half the misery which groaned on earth,
In ordinary times, was progeny
Of disappointment daily coming forth
From broken promises, that might have ne'er
Been made, or being made, might have been kept.
Justice and mercy too were rare, obscured
In cottage garb : before the palace door,
The beggar rotted, starving in his rags :
And on the threshold of luxurious domes,
The orphan child laid down his head, and died ;
Nor unamusing was his piteous cry
To women, who had now laid tenderness
Aside, best pleased with sights of cruelty ;

Flocking, when fouler lusts would give them time,
 To horrid spectacles of blood ; where men,
 Or guiltless beasts, that seemed to look to heaven,
 With eye imploring vengeance on the earth,
 Were tortured for the merriment of kings.
 The advocate for him who offered most
 Pleaded ; the scribe, according to the hire,
 Worded the lie, adding for every piece,
 An oath of confirmation ; judges raised
 One hand to intimate the sentence, death,
 Imprisonment, or fine, or loss of goods,
 And in the other held a lusty bribe
 Which they had taken to give the sentence wrong ,
 So managing the scale of justice still,
 That he was wanting found who poorest seemed.

But laymen, most renowned for devilish deeds,
 Labored at distance still behind the priest :
 He shore his sheep, and having packed the wool,
 Sent them unguarded to the hill of wolves ;
 And to the bowl deliberately sat down,
 And with his mistress mocked at sacred things.

The theatre was from the very first
 The favorite haunt of sin ; tho' honest men,
 Some very honest, wise, and worthy men,
 Maintained it might be turned to good account ;
 And so perhaps it might ; but never was.
 From first to last it was an evil place :
 And now such things were acted there, as made
 The devils blush : and from the neighborhood,
 Angels and holy men trembling retired.
 And what with dreadful aggravation crowned
 This dreary time was sin against the light :
 All men knew God, and knowing, disobeyed ,
 And gloried to insult him to his face.

Another feature only we shall mark.
 It was withal a highly polished age,

And scrupulous in ceremonious rite.
When stranger stranger met upon the way,
First each to each bowed most respectfully,
And large profession made of humble service,
And then the stronger took the other's purse.
And he that stabbed his neighbor to the heart,
Stabbed him politely, and returned the blade
Reeking into its sheath, with graceful air.

Meantime the earth gave symptoms of her end ;
And all the scenery above proclaimed,
That the great last catastrophe was near.
The sun at rising staggered and fell back ;
As one too early up, after a night
Of late debauch ; then rose and shone again,
Brighter than wont ; and sickened again, and paused
In zenith altitude, as one fatigued ;
And shed a feeble twilight ray at noon,
Rousing the wolf before his time to chase
The shepherd and his sheep, that sought for light,
And darkness found, astonished, terrified ;
Then out of course rolled furious down the west,
As chariot reined by awkward charioteer ;
And waiting at the gate, he on the earth
Gazed, as he thought he ne'er might see't again.
The bow of mercy, heretofore so fair,
Ribbed with the native hues of heavenly love,
Disastrous colors showed, unseen till now ;
Changiog upon the watery gulph, from pale
To fiery red, and back again to pale ;
And o'er it hovered wings of wrath. The moon,
Swaggered in midst of heaven, grew black, and dark,
Unclouded, uneclipsed. The stars fell down ;
Tumbling from off their towers like drunken men ;
Or seemed to fall—and glimmered now ; and now
Sprang out in sudden blaze ; and dimmed again ;
As lamp of foolish virgin lacking oil.
The heavens this moment looked serene ; the next
Glowed like an oven with God's displeasure hot.

Nor less below was intimation given
 Of some disaster great and ultimate.
 The tree that bloomed, or hung with clustering fruit,
 Untouched by visible calamity
 Of frost or tempest, died and came again :
 The flower, and herb, fell down as sick ; then rose
 And fell again : the fowls of every hue,
 Crowding together sailed on weary wing,
 And hovering, oft they seemed about to light ;
 Then soared, as if they thought the earth unsafe :
 The cattle looked with meaning face on man :
 Dogs howled, and seemed to see more than their masters :
 And there were sights that none had seen before ;
 And hollow, strange, unprecedented sounds :
 And earnest whisperings ran along the hills
 At dead of night ; and long, deep, endless sighs,
 Came from the dreary vale ; and from the waste
 Came horrid shrieks, and fierce unearthly groans,
 The wail of evil spirits, that now felt
 The hour of utter vengeance near at hand.
 The winds from every quarter blew at once,
 With desperate violence, and whirling, took
 The traveller up, and threw him down again,
 At distance from his path, confounded, pale.
 And shapes, strange shapes ! in winding sheets were seen,
 Gliding thro' night, and singing funeral songs,
 And imitating sad sepulchral rites :
 And voices talked among the clouds ; and still
 The words that men could catch, were spoken of them,
 And seemed to be the words of wonder great,
 And expectation of some vast event.
 Earth shook, and swam, and reeled, and opened her
 jaws,
 By earthquake tossed, and tumbled to and fro :
 And louder than the ear of man had heard,
 The thunder bellowed, and the ocean groaned.

The race of men, perplexed, but not reformed,
Flocking together, stood in earnest crowds,
Conversing of the awful state of things.
Some curious explanations gave, unlearned ;
Some tried affectedly to laugh ; and some
Gazed stupidly ; but all were sad, and pale ;
And wished the comment of the wise. Nor less,
These prodigies, occurring night and day,
Perplexed philosophy : the magi tried—
Magi, a name not seldom given to fools,
In the vocabulary of earthly speech—
They tried to trace them still to second cause ;
But scarcely satisfied themselves ; tho' round
Their deep deliberations crowding came,
And wondering at their wisdom, went away,
Much quieted, and very much deceived,
The people, always glad to be deceived.

These warnings passed—they unregarded passed :
And all in wonted order calmly moved.
The pulse of Nature regularly beat,
And on her cheek the bloom of perfect health
Again appeared. Deceitful pulse ! and bloom
Deceitful ! and deceitful calm ! The Earth
Was old and worn within ; but like the man,
Who noticed not his mid-day strength decline,
Sliding so gently round the curvature
Of life, from youth to age—she knew it not.
The calm was like the calm, which oft the man
Dying, experienced before his death :
The bloom was but a hectic flush, before
The eternal paleness : but all these were taken,
By this last race of men, for tokens of good.
And blustering public News, aloud proclaimed,
News always gabbling, ere they well had thought,
Prosperity, and joy, and peace ; and mocked
The man who kneeling prayed, and trembled still :
And all in earnest to their sins returned.

It was not so in heaven—the elders round
The throne conversed about the state of man,
Conjecturing, for none of certain knew,
That Time was at an end. They gazed intense
Upon the Dial's face, which yonder stands
In gold, before the Sun of Righteousness,
Jehovah ; and computes times, seasons, years,
And destinies ; and slowly numbers o'er
The mighty cycles of eternity ;
By God alone completely understood ;
But read by all, revealing much to all.
And now to saints of eldest skill, the ray,
Which on the gnomon fell of Time, seemed sent
From level west, and hastening quickly down.
The holy Virtues watching, saw besides,
Great preparation going on in heaven,
Betokening great event ; greater than aught
That first created seraphim had seen.
The faithful messengers, who have for wing
The lightning, waiting day and night, on God
Before his face—beyond their usual speed,
On pinion of celestial light were seen,
Coming and going, and their road was still
From heaven to earth, and back again to heaven.
The angel of Mercy, bent before the Throne,
By earnest pleading, seemed to hold the hand
Of vengeance back, and win a moment more
Of late repentance for some sinful world
In jeopardy. And now the hill of God,
The mountain of his majesty, rolled flames
Of fire ; now smiled with momentary love ;
And now again with fiery fierceness burned :
And from behind the darkness of his Throne,
Through which created vision never saw,
The living thunders in their native caves,
Muttered the terrors of Omnipotence.
And ready seemed, impatient to fulfil
Some errand of exterminating wrath.

Meanwhile the Earth increased in wickedness ;
And basted daily to fill up her cup.
Satan raged loose ; Sin had her will ; and Death
Enough : blood trod upon the heels of blood ;
Revenge, in desperate mood, at midnight met
Revenge ; war brayed to war ; deceit deceived
Deceit ; lie cheated lie ; and treachery
Mined under treachery ; and perjury
Swore back on perjury ; and blasphemy
Arose with hideous blasphemy ; and curse
Loud answered curse ; and drunkard stumbling fell
O'er drunkard fallen ; and husband husband met
Returning each from other's bed defiled ;
Thief stole from thief ; and robber on the way
Knocked robber down ; and lewdness, violence,
And hate, met lewdness, violence, and hate.
Oh Earth ! thy hour was come ; the last elect
Was born ; complete the number of the good ;
And the last sand fell from the glass of Time.
The cup of guilt was full up to the brim ;
And Mercy, weary with beseeching, had
Retired behind the sword of Justice, red
With ultimate and unrepenting wrath :
But man knew not : he o'er his bowl laughed loud ;
And prophesying, said : To-morrow shall
As this day be, and more abundant still—
As thou shalt hear. But hark ! the trumpet sounds
And calls to evening song ; for, though with hymn
Eternal, course succeeding course, extol
In presence of the incarnate, holy God,
And celebrate his never ending praise—
Duly at morn, and night, the multitudes
Of men redeemed, and angels, all the host
Of glory, join in universal song ;
And pour celestial harmony, from harps
Above all number, eloquent and sweet,
Above all thought of melody conceived.
And now behold the fair inhabitants,
Delightful sight ! from numerous business turn,

And round and round thro' all the extent of bliss,
Towards the temple of Jehovah bow,
And worship reverently before his face!

Pursuits are various here, suiting all tastes ;
Tho' holy all, and glorifying God.
Observe yon band pursue the sylvan stream,
Mounting among the cliffs—they pull the flower,
Springing as soon as pulled ; and marvelling, pry
Into its veins, and circulating blood,
And wondrous mimicry of higher life ;
Admire its colors, fragrance, gentle shape ;
And thence admire the God who made it so—
So simple, complex, and so beautiful.

Behold yon other band, in airy robes
Of bliss—they weave the sacred bower of rose
And myrtle shade, and shadowy verdant bay,
And laurel, towering high ; and round their song,
The pink and lily bring, and amaranth ;
Narcissus sweet, and jessamine ; and bring
The clustering vine, stooping with flower and fruit,
The peach and orange, and the sparkling stream,
Warbling with nectar to their lips unasked ;
And talk the while of everlasting love.

On yonder hill, behold another band,
Of piercing, steady, intellectual eye,
And spacious forehead, of sublimest thought—
They reason deep of present, future, past ;
And trace effect to cause ; and meditate
On the eternal laws of God, which bind
Circumference to centre ; and survey
With optic tubes, that fetch remotest stars
Near them, the systems circling round immense,
Innumerable. See how—as he, the sage,
Among the most renowned in days of Time,
Renowned for large, capacious, holy soul—
Demonstrates clearly, motion, gravity,
Attraction, and repulsion, still opposed ;

And dips into the deep, original,
Unknown, mysterious elements of things—
See how the face of every auditor
Expands with admiration of the skill,
Omnipotence, and boundless love of God !

These other, sitting near the tree of life,
In robes of linen flowing white and clean,
Of holiest aspect, of divinest soul,
Angels and men—into the glory look
Of the Redeeming Love, and turn the leaves
Of man's redemption o'er ; the secret leaves,
Which none on earth were found worthy to open ;
And as they read the mysteries divine,
The endless mysteries of Salvation wrought
By God's incarnate Son, they humbler bow
Before the Lamb, and glow with warmer love.

These other, there relaxed beneath the shade
Of yon embowering palms, with friendship smile,
And talk of ancient days, and young pursuits,
Of dangers past, of godly triumphs won ;
And sing the legends of their native land—
Less pleasing far than this their Father's house.

Behold that other band, half lifted up
Between the hill and dale, reclined beneath
The shadow of impending rocks ; 'mong streams
And thundering water-falls, and waving boughs,
That hand of countenance sublime, and sweet,
Whose eye with piercing intellectual ray,
Now beams severe, or now bewildered seems ;
Left rolling wild, or fixed in idle gaze,
While Fancy, and the soul are far from home—
These hold the pencil—art divine ! and throw
Before the eye remembered scenes of love ;
Each picturing to each the hills, and skies,
And treasured stories of the world he left :
Or, gazing on the scenery of heaven,

They dip their hand in color's native well,
 And, on the everlasting canvass, dash
 Figures of glory, imagery divine,
 With grace and grandeur in perfection knit.

But whatso'er these spirits blest pursue,
 Where'er they go, whatever sights they see
 Of glory and bliss thro' all the tracts of heaven
 The centre still, the figure eminent,
 Whither they ever turn, on whom all eyes
 Repose with infinite delight—is God,
 And his Incarnate Son, the Lamb, once slain
 On Calvary to ransom ruined men.

None idle here : look where thou wilt, they all
 Are active, all engaged in meet pursuit ;
 Not happy else. Hence is it that the song
 Of heaven is ever new ; for daily thus,
 And nightly, new discoveries are made,
 Of God's unbounded wisdom, power, and love,
 Which give the understanding larger room,
 And swell the hymn with ever-growing praise.

Behold they cease ! and every face to God
 Turns ; and we pause, from high poetic theune,
 Not worthy least of being sung in heaven,
 And on unveiled Godhead look from this,
 Our oft frequented hill.—He takes the harp,
 Nor needs to seek befitting phrase ; unsought,
 Numbers harmonious roll along the lyre,
 As river in its native bed, they flow
 Spontaneous, flowing with the tide of thought.
 He takes the harp—a bard of Judah leads
 This night the boundless song ; the bard that once,
 When Israel's king was sad and sick to death,
 A message brought of fifteen added years.
 Before the throne he stands sublime, in robes
 Of glory ; and now his fingers wake the chords
 To praise, which we, and all in heaven repeat.

Harps of eternity ! begin the song,
Redeemed, and angel harps ! begin to God,
Begin the anthem ever sweet and new,
While I extol Him holy, just, and good.
Life, beauty, light, intelligence, and love !
Eternal, uncreated, infinite !
Unsearchable Jehovah ! God of truth !
Maker, upholder, governor of all :
Thyself unmade, ungoverned, unupheld.
Omnipotent, unchangeable, Great God !
Exhaustless fullness ! giving unimpaired !
Bounding immensity, unspread, unbound !
Highest and best ! beginning, middle, end.
All seeing Eye ! all seeing, and unseen !
Hearing, unheard ! all knowing, and unknown !
Above all praise ! above all height of thought !
Proprietor of immortality !
Glory ineffable ! Bliss underived !
Of old thou built'st thy throne on righteousness,
Before the morning Stars their song began,
Or silence heard the voice of praise. Thou laid'st
Eternity's foundation stone, and saw'st
Life and existence out of Thee begin.
Mysterious more, the more displayed, where still
Upon thy glorious Throne thou sitt'st alone ;
Hast sat alone ; and shalt forever sit
Alone ; invisible, immortal One !
Behind essential brightness unbeheld.
Incomprehensible ! what weight shall weigh !
What measure measure Thee, what know we more,
Of Thee, what need to know, than thou hast taught
And bid'st us still repeat, at morn and even—
God ! everlasting Father ! Holy One !
Our God, our Father, our Eternal All.
Source whence we came ; and whither we return ;
Who made our spirits, who our bodies made ;
Who made the heaven, who made the flowery land ;
Who made all made ; who orders, governs all ;
Who walks upon the wind ; who holds the wave

In hollow of thy hand ; whom thunders wait ;
 Whom tempests serve ; whom flaming fires obey :
 Who guides the circuit of the endless years :
 And sitt'st on high, and mak'st creation's top
 Thy footstool ; and behold'st below Thee, all—
 All naught, all less than naught, and vanity.
 Like transient dust that hovers on the scale,
 Ten thousand worlds are scattered in thy breath.
 Thou sitt'st on high, and measures destinies,
 And days, and months, and wide revolving years :
 And dost according to thy holy will ;
 And none can stay thy hand ; and none withhold
 Thy glory ; for in judgment, Thou, as well
 As mercy, art exalted, day and night.
 Past, present, future, magnify thy name.
 Thy works all praise Thee ; all thy angels praise,
 Thy saints adore, and on thy altars burn
 The fragrant incense of perpetual love.
 They praise Thee now : their hearts, their voices
 praise,
 And swell the rapture of the glorious song.
 Harp ! lift thy voice on high—shout, angels, shout !
 And loudest ye redeemed ! glory to God,
 And to the Lamb, who bought us with his blood ;
 From every kindred, nation, people, tongue ;
 And washed, and sanctified, and saved our souls ;
 And gave us robes of linen pure, and crowns
 Of life, and made us kings and priests to God.
 Shout back to ancient Time ! Sing aloud, and wave
 Your palms of triumph ! sing, where is thy sting,
 O Death ? where is thy victory, O Grave ?
 Thanks be to God, eternal thanks, who gave Us victory through Jesus Christ, our Lord.
 Harp, lift thy voice on high ! shout, angels shout !
 And loudest ye redeemed ! glory to God,
 And to the Lamb—all glory and all praise ;
 All glory and all praise, at morn and even,
 That come and go eternally ; and find
 Us happy still, and Thee forever blest !

Glory to God, and to the Lamb. Amen.
Forever, and forever more. Amen.

And those who stood upon the sea of glass ;
And those who stood upon the battlements,
And lofty towers of New Jerusalem ;
And those who circling stood, bowing afar ;
Exalted on the everlasting hills,
Thousands of thousands—thousands infinite—
With voice of boundless love, answered : Amen.
And through eternity, near, and remote,
The worlds adoring, echoed back : Amen.
And God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost—
The One Eternal ! smiled superior bliss.
And every eye, and every face in heaven,
Reflecting, and reflected, beamed with love.

Nor did he not—the Virtue new arrived,
From Godhead gain an individual smile,
Of high acceptance, and of welcome high,
And confirmation evermore in good.
Meantime the landscape glowed with holy joy.
Zephyr, with wing dipt from the well of life,
Sporting through Paradise, shed living dews :
The flowers, the spicy shrubs, the lawns refreshed,
Breathed their selectest balm ; breathed odors, such
As angels love : and all the trees of heaven,
The cedar, pine, and everlasting oak,
Rejoicing on the mountains, clapped their hands.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK VII.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK VII.

After the Hymn, the relation is resumed. The transformation of the living, the resurrection of the dead, and the destruction of the Earth.

On the morn of the final day all the appearances of nature were as usual, at mid-day universal darkness prevailed, and all action, all motion ceased : and an angel from heaven proclaimed "Time should be no more." And another Angel sounded the Trump of God, when the dead awoke, and the living were changed.

A description of the circumstances connected with the momentous scene ; the living were changed in the midst of their several numerous avocations; in labor, study, pleasure, or crimes. The dead of every age and place raised to life ; in the cultivated field, in the wilderness, in populous cities, in the midst of ancient ruins, and from the great ocean.

Course of Time.

BOOK VII.

AS one who meditates at evening tide,
Wandering alone by voiceless solitudes,
And flies in fancy, far beyond the bounds
Of visible and vulgar things, and things
Discovered hitherto, pursuing tracts
As yet untravelled, and unknown, thro' vast
Of new and sweet imaginings ; if chance
Some airy harp, waked by the gentle sprites
Of twilight, or light touch of sylvan maid,
In soft succession fall upon his ear,
And fill the desert with its heavenly tones ;
He listens intense, and pleased exceedingly,
And wishes it may never stop ; yet when
It stops, grieves not ; but to his former thoughts
With fondest haste returns : so did the Seer,
So did his audience, after worship past,
And praise in heaven, return to sing, to hear
Of man ; not worthy less the sacred lyre
Or the attentive ear : and thus the bard,
Not unbesought, again resumed his song.

In cus'tomed glory bright, that morn the sun
Rose, visiting the ear'h with light, and heat,
And joy ; and seemed as full of youth, and strong
To mount the steep of heaven, as when the Stars.

Of morning sung to his first dawn, and night
Fled from his face : the spacious sky received
Him blushing as a bride, when on her looked
The bridegroom : and spread out beneath his eye,
Earth smiled. Up to his warm embrace the dews,
That all night long had wept his absence, flew :
The herbs and flowers, their fragrant stores unlocked,
And gave the wanton breeze, that newly woke,
Revelled in sweets, and from its wings shook health,
A thousand grateful smells : the joyous woods
Dried in his beams their locks, wet with the drops
Of night : and all the sons of music sung
Their matin song ; from arbored bower, the thrush
Concerting with the lark that hymned on high :
On the green hill the flocks, and in the vale
The herds rejoiced : and light of heart the bind
Eyed amorously the milk-maid as she passed,
Not heedless, though she looked another way.

No sign was there of change : all nature moved
In wonted harmony : men as they met
In morning salutation, praised the day,
And talked of common things : the husbandman
Prepared the soil, and silver tongued hope,
Promised another harvest : in the streets,
Each wishing to make profit of his neighbor,
Merchan's assembling, spoke of trying times,
Of bankruptcies, and markets glutted full :
Or crowding to the beach, where, to their ear,
The oath of foreign accent, and the noise
Uncouth of trade's rough sons, made music sweet,
Elate with certain gain, beheld the bark,
Expected long, enriched with other climes,
Into the harbor safely steer, or saw,
Parting with many a weeping farewell sad,
And blessing uttered rude, and sacred pledge,
The rich laden carack, bound to distant shore ;
And hopefully talked of her coming back,
With richer freight : or sitting at the desk.

In calculation deep and intricate,
Of loss and profit balancing, relieved,
At intervals, the irksome task, with thought
Of future ease, retired in villa snug.

With subtle look, amid his parchments sat
The lawyer, weaving his sophistries for court
To meet at mid-day. On his weary couch
Fat luxury, sick of the night's debauch,
Lay groaning, fretful at the obtrusive beam,
That through his lattice peeped derisively :
The restless miser had begun again
To count his heaps : before her toilet stood
The fair, and as with guileful skill she decked
Her loveliness, thought of the coming ball,
New lovers, or the sweeter nuptial night.
And evil men of desperate lawless life,
By oath of deep damnation leagued to ill
Remorselessly, fled from the face of day,
Against the innocent their counsel held,
Plotting unpardonable deeds of blood,
And villanies of fearful magnitude :
Despots secured behind a thousand bolts,
The workmanship of fear, forged chains for man :
Senates were meeting ; statesmen loudly talked
Of national resources, war and peace ;
And sagely balanced empires soon to end :
And faction's jaded minions, by the page
Paid for abuse, and oft repeated lies.
In daily prints, the thorough-fare of news,
For par'y schemes made interest, under cloak
Of liberty, and right, and public weal :
In holy conclave, bishops spoke of tythes,
And of the awful wickedness of men :
Intoxicate with sceptres, diadems,
And universal rule, and panting hard
For fame, heroes were leading on the brave
To battle : men, in science deeply read,
And academic theory foretold

Improvements vast : and learned sceptics proved
That earth should with eternity endure ;
Concluding madly that there was no God.

No sign of change appeared ; to every man
That day seemed as the past. From noon tide path
The sun looked gloriously on earth, and all
Her scenes of giddy folly smiled secure.
When suddenly alas, fair Earth ! the sun
Was wrapt in darkness, and his beams returned
Up to the throne of God ; and over all
The earth came night, moonless and starless night.
Nature stood still : the seas and rivers stood,
And all the winds ; and every living thing.
The cataract, that like a giant wroth,
Rushed down impetuously, as seized, at once,
By sudden frost with all his hoary locks,
Stood still : and beasts of every kind stood still.
A deep and dreadful silence reigned alone !
Hope died in every breast ; and on all men
Came fear and trembling : none to his neighbor spoke ;
Husband thought not of wife ; nor of her child
The mother ; nor friend of friend ; nor foe of foe.
In horrible suspense all mortals stood ;
And as they stood, and listened, chariots were heard
Rolling in heaven : revealed in flaming fire,
The angel of God appeared in stature vast,
Blazing ; and lifting up his hand on high,
By Him that lives for ever, swore, that Time
Should be no more.—Throughout creation heard
And sighed : all rivers, lakes, and seas, and woods ;
Desponding waste, and cultivated vale ;
Wild cave, and ancient hill, and every rock
Sighed : earth, arrested in her wonted path,
As ox struck by the lifted axe, when nought
Was feared, in all her entrails deeply groaned.
A universal crash was heard, as if
The ribs of nature broke, and all her dark
Foundations failed : and deadly paleness sat

On every face of man, and every heart
 Grew chill, and every knee his fellow smote.
 None spoke, none stirred, none wept ; for horror held
 All motionless, and fettered every tongue.
 Again o'er all the nations silence fell :
 And, in the heavens robed in excessive light,
 That drove the thick of darkness far aside,
 And walked with penetration keen thro' all
 The abodes of men, another angel stood,
 And blew the trump of God.—Awake, ye dead !
 Be changed, ye living ! and put on the garb
 Of immortality ! awake ! arise !
 The God of judgment comes. This said the voice :
 And silence from eternity that slept
 Beyond the sphere of the creating word,
 And all the noise of Time, awakened, heard.
 Heaven heard, and earth, and farthest hell thro' all
 Her regions of despair : the ear of Death
 Heard, and the sleep that for so long a night
 Pressed on his leaden eyelids, fled : and all
 The dead awoke, and all the living changed.

Old men, that on their staff, bending had leaned,
 Crazy and frail ; or sat, benumbed with age,
 In weary listlessness, ripe for the grave,
 Felt through their sluggish veins, and withered limbs,
 New vigor flow : the wrinkled face grew smooth ;
 Upon the head, that time had razored bare,
 Rose bushy locks ; and as his son in prime
 Of strength and youth, the aged father stood.
 Changing herself, the mother saw her son
 Grow up, and suddenly put on the form
 Of manhood : and the wretch, that begging sat
 Limbless, deformed, at corner of the way,
 Unmindful of his crutch, in joint and limb,
 Arose complete : and he that on the bed
 Of mortal sickness, worn with sore distress,
 Lay breathing forth his soul to death, felt now
 The tide of life and vigor rushing back ;

And looking up beheld his weeping wife,
 And daughter fond, that o'er him, bending stooped
 To close his eyes : the frantic madman too,
 In whose confused brain, reason had lost
 Her way, long driven at random to and fro,
 Grew sober, and his manacles fell off.
 The newly sheeted corpse arose, and stared
 On those who dressed it : and the coffined dead,
 That men were bearing to the tomb—awoke,
 And mingled with their friends : and armies which
 The trump surprised, met in the furious shock
 Of battle, saw the bleeding ranks, new fallen,
 Rise up at once, and to their ghastly cheeks
 Return the stream of life in healthy flow.
 And as the anatomist, with all his hand
 Of rude disciples, o'er the subject hung,
 And impolitely hewed his way, thro' bones
 And muscles of the sacred human form,
 Exposing barbarously to wanton gaze,
 The mysteries of nature—joint embraced
 His kindred joint, the wounded flesh grew op,
 And suddenly the injured man awoke,
 Among their hands, and stood arrayed complete
 In immortality—for giving scarce
 The insult offered to his clay in death.

That was the hour, long wished for by the good,
 Of universal Jubilee to all
 The sons of bondage ; from the oppressor's hand
 The scourge of violence fell ; and from his back,
 Heal'd of its stripes, the burden of the slave.

The youth of great religious soul—who sat
 Retired in voluntary loneliness,
 In reverie extravagant now wrapt,
 Or poring now on book of ancient date,
 With filial awe ; and dipping oft his pen
 To write immortal things ; to pleasure deaf
 And joys of common men ; working his way

With mighty energy, not uninspired,
 Thro' all the mines of thought ; reckless of pain,
 And weariness, and wasted health ; the scoff
 Of pride, or growl of Envy's hellish brood ;
 While Fancy, voyaged far beyond the bounds
 Of years revealed, heard many a future age,
 With commendation loud, repeat his name—
 False prophetess ! the day of change was come—
 Behind the shadow of eternity,
 He saw his visions set of earthly fame ;
 For ever set : nor sighed while thro' his veins
 In lighter current ran immortal life ;
 His form renewed to undecaying health ;
 To undecaying health his soul, erewhile
 Not tuned amiss to God's eternal praise.

All men in field and city ; by the way,
 On land or sea ; lolling in gorgeous hall,
 Or plying at the oar ; crawling in rags
 Obscure, or dazzling in embroidered gold ;
 Alone, in companies, at home, abroad ;
 In wanton merriment surprised and taken ;
 Or kneeling reverently in act of prayer ;
 Or cursing recklessly, or uttering lies ;
 Or lapping greedily from slander's cup
 The blood of reputation ; or between
 Friendships and brotherhoods devising strife ;
 Or plotting to defile a neighbor's bed ;
 In duel met with dagger of revenge ;
 Or casting on the widow's heritage
 The eye of covetousness ; or with full hand
 On mercy's noiseless errands unobserved
 Administering ; or meditating fraud
 And deeds of horrid barbarous intent ;
 In full pursuit of unexperienced hope,
 Fluttering along the flowery path of youth
 Or steeped in disappointment's bitterness—
 The fevered cup that guilt must ever drink,
 When parched and fainting on the road of ill :

Beggar and king, the clown and haughty lord ;
The venerable sage, and empty fop ;
The ancient matron, and the rosy bride ;
The virgin chaste, and shriveled harlot vile ;
The savage fierce, and man of science mild ;
The good and evil, in a moment, all
Were changed, corruptible to incorrupt,
And mortal to immortal ne'er to change.

And now descending from the bowers of heaven,
Soft airs o'er all the earth, spreading were heard,
And Hallelujahs sweet, the harmony
Of righteius souls that came to reposess
Their long neglected bodies : and anon
Upon the ear fell horribly the sound
Of cursing and the yells of damned despair,
Uttered by felon spirits that the trump
Had summoned from the burning glooms of hell,
To put their bodies on—reserved for wo.

Now starting up among the living changed,
Appeared innumorous the risen dead.
Each particle of dust was claimed : the turf,
For ages trod beneath the careless foot
Of men rose organized in human form ;
The monumental stones were rolled away ;
The doors of death were opened ; and in the dark
And loathsome vault, and silent charnel house,
Moving were heard the mouldered bones that sought
Their proper place. Instinctive every soul
Flew to its clayey part : from grass-grown mould,
The nameless spirit took its ashes up,
Reanimate : and merging from beneath
The flattered marble, undistinguished rose
The great—nor heeded once the lavish rhyme,
And costly pomp of sculptured garnish vain.
The Memphian mummy, that from age to age
Descending, bought and sold a thousand times,
In hall of curious antiquary, slowed,

Wrapt in mysterious weeds, the wondrous theme
 Of many an erring tale, shook off its rags ;
 And the brown son of Egypt stood beside
 The European, his last purchaser.
 In vale remote the hermit rose, surprised
 At crowds that rose around him, where he thought
 His slumbers had been single : and the bard,
 Who fondly covenanted with his friend
 To lay his bones beneath the sighing bough
 Of some old lonely tree, rising was pressed
 By multitudes, that claimed their proper dust
 From the same spot : and he, that richly hearsed,
 With gloomy garniture of purchased wo,
 Embalmed in princely sepulchre was laid,
 Apart from vulgar men, built nicely round
 And round by the proud heir who blushed to think
 His father's lordly clay should ever mix
 With peasant dust—saw by his side awake
 The clown that long had slumbered in his arms.

The family tomb, to whose devouring mouth
 Descended sire and son, age after age,
 In long unbroken hereditary line,
 Poured forth at once the ancient father rude,
 And all his offspring of a thousand years.
 Refreshed from sweet repose, awoke the man
 Of charitable life ; awoke and sung :
 And from his prison house, slowly, and sad,
 As if unsatisfied with holding near
 Communion with the ear'h, the miser drew
 His carcass forth, and gnashed his teeth, and howled,
 Unsolaced by his gold and silver then.
 From simple stone in lonely wilderness,
 That hoary lay, o'er-lettered by the hand
 Of oft frequenting pilgrim, who had taught
 • The willow tree to weep at morn and even
 Over the sacred spot—the martyr saint
 To song of seraph harp triumphant rose,
 Well pleased that he had suffered to the death.

"The cloud capped towers, the gorgeous palaces,"
As sung the bard by Nature's hand anointed,
In whose spacious giant numbers rolled
The passions of old Time, fell lumbering down.
All cities fell, and every work of man,
And gave their portion forth of human dust,
Touched by the mortal finger of decay.
Tree, herb, and flower, and every fowl of heaven,
And fish, and animal, the wild and tame,
Forthwith dissolving crumbled into dust.

Alas, ye sons of strength ! ye ancient oaks !
Ye holy pines ! ye elms ! and cedars tall !
Like towers of God, far seen on Carmel mount,
Or Lebanon, that waved your boughs on high,
And laughed at all the winds—your hour was come.
Ye laurels, ever green ! and bays, that wont
To wreath the patriot and the poets brow ;
Ye myrtle bowers ! and groves of sacred shade !
Where Music ever sung, and Zephyr fanned
His airy wing, wet with the dews of life,
And Spring for ever smiled, the fragrant haunt
Of Love, and Health, and ever dancing Mirth—
Alas ! how suddenly your verdure died,
And ceased your minstrelsy, to sing no more !
Ye flowers of beauty ! penciled by the hand
Of God who annually renewed your birth,
To gem the virgin robes of nature chaste,
Ye smiling featured daughters of the Sun !
Fairer than queenly bride, by Jordan's stream
Leading your gentle lives, retired, unseen ;
Or on the sainted cliffs on Zion hill,
Wandering, and holding with the heavenly dews,
In holy revelry, your nightly loves,
Watched by the stars, and offering every morn
Your incense grateful both to God and man,
Ye lovely gentle things ! alas, no spring
Shall ever wake you now ! ye withered all,
All in a moment drooped, and on your roots

The grasp of everlasting winter seized.
 Children of song ! ye birds that dwelt in air,
 And stole your notes from angels' lyres, and first
 In levee of the morn, with eulogy
 Ascending, hailed the advent of the dawn :
 Or, roosted on the pensive evening bough,
 In melancholy numbers sung the day
 To rest, your little wings, failing dissolved
 In middle air, and on your harmony
 Perpetual silence fell. Nor did his wing,
 That sailed in track of gods sublime, and fanned
 The sun, avail the eagle then ; quick smitten,
 His plumage withered in meridian height,
 And in the valley sunk, the lordly bird,
 A clod of clay. Before the ploughman, fell
 His steers, and in midway the furrow left :
 The shepherd saw his flocks around him, turn
 To dust : beneath his rider fell the steed
 To ruins : and the lion in his den
 Grew cold and stiff, or in the furious chase,
 With timid fawn, that scarcely missed his paws.
 On earth no living thing was seen but men,
 New changed, or rising from the opening tomb.

Athens, and Rome, and Babylon, and Tyre,
 And she that sat on Thames, queen of the seas !
 Cities once famed on earth, convulsed through all
 Their mighty ruins, threw their millions forth.
 Palmyra's dead, where desolation sat,
 From age to age, well pleased in solitude,
 And silence, save when traveller's foot, or owl
 Of night, or fragment mouldering down to dust,
 Broke faintly on his desert ear, awoke.
 And Salem, holy city, where the prince
 Of life, by death, a second life secured
 To man, and with him from the grave, redeemed,
 A chos-n number brought, to retine
 His great ascent on high, and give sure pledge
 That death was foiled,—her generations now

Gave up, of kings, and priests, and Pharisees :
Nor even the Sadducee, who fondly said
No morn of Resurrection e'er should come,
Could sit the summons ; to his ear did reach
The trumpet's voice ; and ill prepared for what
He oft had proved should never be, he rose
Reluctantly, and on his face began
To burn eternal shame. The cities too,
Of old ensepulchred beneath the flood,
Or deeply slumbering under mountains huge,
That earthquake—servant of the wrath of God—
Had on their wicked population thrown,
And marts of busy trade, long ploughed and sown,
By history unrecorded, or the song
Of bard, yet not forgotten their wickedness
In heaven—poured forth their ancient multitudes,
That vainly wished their sleep had never broke.
From battle-fields, where men by millions met
To murder each his fellow, and make sport
To kings and heroes—things long since forgot—
Innumerable armies rose, unbannered all,
Unpanopled, unpraised ; nor found a prince,
Or general then, to answer for their crimes.
The hero's slaves, and all the scarlet troops
Of antichrist, and all that fought for rule—
Many high-sounding names, familiar once
On earth, and praised exceedingly ; but now
Familiar most in hell—their dungeon fit,
Where they may war eternally with God's
Almighty thunderbolts, and win them pangs
Of keener wo—saw, as they sprung to life,
The widow, and the orphan ready stand,
And helpless virgin, ravished in their sport,
To plead against them at the coming Doom.
The Roman legions, boasting once how loud
Of liberty, and fighting bravely o'er
The torrid and the frigid zone ; the sands
Of burning Egypt, and the frozen hilts
Of snowy Albion, to make mankind

Their thralls, untaught that he who made or kept
 A slave, could ne'er himself be truly free—
 That morning gathered up their dust which lay
 Wide scattered over half the globe : nor saw
 Their eagled banners then. Sennacherib's hosts,
 Embattled once against the sons of God,
 With iousult bbold, quick as the noise of mirth,
 And revelry, sunk in their drunken camp,
 When death's dark angel, at the dead of night,
 Their vitals touched, and made each pulse stand still—
 Awoke in sorrow: and the multitudes
 Of Gog, and all the fated crew that warred
 Against the chosen saints, in the last days,
 At Armageddon, when the Lord came down.
 Mustering his hosts on Israel's holy hills,
 And from the treasures of his snow and hail
 Rained terror, and confusion rained, and death,
 And gave to all the beasts and fowls of heaven
 Of captain's flesh, and blood of men of war,
 A feast of many days—revived, and doomed
 To second death,—stood in Hamonah's vale.

Nor yet did all that fell in battle rise
 That day to wailing : here and there were seen,
 The patriot bands, that from his guilty throne
 The despot tore, unshackled nations made
 The prince respect the people's laws, drove back
 The wave of proud invasion, and rebuked
 The frantic fury of the multitude
 Rebelled, and fought and fell for liberty
 Right understood,—true heroes in the speech
 Of heaven, where words express the thoughts of him
 Who speaks—not undistinguished these, tho' few,
 That morn arose, with joy and melody.

All woke—the north and south gave up their dead:
 The caravan, that in mid-journey sunk,
 With all its merchandise, expected long,
 And long forgot, ingulphed beneath the tide

Of death, that the wild spirit of the winds,
 Swept in his wrath along the wilderness,
 In the wide desert woke, and saw all calm
 Around, and populous with risen men :
 Nor of his relics thought the pilgrim then,
 Nor merchant of his silks and spiceries.

And he—far voyaging from home and friends
 Too curious, with a mortal eye to peep
 Into the secrets of the Pole, forhid
 By nature, whom fierce winter seized, and froze
 To death, and wrapped in winding sheet of ice,
 And sung the requiem of his shivering ghost,
 With the loud organ of his mighty winds,
 And on his memory threw the snow of ages—
 Felt the long absent warmth of life return,
 And shook the frozen mountain from his bed.

All rose of every age, of every clime :
 Adam and Eve, the great progenitors
 Of all mankind, fair as they seemed that morn,
 When first they met in paradise, unfallen,
 Uncursed—from ancient slumber broke, where once
 Euphrates rolled his stream ; and by them stood,
 In stature equal, and in soul as large,
 Their last posterity—tho' poet's sung,
 And sages proved them far degenerate.

Blest sight ! not unobserved by angels, or
 Unpraised—that day 'mong men of every tribe
 And hue, from those who drank of Tenglio's stream,
 To those who nightly saw the hermit cross,
 In utmost south retired,—rising were seen,
 The fair and ruddy sons of Albion's land,
 How glad ! not those who travelled far, and sailed,
 To purchase human flesh ; or wreath the yoke
 Of vassalage on savage liberty ;
 Or suck large fortune from the sweat of slaves ;
 Or with refined knavery to cheat,

Politey villainous, untulored men
 Out of their property ; or gather shells,
 Intaglios rude, old pottery, and store
 Of mutilated gods of stone, and scraps
 Of barbarous epitaphs defaced to be
 Among the learned the theme of warm debate,
 And infinite conjecture, sagely wrong !
 But those, denied to self, to earthly fame
 Denied, and earthly wealth who kindred left,
 And home, and ease, and all the cultured joys,
 Conveniences, and delicate delights
 Of ripe society ; in the great cause
 Of man's salvation greatly valorous,
 The warriors of Messiah, messengers
 Of peace, and light, and life, whose eye unscaled
 Saw up the path of immortality,
 Far into bliss—saw men, immortal men,
 Wide wandering from the way ; eclipsed in night,
 Dark, moonless, moral night ; living like beasts ;
 Like beasts descending to the grave untaught
 Of life to come, unsanctified, unsaved :
 Who strong, tho' seeming weak ; who wartlike, tho'
 Unarmed with bow and sword ; appearing mad,
 'Tho' sounder than the schools alone e'er made
 The doctor's head ; devote to God and truth,
 And sworn to man's eternal weal—beyond
 Repentance sworn, or thought of turning back ;
 And casting far behind all earthly care,
 All countryships, all national regards,
 And enmities ; all narrow bournes of state
 And selfish policy ; beneath their feet
 Treading all fear of opposition down ;
 All fear of danger ; of reproach all fear ;
 And evil tongues ;—went forth, from Britain went,
 A noiseless band of heavenly soldiery,
 From out the armory of God equipped
 Invincible—to conquer sin ; to blow
 The trump of freedom in the despot's ear,
 To tell the bruled slave his manhood high,

His birthright liberty, and in his hand
To put the writ of manumission, signed
By God's own signature ; to drive away
From earth the dark infernal legionry
Of superstition, ignorance, and hell :
High on the pagan hills, where Satan sat
Encamped, and o'er the subject kingdoms threw
Perpetual night, to plant Immanuel's cross,
The ensign of the Gospel, blazing round
Immortal truth ; and in the wilderness
Of human waste to sow eternal life ;
And from the rock, where sin with horrid yell
Devoured its victims unredeemed, to raise
The melody of grateful hearts to Heaven.
To falsehood, truth ; to pride, humility ;
To insult, meekness ; pardon, to revenge ;
To stubborn prejudice, unwearied zeal ;
To censure, unaccusing minds ; to stripes,
Long suffering ; to want of things, hope ;
To death, assured faith of life to come,
Opposing—these, great worthies, rising, shone
Thro' all the tribes, and nations of mankind,
Like Hesper, glorious once among the stars,
Of twilight, and around them flocking stood
Arrayed in white, the people they had saved.

Great Ocean too, that morning, thou, the call
Of restitution heardst, and reverently
To the last trumpet's voice in silence listened !
Great Ocean ! strongest of creation's sons !
Unconquerable, unreposed, untired ;
That rolled the wild, profound, eternal bass,
In Nature's anthem, and made music, such
As pleased the ear of God. Original,
Unmarred, unfaded work of Deity ;
And unburlesqued by mortal's puny skill.
From age to age enduring and unchanged,
Majestical, inimitable, vast,
Loud uttering satire day and night on each

Succeeding race, and little pompous work
 Of man. Unfallen, religious, holy sea !
 Thou bowedst thy glorious head to none, fearest
 none,
 Heardst none, to none didst honor, but to God
 Thy maker—only worthy to receive
 Thy great obeisance. Undiscovered sea !
 Into thy dark, unknown, mysterious caves,
 And secret haunts, unfathomably deep
 Beneath all visible retired, none went,
 And came again, to tell the wonders there.
 Tremendous sea ! what time thou lifted up
 Thy waves on high, and with thy winds and storms
 Strange pastime took, and shook thy mighty sides
 Indignantly—the pride of navies fell ;
 Beyond the arm of help, unheard, unseen,
 Sunk friend and foe, with all their wealth and war ;
 And on thy shores, men of a thousand tribes,
 Polite and barbarous, trembling stood, amazed,
 Confounded, terrified, and thought vast thoughts
 Of ruin, boundlessness, omnipotence,
 Infinitude, eternity : and thought
 And wondered still, and grasped, and grasped, and grasped
 Again—beyond her reach exerting all
 The soul to take thy great idea in,
 To comprehend incomprehensible ;
 And wondered more, and felt their littleness.
 Self-purifying, unpolluted sea !
 Lover unchangeable ! thy faithful breast
 For ever heaving to the lovely moon,
 That like a shy and holy virgin, robed
 In saintly white, walked nightly in the heavens,
 And to thy everlasting serenade
 Gave gracious audience ; nor was wooed in vain.
 That morning, thou, that slumbered not before,
 Nor slept, great Ocean ! laid thy waves to rest,
 And hushed thy mighty minstrelsy. No breath
 Thy deep composure stirred, no fin, no ear ;

Like beauty newly dead, so calm, so still,
So lovely, thou, beneath the light that fell
From angel-chariots sentinelled on high,
Reposed, and listened, and saw thy living change,
Thy dead arise. Charybdis listened, and Scylla ;
And savage Euxine on the Thracian beach
Lay motionless : and every battle ship
Stood still ; and every ship of merchandise,
And all that sailed, of every name, stood still.
Even as the ship of war, full fledged and swift
Like some fierce bird of prey, bore on her foe,
Opposing with as fell intent, the wind
Fell withered from her wings, that idly hung ;
The stormy bullet, by the cannon thrown
Uncivilly against the heavenly face
Of men, half sped, sunk harmlessly, and all
Her loud, uncircumcised, tempestuous crew,
How ill prepared to meet their God ! were changed
Unchangeable—the pilot at the helm
Was changed, and the rough captain, while he mouthed
The huge enormous oath. The fisherman,
That in his boat expectant watched his lines,
Or mended on the shore his net, and sung,
Happy in thoughtlessness, some careless air,
Heard Time depart, and felt the sudden change.
In solitary deep, far out from land,
Or steering from the port with many a cheer,
Or while returning from long voyage, fraught
With lusty wealth, rejoicing to have escaped
The dangerous main, and plagues of foreign climes
The merchant quaffed his native air refreshed,
And saw his native hills in the sun's light
Serenely rise, and thought of meetings glad,
And many days of ease and honor spent
Among his friends—unwarned man ! even then
The knell of Time broke on his reverie,
And in the twinkling of an eye his hopes,
All earthly, perished all. As sudden rose,
From out their watry beds, the Ocean's dead.

Renewed, and on the unstirring billows stood,
From pole to pole, thick covering all the sea ;
Of every nation blent, and every age.

Wherever slept one grain of human dust,
Essential organ of a human soul,
Wherever tossed—obedient to the call
Of God's omnipotence, it hurried on
To meet its fellow particles, revived,
Rebuilt, in union indestructible.
No atom of his spoils remained to Death ;
From his strong arm by stronger arm released,
Immortal now in soul and body both,
Beyond his reach stood all the sons of men,
And saw behind his valley lie unfear'd.

O Death ! with what an eye of desperate lust,
From out thy emptied vaults, thou then didst look
After the risen multitudes of all
Mankind ! Ah, thou hadst been the terror long,
And murderer of all of woman born.
None could escape thee : in thy dungeon house,
Where darkness dwelt, and putrid loathsomeness,
And fearful silence, villainously still,
And all of horrible and deadly name,—
Thou sall'st from age to age insatiate,
And drank the blood of men, and gorged their flesh,
And with thy iron teeth didst grind their bones
To powder—tearing out beneath thy feet
Their very names and memnries : the blood
Of nations could not slake thy parched throat.
No bribe could buy thy favor for an hour,
Or mitigate thy ever cruel rage
For human prey. Gold, beauty, virtue, youth ;
Even helpless swaddled innocence failed
To soften thy heart of stone : the infant's blood
Pleased well thy taste—and while the mother wept,
Bereaved by thee, lonely and waste in wo,
Thy ever grinding jaws devoured her too.

Each son of Adam's family beheld,
Where'er he turned, whatever path of life
He trode, thy goblin form before him stand,
Like trusty old assassin, in his aim
Steady and sure as eye of destiny,
With scythe, and dart, and strength invincible,
Equipped, and ever menacing his life.
He turned aside, he drowned himself in sleep,
In wine, in pleasure ; travelled, voyaged, sought
Receipts for health from all he met ; betook
To business ; speculate ; retired ; returned
Again to active life ; again retired ;
Returned ; retired again ; prepared to die ;
Talked of thy nothingness ; conversed of life
To come ; laughed at his fears ; filled up the cup ;
Drank deep ; refrained ; filled up ; refrained again ;
Planned ; built him round with splendor, won applause ;
Made large alliances with men and things ;
Read deep in science and philosophy,
To fortify his soul ; heard lectures prove
The present ill, and future good ; observed
His pulse beat regular ; extended hope ;
Thought, dissipated thought, and thought again ;
Indulged, abstained, and tried a thousand schemes,
To ward thy blow or hide thee from his eye ;
But still thy gloomy terrors, dipped in sin,
Before him frowned, and withered all his joy.
Still, feared and hated thing, thy ghostly shape
Stood in his avenues of fairest hope ;
Unmannerly, and uninvited, crept
Into his haunts of most select delight :
Still on his halls of mirth, and banqueting,
And revelry, thy shadowy band was seen
Writing thy name of Death. Vile worm that gnawed
The root of all his happiness terrene ; the gall
Of all his sweet ; the thorn of every rose
Of earthly bloom ; cloud of his noon-day sky ;
Froet of his spring ; sigh of his loudest laugh ;
Dark spot on every form of loveliness,

Rank smell amidst his rarest spiceries ;
 Harsh dissonance of all his harmony ;
 Reserve of every promise, and the if
 Of all to-morrows—now beyond thy vale
 Stood all the ransomed multitude of men ;
 Immortal all ; and in their visions saw
 Thy visage grin no more. Great payment day
 Of all thou ever conquered, none was left
 In thy unpeopled realms, so populous once.
 He, at whose girdle hangs the keys of death
 And life—not bought but with the blood of Him
 Who wears, the eternal Son of God, that morn
 Dispelled the cloud that sat so long, so thick,
 So heavy o'er thy vale, opened all thy doors,
 Unopened before, and set thy prisoners free.
 Vain was resistance, and to follow vain.
 In thy unveiled caves, and solitudes
 Of dark and dismal emptiness, thou satt'st
 Rolling thy hollow eyes : disable'd thing !
 Helpless, despised, unpitied, and unfear'd,
 Like some fallen tyrant, chained in sight of all
 The people : from thee dropped thy pointless dart ;
 Thy terrors withered all ; thy ministers,
 Annihilated, fell before thy face ;
 And on thy maw eternal hunger seized.

Nor yet, sad monster ! wast thou left alone.
 In thy dark dens some phantoms still remained,
 Ambition, Vanity, and earthly Fame ;
 Swollen Os'entation, meagre Avarice,
 Mad Superstition, smooth Hypocrisy,
 And Bigotry intolerant, and Fraud,
 And wilful Ignorance, and sullen Pride ;
 Hot Controversy, and the subtile ghost
 Of vain Philosophy, and worldly Hope,
 And sweet lipped hollow-hearted Flattery—
 All these, great personages once on earth,
 And not unfollowed, nor unpraised, were left,
 Thy ever uoredeemed, and with thee driven

To Erebus, thro' whose uncheered wastes,
Thou mayest chase them with thy broken scythe
Fetching vain strokes to all eternity,
Unsatisfied, as men who, in the days
Of Time, their unsubstantial forms pursued.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK VIII.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK VIII.

Description of the world assembled for final judgment : all former distinctions equalized ; all waiting in expectation, vice and virtue, good and bad, redeemed, and unredeemed, were now the only distinctions among men.

An holy radiance shone on all countenances and revealed the inward state and feeling, the "index of the soul." On the wicked was depicted unutterable despair ; and on the righteous "in measure equal to the soul's advance in virtue," it became the "lustre of the face."

Various classes of the assembly are particularised ; the man of earthly fame, the mighty reasoner, the theorist, the recluse, the bigot theologion, the indolent, the sceptic, the follower of fashions, the dutious wife, the lunatic, the dishonest judge, the seducer, the duellist and suicide, the hypocrite, the slanderer, the false priest, the envious man,

The word of God was not properly believed by any of the wicked ; the necessary fruit of faith being "truth, temperance, meekness, holiness and love."

THE

Course of Time.

BOOK VIII.

REANIMATED now, and dressed in robes
Of everlasting wear, in the last pause
Of expectation, stood the human race ;
Buoyant in air, or covering shore and sea,
From east to west, thick as the eared grain,
In gilded autumn waved, from field to field,
Profuse, by Nilus' fertile wave, while yet
Earth was, and men were in her valleys seen.

Still all was calm in heaven : nor yet appeared
The Judge : nor aught appeared, save here and there,
On wing of golden plumage borne at will,
A curious angel, that from out the skies,
Now glanced a look on man, and then retired.
As calm was all on earth : the ministers
Of God's unsparing vengeance waited still
Unbid : no sun, no moon, no star gave light :
A blest and holy radiance, travelled far
From day original, fell on the face
Of men, and every countenance revealed ;
Unpleasant to the bad, whose visages
Had lost all guise of seeming happiness,
With which on earth such pains they took to hide

Their misery in. On their grim features, now
The plain unvisor'd index of the soul,
The true untampered witness of the heart,
No smile of hope, no look of vanity
Beseeching for applause, was seen ; no scowl
Of self important, all-despising pride,
That once upon the poor and needy fell,
Like winter on the unprotected flower,
Withering their very being to decay.
No jesting mirth, no wanton leer was seen ;
No sullen lower of braggart fortitude
Defying pain ; nor anger, nor revenge :
But fear instead, and terror and remorse ;
And chief one passion to its answering shaped
The features of the damned, and in itself
Summed all the rest—unutterable despair.

What on the righteous shone of foreign light
Was all redundant day, they needed not.
For, as by nature, Sin is dark, and loves
The dark, still hiding from itself in gloom ;
And in the darkest hell is still itself
The darkest hell, and the severest wo,
Where all is wo : so Virtue, ever fair !
Doth by a sympathy as strong as binds
Two equal hearts, well pleased in wedded love,
For ever seek the light, for ever seek
All fair and lovely things, all beauteous forms,
All images of excellence and truth ;
And from her own essential being, pure
As flows the fount of life that spirits drink,
Doth to herself give light, nor from her beams,
As native to her as her own existence,
Can be divorced, nor of her glory shorn.—
Which now from every feature of the just,
Divinely rayed ; yet not from all alike ;
In measure equal to the soul's advance
In virtue, was the lustre of the face.

It was a strange assembly : none of all
That congregation vast could recollect
Aught like it in the history of man.
No badge of outward state was seen ; no mark
Of age, or rank, or national attire ;
Or robe professional, or air of trade.
Untitled stood the man that once was called
My lord, unserved, unfollowed ; and the man
Of tithes, right reverend in the dialect
Of Time addressed, ungowned, unbeficed,
Uncorpulent ; nor now from him, who bore,
With ceremonious gravity of step,
And face of borrowed holiness o'erlaid,
The ponderous book before the awful priest,
And opened, and shut the pulpit's sacred gates
In style of wonderful observancy,
And reverence excessive, in the beams
Of sacerdotal splendor lost, or if
Observed, comparison ridiculous scarce
Could save the little, pompous, humble man
From laughter of the people—not from him
Could be distinguished then the priest untithed.
None levees held, those marts where princely smiles
Were sold for flattery, and obeisance mean,
Unfit from man to man ; none came, or went ;
None wished to draw attention, none was poor,
None rich ; none young, none old, deformed none ;
None sought for place, or favor ; none had aught
To give, none could receive ; none ruled, none served ;
No king, no subject was ; unsentcheoned all,
Uncrowned, unplumed, unhelmed, unpeditreed ;
Unlaced, uncoronetted, unbestarred.
Nor countryman was seen, nor citizen ;
Republican, nor humble advocate
Of monarchy ; nor idle worshipper,
Nor beaded papist, nor Mahometan ;
Episcopalian none, nor presbyter ;
Nor Lutheran, nor Calvinist, nor Jew,
Nor Greek, nor sectary of any name.

Nor of those persons that loud title bore—
Most high and mighty, most magnificent ;
Most potent, most august, most worshipful,
Most eminent ; words of great pomp, that pleased
The ear of vanity, and made the worms
Of earth mistake themselves for gods—could one
Be seen, to claim these phrases obsolete.

It was a congregation vast of men ;
Of unappendaged, and unvaroished men ;
Of plain, unceremonious human beings,
Of all but moral character bereaved.
His vice, or virtue now to each remained
Alone. All else with their grave-clothes men had Put off, as badges worn by mortal, not
Immortal man ; alloy that could not pass
The scrutiny of Death's refining fires ;
Dust of Time's wheels, by multitudes pursued
Of fools that shouted—gold ! fair painted fruit,
At which ambitious idiots jumped, while men
Of wiser mood immortal harvests reaped ;
Weeds of the human garden, sprung from earth's
Adulterate soil, unfit to be transplanted,
Though by the moral botanist too oft
For plants of heavenly seed mistaken, and nursed ;
Mere chaff that Virtue, when she rose from earth
And waved her wings to gain her native heights,
Drove from the verge of being, leaving vice
No mask to hide her in ; base born of Time,
In which God claimed no property, nor had
Prepared for them a place in heaven, or hell,
Yet did these vain distinctions, now forgot,
Bulk largely in the filmy eye of Time,
And were exceeding fair ; and lured to death
Immortal souls. But they were past ; for all
Ideal now was past ; reality
Alone remained ; and good and bad, redeemed
And unredeemed, distinguished sole the sons
Of men. Each to his proper self reduced,

And undisguised, was what his seeming showed.

The man of earthly fame, whom common men
Made boast of having seen—who scarce could pass
The ways of Time, for eager crowds that pressed
To do him homage, and pursued his ear
With endless praise, for deeds unpraised above,
And yoked their brutal natures honored much
To drag his chariot on—unnoticed stood,
With none to praise him, none to flatter there.

Blushing and dumb, that morning, too was seen
The mighty reasoner, he who deeply searched
The origin of things, and talked of good
And evil much, of causes and effects,
Of mind and matter, contradicting all
That went before him, and himself the while,
The laughing-stock of angels ; diving far
Below his depth, to fetch reluctant proof,
That he himself was mad and wicked too,
When, proud and ignorant man, he meant to prove,
That God had made the universe amiss,
And sketched a better plan. Ah ! foolish sage !
He could not trust the word of Heaven, nor see
The light which from the Bible blazed—that lamp
Which God threw from his palace down to earth,
To guide his wondering children home—yet leaned
His cautious faith on speculations wild,
And visionary theories absurd,
Prodigiously, deliriously absurd,
Compared with which, the most erroneous flight
That poet ever took when warm with wine,
Was moderate conjecturing :—he saw,
Weighed in the balance of eternity,
His lore how light, and wished too late, that he
Had staid at home, and learned to know himself,
And done, what peasants did, disputed less,
And more obeyed. Nor less he grieved his time
Misspent, the man of curious research,

Who travelled far thro' lands of hostile clime,
And dangerous inhabitant, to fix
The bounds of empires past, and ascertain
The burial place of heroes never born ;
Despising present things, and future too,
And groping in the dark unsearchable
Of finished years—by dreary ruins seen,
And dungeons damp, and vaults of ancient waste,
With spade and mattock, delving deep to raise
Old vases and dismembered idols rude ;
With matchless perseverance spelling out
Words without sense. Poor man ! he clapped his hands

Enraptured, when he found a manuscript
That spoke of pagan gods ; and yet forgot
The God who made the sea and sky, alas !
Forgot that trifling was a sin ; stored much
Of dubious stuff, but laid no treasure up
In heaven; on mouldered columns scratched his name,
But ne'er inscribed it in the book of life.

Unprofitable seemed, and unapproved,
That day, the sullen, self-vindictive life
Of the recluse : with crucifixes hung,
And spells, and rosaries, and wooden saints,
Like one of reason reft, he journeyed forth,
In show of miserable poverty,
And chose to beg, as if to live on sweat
Of other men, had promised great reward ;
On his own flesh inflicted cruel wounds,
With naked foot embraced the ice, by the hour
Said mass, and did most grievous penance vile ;
And then retired to drink the filthy cup
Of secret wickedness, and fabricate
All lying wonders, by the untaught received
For revelations new. Deluded wretch !
Did he not know, that the most Holy One
Required a cheerful life and holy heart ?

Most disappointed in that crowd of men,
 The man of subtle controversy stood,
 The bigot theologian—in minute
 Distinctions skilled, and doctrines unreduced
 To practice ; in debate how loud ! how long !
 How dexterous ! in christian love, how cold !
 His vain conceits were orthodox alone.
 The immutable and heavenly truth, revealed
 By God, was nought to him : he had an art,
 A kind of hellish charm, that made the lips
 Of truth speak falsehood ; to his liking turned
 The meaning of the text ; made trifles seem
 The marrow of salvation ; to a word,
 A name, a sect, that sounded in the ear,
 And to the eye so many letters showed,
 But did no more—gave value infinite ;
 Proved still his reasoning best, and his belief,
 Though propped on fancies, wild as madmen's dreams :
 Most rational, most scriptural, most sound ;
 With mortal heresy denouncing all
 Who in his arguments could see no force.
 On points of faith too fine for human sight,
 And never understood in heaven, he placed
 His everlasting hope, undoubting placed,
 And died : and when he opened his ear, prepared
 To hear, beyond the grave, the minstrelsy
 Of bliss—he heard, alas ! the wail of wo.
 He proved all creeds false but his own, and found
 At last, his own most false—most false, because
 He spent his time to prove all others so.

O love destroying, cursed bigotry !
 Cursed in heaven, but cursed more in hell,
 Where millions curse thee, and must ever curse.
 Religion's most abhorred ! perdition's most
 Forlorn ! God's most abandoned ! hell's most damned !
 The infidel, who turned his impious war
 Against the walls of Zion, on the rock
 Of ages built, and higher than the clouds,

Sinned, and received his due reward ; but she
Within her walls sinned more : of ignorance
Begot, her daughter, Persecution, walked
The earth, from age to age, and drank the blood
Of saints, with horrid relish drank the blood
Of God's peculiar children—and was drunk ;
And in her drunkenness dreamed of doing good.
The supplicating hand of innocence,
That made the tiger mild, and in his wrath
The lion pause—the groans of suffering most
Severe, were naught to her : she laughed at groans :
No music pleased her more : and no repast
So sweet to her as blood of men redeemed
By blood of Christ. Ambition's self, though mad,
And nursed on human gore, with her compared
Was merciful. Nor did she always rage :
She had some hours of meditation, set
Apart, wherein she to her study went,
The Inquisition, model most complete
Of perfect wickedness, where deeds were done,
Deeds ! let them ne'er be named,—and sat and planned
Deliberately, and with most musing pains,
How, to extrekest thrill of agony,
The flesh, and blood, and souls of holy men,
Her victims, might be wrought ; and when she saw
New tortures of her laboring fancy born,
She leaped for joy, and made great haste to try
Their force—well pleased to hear a deeper groan.
But now her day of mirth was past, and come
Her day to weep ; her day of bitter groans,
And sorrow unbemoaned ; the day of grief,
And wrath retributary poured in full
On all that took her part. The man of sin,
The mystery of iniquity, her friend
Sincere, who pardoned sin, unpardoned still,
And in the name of God blasphemed, and did
All wicked, all abominable things,
Most abject stood that day, by devils hissed,
And by the looks of those he murdered, scorched :

And plagued with inward shame that on his cheek
 Burned, while his votaries who left the earth,
 Secure of bliss, around him undeceived
 Stood, undeceivable till then ; and knew
 Too late, him fallible, themselves accursed,
 And all their passports and certificates,
A lie : nor disappointed more, nor more
 Ashamed, the Mussulman, when he saw, gnash
 His teeth and wail, whom he expected Judge.
 All these were damned for bigotry, were damned,
 Because they thought, that they alone served God,
 And served him most, when most they disobeyed.

Of those forlorn and sad, thou mightst have marked,
 In number most innumerable stand
 The indolent : too lazy these to make
 Inquiry for themselves, they stuck their faith
 To some well fatted priest, with offerings bribed
 To bring them oracles of peace, and take
 Into his management, all the concerns
 Of their eternity : managed how well
 They knew that day, and might have sooner known,
 That the commandment was : Search and believe
 In Me, and not in man ; who leans on him
 Leans on a broken reed that will impierce
 The trusted side. I am the way, the truth,
 The life alone, and there is none besides.

This did they read, and yet refused to search,
 To search what easily was found, and found,
 Of price uncountable. Most foolish, they Thought God with ignorance pleased and blinded faith
 That took not root in reason, purified
 With holy influence of his Spirit pure.
 So, on they walked and stumbled in the light
 Of noon, because they would not open their eyes.
 Effect how sad of sloth ! that made them risk
 Their piloting to the eternal shore,
 To one who could mistake the lurid flash

Of hell for heaven's true star, rather than bow
 The knee, and by one fervent word obtain
 His guidance sure, who calls the stars by name.
 They prayed by proxy, and at second hand
 Believed, and slept and put repentance off,
 Until the knock of death awoke them, when
 They saw their ignorance both, and him they paid
 To bargain of their souls 'twixt them and God,
 Fled, and began repentance without end.
 How did they wish that morning, as they stood
 With blushing covered, they had for themselves
 The Scripture searched, had for themselves believed,
 And made acquaintance with the Judge ere then !

Great day of termination to the joys
 Of sin ! to joys that grew on mortal boughs—
 On trees whose seed fell not from heaven, whose top
 Reached not above the clouds. From such alone
 The epicure took all his meals : in choice
 Of morsels for the body, nice he was
 And scrupulous, and knew all wines by smell
 Or taste, and every composition knew
 Of cookery ; but grossly drank unskilled
 The cup of spiritual pollution up,
 That sickened his soul to death, while yet his eyes
 Stood out with fat : his feelings were his guide ;
 He ate, and drank, and slept, and took all joys,
 Forbid and unforbid, as impulse urged,
 Or appetite ; nor asked his reason why.
 He said, he followed nature still, but lied ;
 For she was temperate and chaste, he full
 Of wine and all adultery ; her face
 Was holy, most unholy his ; her eye
 Was fire, his shot unhallowed fire ; her lips
 Sang praise to God, his uttered oaths profane ;
 Her breath was sweet, his rank with foul debauch.
 Yet pleaded he a kind and feeling heart,
 Even when he left a neighbor's bed defiled.
 Like migratory fowls that flocking sailed

From isle to isle, steering by sense alone,
 Whither the clime their liking best beseemed ;
 So he was guided ; so he moved through good
 And evil, right and wrong, but ah ! to fate
 All different ; they slept in dust unpained ;
 He rose that day to suffer endless pain.

Cured of his unbelief, the sceptic stood,
 Who doubted of his being while he breathed ;
 Than whom, glossography itself, that spoke
 Huge folios of nonsense every hour,
 And left, surrounding every page, its marks
 Of prodigal stupidity, scarce more
 Of folly raved. The Tyrant too, who sat
 In grisly council, like a spider couched,
 With ministers of locust countenance,
 And made alliances to rob mankind,
 And holy termed—for still beneath a name
 Of pious sound the wicked sought to veil
 Their crimes—forgetful of his right divine,
 Trembled, and owned oppression was of hell.
 Nor did the uncivil robber, who unpursed
 The traveller on the high way and cut
 His throat, anticipate severer doom.

In that assembly there was one, who, while
 Beneath the sun, aspired to be a fool :
 In different ages known by different names,
 Not worth repeating here. Be this enough :
 With scrupulous care exact, he walked the rounds
 Of fashionable duty ; laughed when sad ;
 When merry, wept ; deceiving, was deceived ;
 And flattering, flattered. Fashion was his god.
 Obsequiously he fell before its shrine,
 In slavish plight, and trembled to offend.
 If graveness suited, he was grave ; if else,
 He travailed sorely, and made brief repose,
 To work the proper quantity of sin.
 In all submissive, to its changing shape,

Still changing, girded he his vexed frame,
 And laughter made to men of sounder head.
 Most circumspect he was of bows, and nods,
 And salutations ; and most seriously
 And deeply meditated he of dress ;
 And in his dreams saw lace and ribbons fly.
 His soul was nought—he damned it every day
 Unceremoniously. Oh ! fool of fools !
 Pleased with a painted smile, he fluttered on,
 Like fly of gaudy plume, by fashion driven,
 As faded leaves by Autumna's wind, till Death
 Put forth his hand and drew him out of sight.
 Oh ! fool of fools ! polite to man ; to God
 Most rude : yet had he many rivals, who,
 Age after age, great striving made to be Ridiculous, and to forget they had
 Immortal souls—that day remembered well.

As rueful stood his other half, as wan
 Of cheek : small her ambition was—but strange.
 The distaff, needle, all domestic cares,
 Religion, children, husband, home, were things
 She could not bear the thought of ; bitter drugs
 That sickened her soul. The house of wanton mirth
 And revelry, the mask, the dance, she loved,
 And in their service soul and body spent
 Most cheerfully ; a little admiration,
 Or true, or false, no matter which, pleased her,
 And o'er the wreck of fortune lost, and health,
 And peace, and an eternity of bliss
 Lost, made her sweetly smile : She was convinced
 That God had made her greatly out of taste,
 And took much pains to make herself anew.
 Bedaubed with paint, and hung with ornaments
 Of curious selection—gaudy toy !
 A show unpaid for, paying to be seen !
 As beggar by the way, most humbly asking
 The alms of public gaze—she went abroad :
 Folly admired and indication gave

Of envy ; cold civility made bows,
 And smoothly flattered ; wisdom shook his head ;
 And laughter shaped his lip into a smile :
 Sobriety did stare ; forethought grew pale ;
 And modesty hung down the head and blushed ;
 And pity wept, as on the frothy surge
 Of fashion tossed, she passed them by, like sail
 Before some devilish blast, and got no time
 To think, and never thought, till on the rock
 She dashed of ruin, anguish, and despair.

O how unlike this giddy thing in Time !
 And at the day of judgment how unlike !
 The modest, meek, retiring dame. Her house
 Was ordered well ; her children taught the way
 Of life—who, rising up in honor, called
 Her blest. Best pleased to be admired at home,
 And hear reflected from her husband's praise,
 Her own, she sought no gaze of foreign eye.
 His praise alone, and faithful love and trust
 Reposed, was happiness enough for her.
 Yet who that saw her pass, and heard the poor
 With earnest benedictions on her steps
 Attend, could from obeisance keep his eye,
 Or tongue from due applause. In virtue fair,
 Adorned with modesty, and matron grace
 Uospeakable, and love—her face was like
 The light, most welcome to the eye of man ;
 Refreshing most, most honored, most desired
 Of all he saw in the dim world below.
 As morning when she shed her golden locks,
 And on the dewy top of Hermon walked,
 Or Zion hill—so glorious was her path :
 Old men beheld, and did her reverence,
 And bade their daughters look, and take from her
 Example of their future life : the young
 Admired, and new resolve of virtue made.
 And none who was her husband asked : his air
 Serene, and countenance of joy, the sign

Of inward satisfaction, as he passed
 The crowd, or sat among the elders, told.
 In holiness complete, and in the robes
 Of saving righteousness, arrayed for heaven,
 How fair, that day, among the fair, she stood !
 How lovely on the eternal hills her steps !

Restored to reason, on that morn appeared
 The lunatic—who raved in chains, and asked
 No mercy when he died. Of lunacy
 Innumerable were the causes : humbled pride,
 Ambition disappointed, riches lost,
 And bodily disease, and sorrow, oft
 By man inflicted on his brother man ;
 Sorrow that made the reason drunk, and yet
 Left much unstated—so the cup was filled :
 Sorrow that like an ocean, dark, deep, rough,
 And shoreless, rolled its billows o'er the soul
 Perpetually, and without hope of end.

Take one example, one of female wo.
 Loved by a father, and a mother's love,
 In rural peace she lived, so fair, so light
 Of heart, so good, and young, that reason scarce
 The eye could credit, but would doubt, as she Did stoop to pull the lily or the rose
 From morning's dew, if it reality
 Of flesh and blood, or holy vision, saw,
 In imagery of perfect womanhood.
 But short her bloom—her happiness was short.
 One saw her loveliness, and with desire
 Unhallowed, burning, to her ear addressed
 Dishonest words : "Her favor was his life,
 His heaven ; her frown his wo, his night, his death."
 With turgid phrase thus wove in flattery's loom,
 He on her womanish nature won, and age
 Suspicionless, and ruined and forsook :
 For he a chosen villain was at heart,
 And capable of deeds that durst not seek

Repentance. Soon her father saw her shame :
His heart grew stone ; he drove her forth to want
And wintry winds, and with a horrid curse
Pursued her ear, forbidding all return.

Upon a hoary cliff that watched the sea,
Her babe was fcond—dead : on its little check,
The tear that nature bade it weep, had turned
An ice-drop, sparkling in the morning beam ;
And to the turf its helpless hands were frozen :
For she—the woful mother, had gone mad,
And laid it down, regardless of its fate
And of her own. Yet had she many days
Of sorrow in the world, but never wept.
She lived on alms ; and carried in her hand
Some withered stalks, she gathered in the spring :
When any asked the cause, she smiled, and said
They were her sisters, and would come and watch
Her grave when she was dead. She never spoke
Of her deceiver, father, mother, home,
Or child, or heaven, or hell, or God ; but still
In lonely places walked, and ever gazed
Upon the withered stalks, and talked to them ;
Till wasted to the shadow of her youth,
With wo too wide to see beyond—she died :
Not unatoned for by imputed blood,
Nor by the spirit that mysterious works,
Unsanctified. Aloud her father cursed
That day his guilty pride which would not own
A daughter whom the God of heaven and earth,
Was not ashamed to call his own ; and he
Who ruined her, read from her holy look,
That pierced him with perdition, manifold,
His sentence, burning with vindictive fire.

The judge that took a bribe ; he who amiss
Pleaded the widow's cause, and by delay
Delaying ever, made the law at night
More intricate than at the dawn, and on

The morrow farther from a close, than when
 The sun last set, till he who in the suit
 Was poorest, by his empty coffers, proved
 His cause the worst ; and he that bad the bag
 Of weights deceitful, and the balance false ;
 And he that with a fraudulent lip deceived
 In buying or in selling :—these that morn
 Found custom no excuse for sin, and knew
 Plain dealing was a virtue, but too late.
 And he that was supposed to do nor good
 Nor ill, surprised, could find no neutral ground ;
 And learned, that to do nothing was to serve
 The devil, and transgress the laws of God.
 The noisy quack, that by profession lied,
 And uttered falsehoods of enormous size,
 With countenance as grave as truth beseemed ;
 And he that lied for pleasure, whom a lust
 Of being heard, and making people stare,
 And a most steadfast hate of silence, drove
 Far wide of sacred truth, who never took
 The pains to think of what he was to say,
 But still made haste to speak, with weary tongue,
 Like copious stream forever flowing on—
 Read clearly in the lettered heavens what long
 Before they might have read : for every word
 Of folly you this day shall give account,
 And every liar shall his portion have
 Among the cursed, without the gates of life.

With groans that made no pause, lamenting there
 Were seen the duellist, and suicide :
 This thought, but thought amiss, that of himself
 He was entire proprietor ; and so,
 When he was tired of time, with his own hand,
 He opened the portals of eternity,
 And sooner than the devils hoped, arrived
 In hell. The other, of resentment quick,
 And, for a word, a look, a gesture, deemed
 Not scrupulously exact in all respect,

Prompt to revenge, went to the cited field,
 For double murder armed—his own, and his
 That as himself he was ordained to love.
 The first in pagan-books of early times,
 Was heroism pronounced, and greatly praised.
 In fashion's glossary of later days,
 The last was honor called, and spirit high.
 Alas ! 'twas mortal spirit ; honor which
 Forgot to wake at the last trumpet's voice,
 Bearing the signature of time alone,
 Uncurrent in eternity, and base.
 Wise men suspected this before ; for they
 Could never understand what honor meant ;
 Or why that should be honor termed which made
 Man murder man, and broke the laws of God
 Most wantonly. Sometimes, indeed, the grave,
 And those of christian creed imagined, spoke
 Admiringly of honor, lauding much
 The noble youth, who, after many rounds
 Of boxing, died ; or to the pistol shot
 His breast exposed, his soul to endless pain.
 But they who most admired, and understood
 This honor best, and on its altar laid
 Their lives, most obviously were fools : and what
 Fools only, and the wicked understood—
 The wise agreed, was some delusive Shade,
 That with the mist of time should disappear.

Great day of revelation ! in the grave
 The hypocrite had left his mask ; and stood
 In naked ugliness. He was a man
 Who stole the livery of the court of heaven
 To serve the devil in ; in virtue's guise
 Devoured the widow's house and orphan's bread ;
 In holy phrase transacted villanies
 That common sinners durst not meddle with.
 At sacred feast, he sat among the saints,
 And with his guilty hands touched holiest things.
 And none of sin lamented more, or sighed

Move deeply, or with graver countenance,
Or longer prayer, wept o'er the dying man,
Whose infant children, at the moment, he
Planned how to rob : in sermon style he bought,
And sold, and lied ; and salutations made
In scripture terms : he prayed by quantity,
And with his repetitions long and loud,
All knees were weary ; with one hand he put
A penny in the urn of poverty,
And with the other took a shilling out.
On charitable lists—those trumps which told
The public ear, who had in secret done
The poor a benefit, and half the alms
They told of, took themselves to keep them sounding;
He blazed his name, more pleased to have it there
Than in the book of life. Seest thou the man !
A serpent with an angel's voice ! a grave
With flowers bestrewed ! and yet few were deceived.
His virtues being over-done, his face
Too grave, his prayers too long, his charities
Too pompously attended, and his speech
Larded too frequently, and out of time
With serious phraseology—were rents
That in his garments opened in spite of him,
Thro' which the well accustomed eye could see
The rottenness of his heart. None deeper blushed,
As in the all piercing light he stood exposed,
No longer herding with the holy ones :
Yet still he tried to bring his countenance
To sanctimonious seeming ; but, meanwhile,
The shame within, now visible to all,
His purpose baulked : the righteous smiled, and even
Despair itself some signs of laughter gave,
As ineffectually he strove to wipe
His brow, that inward guiltiness defiled.
Detected wretch ! of all the reprobate,
None seemed inarter for the flames of hell ;
Where still his face, from ancient custom, wear
A holy air, which says to all that pass

Him by : I was a hypocrite on earth.

That was the hour which measured out to each,
Impartially, his share of reputation !
Correcting all mistakes, and from the name
Of the good man, all slanders wiping off.
Good name was dear to all : without it, none
Could soundly sleep even on a royal bed ;
Or drink with relish from a cup of gold :
And with it, on his borrowed straw or by
The leafless hedge, beneath the open heavens,
The weary beggar took untrouoled rest.
It was a music of most heavenly tone,
To which the heart leaped joyfully, and all
The spirits danced : for honest fame, men laid
Their heads upon the block, and while the axe
Descended, looked and smiled. It was of price
Invaluable—riches, health, repose,
Whole kingdoms, life, were given for it, and he
Who got it was the winner still ; and he
Who sold it, durst not open his ear, nor look
On human face, he knew himself so vile.
Yet it, with all its preciousness, was due
To Virtue, and around her should have shed,
Unasked, its savory smell ; but Vice, deformed
Itself, and ugly, and of flavor rank,
To rob fair Virtue of so sweet an incense,
And with it to anoint, and salve its own
Rotten ulcers, and perfume the path that led
To death, strove daily by a thousand means ;
And oft succeeded to make Virtue sour
In the world's nostrils, and its loathly self
Smell sweetly. Rumor was the messenger
Of defamation—and so swift that none
Could be the first to tell an evil tale ;
And was withal so infamous for lies,
That he who of her sayings on his creed
The fewest entered, was deemed wisest man.
The fool, and many who had credit too

For wisdom, grossly swallowed all she said
Unsifted ; and although at every word
They heard her contradict herself, and saw
Hourly they were imposed upon, and mocked,
Yet still they ran to hear her speak, and stared,
And wondered much, and stood aghast, and said :
It could not be : and while they blushed for shame
At their own faith, and seemed to doubt—believed,
And whom they met, with many sanctions, told.
So did experience fail to teach ; so hard
It was to learn this simple truth, confirmed
At every corner by a thousand proofs—
That common fame most impudently lied.

'Twas Slander filled her mouth with lying words ;
Slander, the foulest whelp of Sin ; the man
In whom this spirit entered was undone.
His tongue was set on fire of hell ; his heart
Was black as death ; his legs were faint with haste
To propagate the lie his soul had framed ;
His pillow was the peace of families
Destroyed, the sigh of innocence reproached,
Broken friendships, and the strife of brotherhoods :
Yet did he spare his sleep, and hear the clock
Number the midnight watches, on his bed,
Devising mischief more ; and early rose,
And made most hellish meals of good men's names.

From door to door you might haye seen him speed,
Or placed amidst a group of gaping fools,
And whispering in their ears, with his foul lips.
Peace fled the neighborhoo'd in which he made
His haunts ; and like a moral pestilence,
Before his breath the healthy shoots, the blooms
Of social joy, and happiness, decayed.
Fools only in his company were seen,
And those forsaken of God, and to themselves
Given up : the prudent shunned him, and his house,
As one who had a deadly moral plague.

And fain would all have shunned him at the day
Of judgment ; but in vain. All who gave ear
With greediness, or wittingly their tongues
Made herald to his lies, around him wailed ;
While on his face, thrown back by injured men,
In characters of ever-blushing shame,
Appeared ten thousand slanders, all his own.

Among the accursed, who sought a hiding-place
In vain from fierceness of Jehovah's rage,
And from the hot displeasure of the Lamb,
Most wretched, most contemptible, most vile.—
Stood the false priest, and in his conscience felt
The fellest gnaw of the undying Worm.
And so he might, for he had on his bands
The blood of souls, that would not wipe away.
Hear what he was :—He swore in sight of God,
And man, to preach his master, Jesus Christ ;
Yet preached himself : he swore that love of souls
Alone, had drawn him to the church : yet strewed
The path that led to hell, with tempting flowers,
And in the ear of sinners, as they took
The way of death, he whispered peace : he swore
Away all love of lucre, all desire
Of earthly pomp, and yet a princely seat
He liked, and to the clink of Mammon's box
Gave most rapacious ear : his prophecies,
He swore, were from the Lord ; and yet taught lies
For gain : with quackish ointment healed the wounds
And bruises of the soul, outside, but left
Within the pestilent matter unobserved,
To sap the moral constitution quite,
And soon to burst again, incurable.
He with untempered mortar daubed the walls
Of Zion, saying. Peace, when there was none.
The man who came with thirsty soul to hear
Of Jesus, went away unsatisfied :
For he another gospel preached than Paul,
And one that had no Saviour in't. And yet

His life was worse : Faith, charity, and love,
Humility, forgiveness, holiness,
Were words well lettered in his sabbath creed ;
But with his life he wrote as plain : Revenge,
Pride, tyranny, and lust of wealth and power
Inordinate, and lewdness unashamed.
He was a wolf in clothing of the lamb,
That stole into the fold of God, and on
The blood of souls which he did sell to death,
Grew fat : and yet when any would have turned
Him out he cried :— Touch not the priest of God.
And that he was anointed, fools believed :
But knew that day, he was the devil's priest :
Anointed by the hands of Sin and Death,
And set peculiarly apart to ill,—
While on him smoked the vials of perdition
Poured measureless. Ah me ! what cursing then
Was heaped upon his head by ruined souls
That charged him with their murder, as he stood
With eye of all the unredeemed most sad,
Waiting the coming of the Son of Man !
But let me pause, for thou hast seen his place,
And punishment beyond the sphere of love.

Much was removed that tempted once to sin.
Avarice no gold, no wine the drunkard saw :
But Envy had enough, as heretofore,
To fill his heart with gall and bitterness.
What made the man of envy what he was,
Was worth in others, vileness in himself,
A lust of praise, with undeserving deeds,
And conscious poverty of soul: and still
It was his earnest work and daily toil
With lying tongue, to make the noble seem
Mean as himself. On fame's high hill he saw
The laurel spread its everlasting green,
And wished to climb : but felt his knees too weak :
And stood below unhappy, laying hands
Upon the strong ascending gloriously

The steps of honor, bent to draw them back ;
Involving oft the brightness of their path
In mists his breath had raised. Whene'er he heard,
As oft he did of joy and happiness,
And great prosperity, and rising worth,
'Twas like a wave of wormwood o'er his soul
Rolling its bitterness. His joy was wo :
The wo of others : when from wealth to want,
From praises to reproach, from peace to strife,
From mirth to tears, he saw a brother fall,
Or virtue make a slip—his dreams were sweet.
But chief with Slander, daughter of his own,
He took unhallowed pleasure : when she talked
And with her filthy lips defiled the best,
His ear drew near ; with wide attention gaped
His mouth ; his eye, well pleased, as eager gazed
As glutton, when the dish he most desired
Was placed before him ; and a horrid mirth,
At intervals, with laughter shook his sides.
The critic, too, who, for a bit of bread,
In book that fell aside before the ink
Was dry, poured forth excessive nonsense, gave Him much delight. The critics—some, but few,
Were worthy men ; and earned renown which had
Immortal roots : but most were weak and vile :
And as a cloudy swarm of summer flies,
With angry hum and slender lance, beset
The sides of some huge animal ; so did
They buzz about the illustrious man, and fain
With his immortal honor, down the stream
Of fame would have descended ; but alas !
The hand of Time drove them away : they were,
Indeed a simple race of men, who had
One only art, which taught them still to say,
Whate'er was done, might have been better done—
And with this art, not ill to learn they made
A shift to live : but sometimes too, beneath
The dust they raised, was worth awhile obscured ;
And then did Envy prophesy and laugh.

O Envy ! hide thy bosom ! bide it deep :
 A thousand snakes, with black envenomed mouths,
 Nest there, and hiss, and feed thro' all thy heart !

Such one I saw, here interposing, said
 The new arrived, in that dark den of shame,
 Whom, who hath seen shall never wish to see
 Again : before him, in the infernal gloom,
 That omnipresent shape of Virtue stood,
 On which he ever threw his eye ; and like
 A cinder that had life and feeling, seemed
 His face, with inward pining, to be what
 He could not be. As being that had burned
 Continually in slow consuming fire,
 Half an eternity, and was to burn
 For evermore, he looked. Oh ! sight to be Forgotten ! thought too horrible to think !

But say, believing in such wo to come,
 Such dreadful certainty of endless pain,
 Could beings of forecasting mould, as thou
 Entitest men, deliberately walk on,
 Unscared, and overleap their own belief
 Into the lake of ever burning fire ?

Thy tone of asking seems to make reply,
 And rightly seems : They did not so believe.
 Not one of all thou saw'st lament and wail
 In Tophet, perfectly believed the word
 Of God, else none had thither gone. Absurd,
 To think that beings made with reason, formed
 To calculate, compare, choose, and reject,
 By nature taught, and self, and every sense,
 To choose the good and pass the evil by,
 Could, with full credence of a time to come,
 When all the wicked should be really damned,
 And cast beyond the sphere of light and love,
 Have persevered in sin ! Too foolish this
 For folly in its prime. Can aught that thinks,

And wills, choose certain evil and reject
 Good, in his heart believing he does so ?
 Could man choose pain, instead of endless joy ?
 Mad supposition, though maintained by some
 Of honest mind. Bebold a man condemned !
 Either he ne'er inquired, and therefore he
 Could not believe ; or else he carelessly
 Inquired, and something other than the word
 Of God received into his cheated faith,
 And therefore he did not believe, but down
 To hell descended, leaning on a lie.

Faith was bewildered much by men who meant
 To make it clear—so simple in itself ;
 A thought so rudimental and so plain,
 That none by comment could it plainer make.
 All faith was one : In object, not in kind
 The difference lay. The faith that saved a soul,
 And that which in the common truth believed,
 In essence were the same. Hear then what faith,
 True, Christian faith, which brought salvation, was:
 Belief in all tha' God revealed to men :
 Observe—in all that God revealed to men ;
 In all he promised, threatened, commanded, said,
 Without exception, and without a doubt.
 Who thus believed, being by the Spirit touched,
 As naturally the fruits of faith produced—
 Truth, temperance, meekness, holiness, and love—
 As human eye from darkness sought the light.
 How could he else ? If he who had firm faith
 The morrow's sun should rise, ordered affairs
 Accordingly ; if he who had firm faith
 That spring, and summer, and autumnal days
 Should pass away, and winter really come,
 Prepared accordingly ; if he who saw
 A bolt of death approaching, turned aside
 And let it pass ; as surely did the man
 Who verily believed the word of God,
 Though erring whiles, its general laws obey,

Turn back from hell, and take the way to heaven.

That faith was necessary, some alleged,
Unreigned and uncontrollable by will.
Invention savoring much of hell ! Indeed,
It was the master stroke of wickedness,
Last effort of Abadden's council dark,
To make man think himself a slave to fate,
And worst of all, a slave to fate in faith.
For thus 'twas reasoned then :—From faith alone,
And from opinion, springs all action : hence,
If faith's compelled, so is all action too :
But deeds compelled are not accountable ;
So man is not amenable to God.

Arguing that brought such monstrous birth, though good
It seemed must have been false : most false it was,
And by the book of God condemned throughout.
We freely own that truth, when set before
The mind, with perfect evidence, compelled
Belief ; but error lacked such witness still.
And none who now lament in morai night,
The word of God refused on evidence
That might not have been set aside, as false.
To reason, try, choose and reject, was free :
Hence God, by faith, acquitted, or condemned ;
Hence righteous men, with liberty of will
Believed ; and hence thou saw'st in Erebus,
The wicked, who as freely disbelieved
What else had led them to the land of life.

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK IX.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK IX.

An apostrophe to Religion, Virtue, Piety or love of Holiness.

Description of several classes of the redeemed. The faithful minister, the true philosopher, the righteous governoor, the uncorrupted statesman, the brave General, the man of active benevolence and charity, the Christian's bard. And the most numerous among the saved were such, who on earth were eclipsed by lowly circumstances, many of whom were seen "Highest and first in honour."

Suddenly an innumerable host of angels, headed by Michael and Gabriel, descended from heaven, silently and without song, and lifting mankind into mid air, parted the good and bad ; to the right and left, the good to weep no more, and the bad never to smile again ; the righteous placed "beneath a crown of rosy light," and the wicked were driven and bound under a cloud of darkness, where stood also satan and his legion, awaiting the judgment and punishment due to their rebellion.

THE
Course of Time.
BOOK IX.

FAIREST of those that left the calm of heaven
And ventured down to man, with words of peace,
Daughter of Grace ! known by whatever name,
Religion ! Virtue ! Piety ! or Love
Of Holiness ! the day of thy reward
Was come. Ah ! thou wast long despised : despised
By those thou woedst from death to endless life,
Modest and meek, in garments white as those
That seraph's wear, and countenance as mild
As Mercy looking on Repentance' tear ;
With eye of purity, now darted up
To God's eternal throne, now humbly bent
Upon thyself, and weeping down thy cheek
That glowed with universal love immense,
A tear pure as the dews that fall in heaven ;
In thy left hand, the olive branch, and in
Thy right, the crown of immortality—
With noiseless foot, thou walkedst the vales of earth,
Beseeching men from age to age, to turn
From utter death—to turn from wo to bliss ;
Beseeching evermore, and evermore
Despised—not evermore despised, not now,
Not at the day of doom : most lovely then,

Most honorable thou appeared, and most
To be desired. The guilty heard the song
Of thy redeemed, how loud ! and saw thy face
How fair ! Alas ! it was too late ! the hour
Of making friends was past ; thy favor then
Might not be sought : but recollection, sed
And accurate, as miser counting o'er
And n'er again the sum he must lay out,
Distinctly in the wicked's ear, rehearsed
Each opportunity despised and lost ;
While ou them gleamed thy holy look, that like
A fiery torrent went into their souls.
The day of thy reward was come—the day
Of great remuneration to thy friends ;
To those, known by whatever name, who sought,
In every place, in every time, to do
Unfeignedly their Maker's will revealed,
Or gathered else from nature's school ; well pleased
With God's applause alone, that, like a stream
Of sweetest melody, at still of night
By wanderer heard, in their most secret ear,
For ever whispered, Peace ; and as a string
Of kindred tooe awoke, their inmost soul,
Responsive answered, Peace ; inquiring still
And searching, night and day, to know their duty,
When known, with undisputing trust, with love
Unqueachable, with zeal, by reason's lamp
Inflamed—performing ; and to Him, by whose
Profound, all-calculating skill alone,
Results—results even of the slightest act,
Are fully grasped, with unsuspicuous faith,
All consequences leaving : to abound
Or want alike prepared ; who knew to be
Exalted how, and how to be abased ;
How best to live, and how to die when asked.
Their prayers sincere, their alms in secret done,
Their fightings with themselves, their abstinence
From pleasure, tho' by mortal eye unseen,
Their hearts of resignation to the will

Of Heaven, their patient bearing of reproach
 And shame, their charity, and faith, and hope,—
 Thou didst remember, and in full repaid.
 No bankrupt thou, who at the bargained hour
 Of payment due, sent to his creditors
 A tale of losses and mischances long.
 Ensured by God himself, and from the stores
 And treasures of his wealth at will supplied,—
 Religion, thou alone, of all that men,
 On earth, gave credit, to be reimbursed
 On the other side the grave, didst keep thy word,
 Thy day, and all thy promises fulfilled.

As in the mind, rich with unborrowed wealth,
 Where multitudes of thoughts for utterance strive,
 And all so fair, that each seems worthy first
 To enter on the tongue, and from the lips
 Have passage forth,—selection hesitates,
 Perplexed, and loses time; anxious since all
 Cannot be taken, to take the best; and yet
 Afraid, lest what be left be worthier still;
 And grieving much, where all so goodly look,
 To leave rejected one, or in the rear
 Let any be obscured: so did the bard,
 Tho' not unskilled, as on that multitude
 Of men, who once awoke to judgment, he
 Threw back reflection, hesitating, pause.
 For on his harp, in tone severe, had sung
 What figure the most famous sinners made,
 When from the grave they rose unmasksed; so did
 He wish to character the good: but yet
 Among so many, glorious all, all worth
 Immortal fame, with whom begin, with whom
 To end, was difficult to choose; and long
 His auditors, upon the tiptoe raised
 Of expectation, might have kept, had not
 His eye—for so it is in heaven, that what
 Is needed always is at hand—beheld,
 That moment, on a mountain near the throne

Of God, the most renowned of the redeemed
 Rejoicing ; nor who first, who most to praise,
 Debated more ; but thus, with sweeter note,
 Well pleased to sing, with highest eulogy,
 And first, whom God applauded most,—began.

With patient ear, thou now hast heard,—tho' whiles
 Aside digressing, ancient feeling turned
 My lyre,—what shame the wicked had that day,
 What wailing, what remorse : so hear in brief,
 How bold the righteous stood—the men redeemed !
 How fair in virtue ! and in hope how glad !
 And first among the holy shone, as best
 Became, the faithful minister of God.

See where he walks on yonder mount, that lifts
 Its summit high, on the right hand of bliss !
 Sublime in glory ! talking with his peers
 Of the Incarnate Saviour's love, and past
 Affliction, lost in present joy ! See how
 His face with heavenly ardor glows ! and how
 His hand enraptured, strikes the golden lyre !
 As now conversing of the Lamb once slain,
 He speaks ; and now, from vines that never hear
 Of winter, but in monthly harvest yield
 Their fruit abundantly, he plucks the grapes
 Of life ! but what he was on earth it most
 Behoves to say :—Elect by God himself ;
 Anointed by the Holy Ghost, and set
 Apart to the great work of saving men ;
 Instructed fully in the will divine ;
 Supplied with grace in store, as need might ask ;
 And with the stamp and signature of heaven,
 Truth, mercy, patience, holiness and love,
 Accredited ;—he was a man by God,
 The Lord commissioned to make known to men,
 The eternal counsels ; in his Master's name,
 To treat with them of everlasting things ;
 Of life, death, bliss, and wo : to offer terms

Of pardon, grace, and peace, to the rebell'd ;
To teach the ignorant soul ; to cheer the sad ;
To bind, to loose with all authority ;
To give the feeble strength, the hopeless hope ;
To help the halting, and to lead the blind ;
To warn the careless ; heal the sick of heart ;
Arouse the indolent ; and on the proud
And obstinate offender, to denounce
The wrath of God. All other men, what name
Soe'er they bore, whatever office held,
If lawful held—the magistrate supreme,
Or else subordinate, were chosen by men,
Their fellows, and from men derived their power,
And were accountable for all they did
To men ; but he alone his office held
Immediately from God, from God received
Authority, and was to none but God
Amenable. The elders of the church,
Indeed, upon him laid their hands, and set
Him visibly apart to preach the word
Of life ; but this was merely outward rite,
And decent ceremonial, performed
On all alike ; and nft, as thou hast heard,
Performed on those, God never sent : his call,
His consecration, his anointing, all
Were inward ; in the conscience heard and felt.
Thus by Jehovah chosen and ordained,
To take into his charge the souls of men ;
And for his trust to answer at the day
Of judgment—great plenipotent of heaven,
And representative of God on earth—
Fearless of men and devils ; unabashed
By sin enthroned, or mockery of a prince ;
Unawed by armed legions ; unseduced
By offered bribes ; burning with love to souls
Unquenchable, and mindful still of his Great charge and vast responsibility,—
High in the temple of the living God,
He stood, amidst the people, and declared

Aloud the truth—the whole revealed truth—
Ready to seal it with his blood. Divine
Resemblance most complete! with mercy now,
And love, his face illumined, shone gloriously;
And frowning now indignantly, it seemed
As if offended Justice, from his eye,
Streamed forth vindictive wrath! Men heard alarmed:
The uncircumcised infidel believed;
Light thoughted Mirth grew serious and wept;
The laugh profane sunk in a sigh of deep
Repentance; the blasphemer kneeling, prayed,
And prostrate in the dust for mercy called;
And cursed old forsaken sinners gnashed
Their teeth, as if their hour had been arrived.
Such was his calling, his commission such:
Yet he was humble, kind, forgiving, meek,
Easy to be entreated, gracious, mild;
And with all patience and affection, taught,
Rebuked, persuaded, solaced, counselled, warned,
In fervent style and manner. Needy, poor,
And dying men, like music, heard his feet
Approach their beds; and guilty wretches took
New hope, and in his prayers, wept and smiled,
And blessed him, as they died forgiven; and all
Saw in his face contentment, in his life,
The path to glory and perpetual joy.
Deep learned in the philosophy of heaven,
He searched the causes out of good and ill,
Profoundly calculating their effects
Far past the bounds of time; and balancing,
In the arithmetic of future things,
The loss and profit of the soul to all
Eternity. A skilful workman he,
In God's great moral vineyard; what to prune,
With cautious hand, he knew; what to uproot;
What was mere weeds, and what celestial plants,
Which had unfading vigor in them, knew:
Nor knew alone; but watched them night and day,
And reared and nourished them, till fit to be

Transplanted to the Paradise above.

O ! who can speak his praise ! great humble man
 He in the current of destruction stood,
 And warned the sinner of his wo ; led on
 Immanuel's members in the evil day ;
 And with the everlasting arms, embraced
 Himself around, stood in the dreadful front
 Of battle, high, and warred victoriously
 With death and hell. And now was come his rest,
 His triumph day : illustrious like a sun,
 In that assembly, he, shining from far,
 Most excellent in glory, stood assured,—
 Waiting the promised crown, the promised throne,
 The welcome and approval of his Lord.
 Nor one alone, but many—prophets, priests,
 Apostles, great reformers, all that served
 Messiah faithfully, like stars, appeared,
 Of fairest beam ; and round them gathered, clad
 In white, the vouchers of their minis'ry—
 The flock their care had nourished, fed, and saved.

Nor yet in common glory blazing stood,
 The true philosopher, decided friend
 Of truth and man ; determined foe of all
 Deception,—calm, collected, patient, wise,
 And humble ; undeceived by outward shape
 Of things ; by fashion's revelry uncharmed ;
 By honor unbewitched ;—he left the chase
 Of vanity, and all the quackeries
 Of life to fools and heroes, or whoe'er
 Desired them ; and with reason, much despised,
 Traduced, yet heavenly reason, to the shade
 Retired—retired, but not to dream, or build
 Of ghostly fancies, seen in the deep noon
 Of sleep, ill balanced theories ; retired,
 But did not leave mankind ; in pity, not
 In wrath retired ; and still, though distant, kept
 His eye on men ; at proper angle, took

His stand to see them better, and beyond
The clamor which the bells of folly made,
That most had hung about them, to consult
With nature, how their madness might be cured
And how their true substantial comforts might
Be multiplied. Religious man ! what God
By prophets, priests, evangelists, revealed
Of sacred truth, he thankfully received,
And, by its light directed, went in search
Of more : before him darkness fled : and all
The goblin tribe, that hung upon the breasts
Of Night, and haunted still the moral gloom.
With shapeless forms, and blue infernal lights,
And indistinct and devilish whisperings,
That the miseducated faeries vexed
Of superstitious men,—at his approach,
Dispersed, invisible. Where'er he went,
This lesson still he taught, to fear no ill
But sin, no being but Almighty God.
All-comprehending sage ! too hard alone
For him, was man's salvation ; all besides,
Of use or comfort, that distinction made
Between the desperate savage, scarcely raised
Above the beast whose flesh he ate undressed,
And the most polished of the human race,
Was product of his persevering search.
Religion owed him much, as from the false
She suffered much ; for still his main design,
In all his contemplations, was to trace
The wisdom, providence, and love of God,
And to his fellows, less observant, show
Them forth. From prejudice redeemed, with all
His passions still, above the common world,
Sublime in reason, and in aim sublime,
He sat, and on the marvellous works of God,
Sedately thought : now glancing up his eye
Intelligent, through all the starry dance ;
And penetrating now the deep remote
Of central causes, in the womb opaque

Of matter hid ; now with inspection nice,
 Entering the mystic labyrinths of the mind,
 Where thought, of notice ever-shy, behind
 Thought disappearing, still retired ; and still,
 Thought meeting thought, and thought awakening
 thought,

And mingling still with thought, in endless maze,—
 Bewildered observation : now with eye,
 Yet more severely purged, looking far down
 Into the heart, where Passion wove a web
 Of thousand thousand threads, in grain and hue
 All different ; then, upward venturing whiles,
 But reverently, and in his hand, the light
 Revealed, near the eternal throne, he gazed,
 Philosophizing less than worshipping.
 Most truly great ! his intellectual strength,
 And knowledge vast, to men of lesser mind,
 Seemed infinite ; yet from his high pursuits,
 And reasonings most profound, he still returned
 Home, with an humbler and a warmer heart.
 And none so lowly bowed before his God,
 As none so well His awful majesty
 And goodness comprehended ; or so well
 His own dependency and weakness knew.

How glorious now ! with vision purified
 At the Essential Truth, entirely free
 From error, he, investigating still—
 For knowledge is not found, unsought in heaven,—
 From world to world at pleasure roves, on wing
 Of golden ray upborne ; or, at the feet
 Of heaven's most ancient sages, sitting, hears
 New wonders of the wondrous works of God.

Illustrious too, that morning, stood the man
 Exalted by the people, to the throne
 Of government, established on the base
 Of justice, liberty and equal right :
 Who, in his countenance sublime, expressed

A nation's majesty, and yet was meek
And humble ; and in royal palace gave
Example to the meanest, of the fear
Of God, and all integrity of life
And manners ; who, august, yet lowly ; who,
Severe, yet gracious ; in his very heart
Detesting all oppression, all intent
Of private aggrandizement ; and the first
In every public duty,—held the scales
Of justice, and as the law, which reigned in him,
Commanded, gave rewards ; or with the edge
Vindictive, smote,—now light, now heavily,
According to the stature of the crime.
Conspicuous like an oak of healthiest bough,
Deep rooted in his country's love, he stood
And gave his hand to Virtue, helping up
The honest man to honor and renown ;
And with the look which goodness wears in wrath,
Withering the very blood of Knavery,
And, from his presence, driving far ashamed.

Nor less remarkable among the blest
Appeared the man who in the senate-house,
Watchful, unhired, unbribed, and uncorrupt,
And party only to the common weal,
In virtue's awful rage, pleaded for right,
With truth so clear, with argument so strong,
With action so sincere, and tone so loud
And deep, as made the despot quake behind
His adamantine gates, and every joint
In terror smite his fellow-joint relaxed ;
Or, marching to the field, in burnished steel,
While, frowning on his brow, tremendous hung
The wrath of a whole people long provoked,—
Mustered the stormy wings of war, in day
Of dreadful deeds ; and led the battle on,
When liberty swift as the fires of heaven,
In fury rode with all her hosts, and threw
The tyrant down, or drove invasion back.

Illustrious he—illustrious all appeared,
 Who ruled supreme in righteousness ; or held
 Inferior place in steadfast rectitude
 Of soul. Peculiarly severe had been
 The nurture of their youth ; their knowledge great ;
 Great was their wisdom ; great their cares, and great
 Their self denial, and their service done
 To God and man ; and great was their reward,
 At hand, proportioned to their worthy deeds.

Breathe all thy minstrelsy, immortal harp !
 Breathe numbers warm with love ! while I rehearse,
 Delighted theme ! resembling most the songs
 Which, day and night, are sung before the Lamb
 Thy praise, O Charity ! thy labors most
 Divine ; thy sympathy with sighs, and tears,
 And groans ; thy great, thy god-like wish, to heal
 All misery, all fortune's wounds ; and make
 The soul of every living thing rejoice.
 O thou wast needed much in days of time !
 No virtue, half so much ; none half so fair :
 To all the rest, however fine, thou gavest
 A finishing and polish, without which
 No man e'er entered heaven. Let me record
 His praise,—the man of great benevolence,
 Who pressed thee closely to his glowing heart,
 And to thy gentle bidding, made his feet
 Swift minister. —Of all mankind, his soul
 Was most in harmony with heaven : as one
 Sole family of brothers, sisters, friends ;
 One in their origin, one in their rights
 To all the common gif's of providence,
 And in their hopes, their joys and sorrows one,
 He viewed the universal human race.
 He needed not a law of state, to force
 Grudging submission to the law of God ;
 The law of love was in his heart alive :
 What he possessed, he counted not his own.
 But like a faithful steward, in a house

Of public alms, what freely he received,
He freely gave ; distributing to all
The helpless, the last mite beyond his own
Temperate support, and reckoning still the gift
But justice, due to want : and so it was ;
Altho' the world, with compliment not ill
Applied, adorned it with a fairer name.
Nor did he wait till to his door the voice
Of supplication came, but went abroad,
With foot as silent as the starry dews,
In search of misery that pined unseen,
And would not ask. And who can tell what sights
He saw ! what groans he heard in that cold world
Below ! where Sin in league with gloomy Death
Marched daily thro' the length and breadth of all
The land, wasting at will, and making earth,
Fair earth ! a lazer-house, a dungeon dark ;
Where Disappointment fed on ruined Hope :
Where Guilt, worn out, leaned on the triple edge
Of want, remorse, despair ; where Cruelty
Reached forth a cup of wormwood to the lips
Of Sorrow, tha' to deeper sorrow wailed :
Where Mockery, and Disease, and Poverty,
Met miserable Age, erewhile sore bent
With his own burden ; where the arrowy winds
Of winter, pierced the naked orphan babe,
And chilled the mother's heart who had no home ;
And where, alas ! in mid-time of his day,
The honest man, robbed by some villain's hand,
Or with long sickness pale, and paler yet
With want and hunger, oft drank bitter draughts
Of his own tears, and had no bread to eat.
Oh ! who can tell what sights he saw, what shapes
Of wretchedness ! or who describe what smiles
Of gratitude illumed the face of wo,
While from his hand he gave the bounty forth !
As when the sun, to Cancer wheeling back,
Returned from Capricorn, & shewed the north,
That long had lain in cold and cheerless night,

His beamy countenance ; all nature then
 Rejoiced together glad ; the flower looked up
 And smiled ; the forest from his locks shook off
 The hoary frosts, and clapped his hands ; the birds
 Awoke, and singing, rose to meet the day ;
 And from his hollow den, where many months
 He slumbered sad in darkness, blythe and light
 Of heart the savage sprung ; and saw again
 His mountain shine ; and with new songs of love,
 Allured the virgin's ear : so did the house,
 The prison house of guilt, and all the abodes
 Of unprovided helplessness, revive,
 As on them looked the sunny messenger
 Of Charity ; by angels tended still,
 That marked his deeds, and wrote them in the book
 Of God's remembrance :—careless he to be Observed of men ; or have each mite bestowed,
 Recorded punctually with name and place
 In every bill of news : pleased to do good,
 He gave and sought no more—nor questioned much,
 Nor reasoned who deserved ; for well he knew
 The face of need. Ah me ! who could mistake ?
 The shame to ask, the want that urged within,
 Composed a look so perfectly distinct
 From all else human, and withal so full
 Of misery, that none could pass untouched
 And be a Christian ; or thereafter claim,
 In any form, the name or rights of man ;
 Or, at the day of judgment, lift his eye :
 While he, in name of Christ, who gave the poor
 A cup of water, or a bit of bread,
 Impatient for his advent, waiting stood,
 Glowing in robes of love and holiness,
 Heaven's fairest dress ! and round him ranged in white,
 A thousand witnesses appeared, prepared
 To tell his gracious deeds before the throne.

Nor unrenowned among the most renowned,
 Nor 'mong the fairest unadmired, that moro,

When highest fame was proof of highest worth,
Distinguished stood the bard ;—not he, who sold
The iocommunicable heavenly gift,
To Folly ; and with lyre of perfect tone,
Prepared by God himself, for holiest praise,
Vilest of traitors ! most dishonest man !—
Sat by the door of Ruin, and made there
A melody so sweet, and in the mouth
Of drunkenness and debauch, that else had croaked
In natural discordance jarring harsh,—
Put so divine a song, that many turned
Aside, and entered in undone ; and thought
Meanwhile it was the gate of heaven ; so like
An angel's voice the inusic seemed : nor he,
Who whining grievously of damsel coy,
Or blaming fortune, that would nothing give
For doing nought, in indolent lament
Unprofitable, passed his piteous days—
Making himself the hero of his tale,
Deserving ill the poet's name. But he,
The bard, by God's own hand anointed, who,
To Virtue's all-delighting barmony,
His numbers tuned ; who from the fount of truth,
Poured melody, and beauty poured, and love,
In holy stream, into the human heart ;
And from the height of lofty argument,
Who justified the ways of God to man,
And sung, what still he sings—approved in heaven ;
Tho' now with bolder note, above the damp
Terrestrial, which the pure celestial fire
Cooled, and restrained in part his flaming wing.

Philosophy was deemed of deeper thought,
And judgment more severe than Poetry ;
To fable she, and fancy more inclined.
And yet if Fancy, as was understood,
Was of creative nature, or of power,
With self-wrought stuff to build a fabric up,
To mortal vision wonderful and strange,

Philosophy, the theoretic, claimed
 Undoubtedly the first and highest place
 In Fancy's favor : her material souls ;
 Her chance ; her atoms shaped alike ; her white
 Proved black ; her universal nothing, all ;
 And all her wondrous systems, how the mind
 With matter met ; how man was free, and yet
 All preordained ; how evil first began ;
 And chief, her speculations, soaring high
 Of the eternal uncreated mind,
 Which left all reason infinitely far
 Behind—surprising feat of theory !
 Were pure creation of her own ; webs wove
 Of gossamer in Fancy's lightest loom ;
 And no where on the list of being made
 By God, recorded : but her look meanwhile
 Was grave and studious ; and many thought
 She reasoned deeply, when she wildly raved.

The true, legitimate, anointed bard,
 Whose song thro' ages poured its melody,
 Was most severely thoughtful, most minute
 And accurate of observation, most
 Familiarly acquainted with all modes
 And phases of existence. True, no doubt,
 He had originally drunk, from out
 The fount of life and love, a double draught,
 That gave, whate'er he touched, a double life.
 But this was mere desire at first, and power
 Devoid of means to work by ; need was still
 Of persevering, quick, inspective mood
 Of mind, of faithful memory, vastly stored
 From universal being's ample field,
 With knowledge ; and a judgment sound and clear,
 Well disciplined in nature's rules of taste ;
 Discerning to select, arrange, combine,
 From infinite variety, and still
 To nature true ; and guide withal, hard task,
 The sacred living impetus divine,

Discreetly thro' the harmony of song.
Completed thus, the poet sung ; and age
To age enraptured, heard his measures flow ;
Enraptured, for he poured the very fat
And marrow of existence thro' his verse ;
And gave the soul—that else in selfish cold,
Unwarmed by kindred interest, had lain—
A roomy life, a glowing relish high,
A sweet expansive brotherhood of being.—
Joy answering joy, and sigh responding sigh,
Thro' all the fibres of the social heart.
Observant, sympathetic, sound of head,
Upon the ocean vast of human thought,
With passion rough and stormy, venturing out
Even as the living billows rolled, he threw
His numbers over them, seized as they were,
And to perpetual azes left them fixed,
To each a mirror of itself displayed ;
Despair for ever lowering dark on Sin ;
And Happiness on Virtue smiling fair.

He was the minister of fame ; and gave
To whom he would renown ; nor missed himself,—
Altho' despising much the idiot roar
Of popular applause, that sudden oft
Unnaturally turning, whom it nursed
Itself, devoured.—the lasting fame, the praise
Of God and holy men, to excellence given :
Yet less he sought his own renown, than wished
To have the eternal images of truth
And beauty, pictured in his verse, admired.
'Twas these, taking immortal shape and form
Beneath his eye, that charmed his midnight watch,
And oft his soul, with awful transports, shook,
Of happiness, unfelt by other men.
This was that spell, that sorcery, which bound
The poet to the lyre, and would not let
Him go ; that hidden mystery of joy,
Which made him sing in spite of fortune's worst ;

And was, at once, both motive and reward.

Nor now among the choral harps, in this
 The native clime of song, are those unknown,
 With higher note ascending, who, below,
 In holy ardor, aimed at lofty strains.
 True fame is never lost : many, whose names
 Were honored much on earth, are famous here
 For poetry, and with arch-angel harps,
 Hold no unequal rivalry in song ;
 Leading the choirs of heaven, in numbers high,
 In numbers ever sweet and ever new.

Behold them yonder, where the river pure
 Flows warbling down before the throne of God,
 And shading on each side, the tree of life
 Spreads its unfading boughs ! see how they shine,
 In garments white, quaffing deep draughts of love ;
 And harping on their harps new harmonies
 Preparing for the ear of God, Most High !

But why should I, of individual worth,
 Of individual glory longer sing ?
 No true believer was that day obscure ;
 No holy soul but had enough of joy ;
 No pious wish without its full reward.
 Who in the Father and the Son believed,
 With faith that wrought by love to holy deeds,
 And purified the heart, none trembled there,
 Nor had by earthly guise, his rank concealed :
 Whether unknown, he tilled the ground remote,
 Observant of the seasons, and adored
 God in the promise yearly verified,
 Of seedtime, harvest, summer, winter, day
 And night, returning duly at the time
 Appointed ; or on the shadowy mountain side,
 Worshipped at dewy eve, watching his flocks ;
 Or treading, saw the wonders of the deep,
 And as the needle to the starry pole,

Turned constantly, so he his heart to God ;
 Or else, in servitude severe, was taught
 To break the bonds of sin ; or begging, learned
 To trust the Providence, that fed the raven,
 And clothed the lily with her annual gown.

Most numerous indeed, among the saved,
 And many too, not least illustrious, shone,
 The men who had no name on earth : eclipsed
 By lowly circumstance, they lived unknown ;
 Like stream that in the desert warbles clear,
 Still nursing, as it goes, the herb and flower,
 Tho' never seen ; or like the star retired,
 In solitudes of ether, far beyond
 All sight, not of essential splendor less,
 Tho' shining unobserved : none saw their pure
 Devotion, none their tears, their faith, and love
 Which burned within them, both to God and man
 None saw but God. He, in his bottle, all
 Their tears preserved, and every holy wish
 Wrote in his book ; and not as they had done,
 But as they wished with all their heart to do,
 Arrayed them now in glory, and displayed,
 No longer hid by coarse uncourtly garb—
 In lustre equal to their inward worth.

Man's time was past, and his eternity
 Begun ! no fear remained of change. The youth,
 Who, in the glowing morn of vigorous life,
 High reaching after great religious deeds,
 Was suddenly cut off, with all his hopes
 In sunny bloom, and unaccomplished left
 His withered aims,—saw everlasting days
 Before him dawning rise, in which to achieve
 All glorious things, and get himself the name
 That jealous death too soon forbade on earth.

Old things had passed away, and all was new
 And yet of all the new-begun, naught so

Prodigious difference made, in the affairs
 And thoughts of every man, as certainty.
 For doubt, all doubt was gone, of every kind ;
 Doubt that erewhile, beneath the lowest base
 Of mortal reasonings, deepest laid, crept in,
 And made the strongest, best cemented towers
 Of human workmanship, so weakly shake,
 And to their lofty tops, so waver still,
 That those who built them, feared their sudden fall.
 But doubt, all doubt was past ; and in its place
 To every thought that in the heart of man
 Was present, now had come an absolute,
 Unquestionable certainty, which gave
 To each decision of the mind, immense
 Importance, raising to its proper height
 The sequent tide of passion, whether joy,
 Or grief. The good man knew in very truth,
 That he was saved to all eternity,
 And feared no more ; the bad had proof complete,
 That he was damned for ever ; and believed
 Entirely, that on every wicked soul
 Anguish should come, and wrath and utter wo.

Knowledge was much increased, but wisdom more.
 The film of Time, that still before the sight
 Of mortal vision danced, and led the best
 Astray, pursuing uosubstantial dreams,
 Had dropped from every eye : men saw that they
 Had vexed themselves in vain, to understand
 What now no hope to understand, remained ;
 That they had often counted evil good,
 And good for ill; laughed when they should have wept;
 And wept forlorn when God intended mirth.
 But what of all their follies past, surprised
 Them most, and seemed most totally insane
 And unaccountable, was value set
 On objects of a day ; was serious grief,
 Or joy, for loss, or gain of mortal things :
 So utterly impossible it seemed,

When men their proper interests saw, that aught
Of terminable kind, that aught, which e'er
Could die, or cease to be, however named,
Should make a human soul—a legal heir
Of everlasting years—rejoice, or weep
In earnest mood ; for nothing now seemed worth
A thought, but had eternal bearing in't.

Much truth had been assented to in Time,
Which never, till this day, had made a due
Impression on the heart. Take one example :
Early from heaven it was revealed, and oft
Repeated in the world, from pulpits preached
And penned and read in holy books, that God
Respected not the persons of mankind.
Had this been truly credited and felt,
The king in purple robe, had owned indeed,
The beggar for his brother ; pride of rank
And office, thawed into paternal love ;
Oppression feared the day of equal rights,
Predicted ; covetous extortio kept
In mind the hour of reckoning, soon to come ;
And bribed injustice thought of being judged,
When he should stand on equal foot beside
The man he wronged. And surely—nay, 'tis true,
Most true, beyond all whispering of doubt,
That he, who lifted up the reeking scourge,
Dripping with gore from the slave's back, before
He struck again, had paused, and seriously
Of that tribunal thought, where God himself
Should look him in the face, and ask in wrath,
Why didst thou this ? Man ! was he not thy brother ?
Bone of thy bone, and flesh and blood of thine ?
But ah ! this truth, by heaven and reason taught,
Was never fully credited on earth.
The titled, flattered, lofty men of power,
Whose wealth bought verdicts of applause for deeds
Of wickedness, could ne'er believe the time
Should truly come, when judgment should proceed

Impartially against them, and they too,
 Have no good speaker at the judge's ear :
 No witnesses to bring them off for gold ;
 No power to turn the sentence from its course ;
 And they of low estate, who saw themselves,
 Day after day, despised, and wronged, and mocked,
 Without redress, could scarcely think, the day
 Should e'er arrive, when they in truth should stand
 On perfect level with the potentates
 And princes of the earth, and have their cause
 Examined fairly, and their rights allowed.
 But now this truth was felt, believed and felt,
 That men were really of a common stock ;
 That no man ever had been more than man.

Much prophecy—revealed by holy bards,
 Who sung the will of heaven by Judah's streams,
 Much prophecy that waited long, the scoff
 Of lips uncircumcised, was then fulfilled ;
 To the last tittle scrupulously fulfilled.
 It was foretold by those of ancient days,
 A time should come, when wickedness should weep
 Abased ; when every lofty look of man
 Should be bowed down, and all his haughtiness
 Made low ; when righteousness alone should lift
 The head in glory, and rejoice at heart ;
 When many, first in splendor and renown,
 Should be most vile ; and many, lowest once
 And last in poverty's obscurest nook,
 Highest and first in honor, should be seen
 Exalted ; and when some, when all the good,
 Should rise to glory, and eternal life ;
 And all the bad, lamenting, wake, condemned
 To shame, contempt, and everlasting grief.

These prophecies had tarried long ; so long
 That many wagged the head, and taunting asked,
 When shall they come ? But asked no more, nor mocked,

For the reproach of prophecy was wiped
Away, and every word of God found true.

And O ! what change of state ! what change of rank !

In that assembly every where was seen !
The humble hearted laughed ; the lofty mourned ;
And every man according to his works
Wrought in the body, there took character.

Thus stood they mixed ! all generations stood
Of all mankind ! innumerable throng !
Great harvest of the grave ! waiting the will
Of Heaven, attentively and silent all,
As forest spreading out beneath the calm
Of evening skies, when even the single leaf
Is heard distinctly rustle down and fall ;
So silent they, when from above, the sound
Of rapid wheels approached, and suddenly
In heaven appeared a host of angels strong,
With chariots and with steeds of burning fire :
Cherub, and Seraph, Thrones, Dominions, Powers,
Bright in celestial armor, dazzling, rode :
And leading in the front, illustrious shone
Michael and Gabriel, servants long approved
In high commission,—girt that day with power
Which naught created, man, or devil, might
Resist ; nor waited gazing long ; but quick
Descending, silently and without song,
As servants bent to do their master's work,
To middle air they raised the human race,
Above the path long travelled by the sun ;
And as a shepherd from the sheep divides
The goats ; or husbandman, with reaping hands,
In harvest, separates the precious wheat,
Selected from the tares ; so did they part
Mankind,—the good and bad, to right and left,—
To meet no more ; these ne'er again to smile ;
Nor those to weep ; these never more to share

Society of mercy with the saints ;
 Nor henceforth, those to suffer with the vile.
 Strange parting ! not for hours, nor days, nor months,
 Nor for ten thousand times ten thousand years ;
 But for a whole eternity ! though fit,
 And pleasant to the righteous, yet to all
 Strange ! and most strangely felt ! The sire to right
 Retiring, saw the son, sprung from his loins,
 Beloved how dearly once,—but who forgot
 Too soon, in sin's intoxicating cup,
 The father's warnings and the mother's tears,—
 Fall to the left among the reprobate.
 And sons redeemed, beheld the fathers, whom
 They loved and honored once, gathered among
 The wicked : brothers, sisters, kiosmen, friends ;
 Husband and wife, who ate at the same board,
 And under the same roof, united dwelt,
 From youth to hoary age, bearing the chance
 And change of time together,—parted then
 For evermore. But none whose friendship grew
 From virtue's pure and everlasting root,
 Took different roads —these, knit in stricter bonds
 Of amity, embracing, saw no more
 Death with his scythe stand by, nor heard the word,
 The bitter word, which closed all earthly friendships,
 And finished every feast of love.—Farewell.
 To all strange parting ; to the wicked, sad
 And terrible : new horror seized them while
 They saw the saints withdrawing, and with them
 All hope of safety, all delay of wrath.

Beneath a crown of rosy light.—like that
 Which once in Goshen, on the flocks, and herds,
 And dwellings, smited of Jacob, while the land
 Of Nile was dark; or like the pillar bright
 Of sacred fire, that stood above the sons
 Of Israel, when they camped at midnight by
 The foot of Horeb, or the desert side
 Of Sinai,—now the righteous took their place,

All took their place who ever wished to go
 To heaven, for heaveo's own sake ; not one remained
 Among the accursed, that e'er desired with all
 The heart to be redeemed ; that ever sought
 Submissively to do the will of God,
 Howe'er it crossed his own : or to escape
 Hell, for ought other than its penal fires.
 All took their place rejoicing, and beheld,
 In centre of the crown of golden beams
 That canopied them o'er, these gracious words,
 Blushing with tints of love : Fear not, my saints.

To other sight of horrible dismay,
 Jehovah's ministers, the wicked drove,
 And left them bound immovable in chains
 Of Justice : o'er their heads a bowless cloud
 Of indignation hung ; a cloud it was
 Of thick and utter darkness ; rolling like
 An ocean, tides of livid, pitchy flame ;
 With thunders charged and lightnings ruinous,
 And red with forked vengeance, such as wouuds
 The soul ; and full of angry shapes of wrath ;
 And eddies, whirling with tumultuous fire ;
 And forms of terror raving to and fro ;
 And monsters, unimagined heretofore
 By guilty men in dreams before their death,
 From horrid to more horrid chaoging still,
 In hideous movement through that stormy gulph :
 And evermore the thunders murmuring spoke
 From out the darkness, uttering loud these words,
 Which every guilty conscience echoed back :
 " Ye knew your duty, but ye did it not."
 Dread words ! that barred excuse, and threw the weight
 Of every man's perdition on himself
 Directly home. Dread words ! heard then, and heard
 For ever through the wastes of Erebus.
 " Ye knew your duty, but ye did it not !"

These were the words which glowed upon the sword
 Whose wrath burned fearfully behind the cursed,
As they were driven away from God to Tophet.

"Ye knew your duty, but ye did it not!"

These are the words to which the harps of grief
 Are strung ; and to the chorus of the damned,
 The rocks of hell repeat them evermore ;
 Loud echoed thro' the caverns of despair,
 And poured in thunder on the ear of Wo.

Nor ruined men alone, beneath that cloud,
 Trembled : there Satan and his legions stood ;
 Satan, the first and eldest sinner, bound
 For judgment ; he, by other name, held once
 Conspicuous rank in heaven among the sons
 Of happiness, rejoicing day and night :
 But pride that was ashamed to bow to God
 Most high, his bosom filled with hate, his face
 Made black with envy, and in his soul begot
 Thoughts guilty of rebellion 'gainst the throne
 Of the Eternal Father and the Son,—
 From everlasting built on righteousness.

Ask not how pride in one created pure,
 Could grow ; or sin without example spring,
 Where holiness alone was sown : esteem't
 Enough, that he, as every being made
 By God, was made entirely holy, had
 The will of God before him set for law
 And regulation of his life ; and power
 To do as bid ; but was, meantime, left free,
 To prove his worth, his gratitude, his love ;
 How proved besides ? for how could service done,
 That might not else have been withheld, evince
 The will to serve, which, rather than the deed,
 God doth require, and virtue counts alone ?
 To stand or fall, to do or leave undone,
 Is reason's lofty privilege, denied
 To all below, by instinct bound to fate,

Unmeriting alike reward or blame.

Thus free, the Devil chose to disobey
The will of God ; and was thrown out from heaven,
And with him all his bad example stained :
Yet not to utter punishment decreed,
But left to fill the measure of his sin,
In tempting and seducing man :—too soon,
Too easily seduced ! And from the day,
He first set foot on earth—of rancor full,
And pride, and hate, and malice, and revenge—
He set himself, with most felonious aim,
And hellish perseverance, to root out
All good, and in its place to plant all ill ;
To rub and raze, from all created things,
The fair and holy portraiture divine,
And on them to enstamp his features grim ;
To draw all creatures off from loyalty
To their Creator ; and to make them bow
The knee to him. Nor failed of great success,
As populous hell this day can testify.
He held indeed large empire in the world,
Contending proudly with the King of heaven.
To him temples were built, and sacrifice
Of costly blood upon his altars flowed ;
And, what best pleased him, for in show he seemed
Theo likest God, whole nations bowing fell
Before him, worshipping, and from his lips
Entreated oracles, which he, by priests,
For many were his priests in every age,
Answered, though guessing but at future things,
And erring oft, yet still believed ; so well
His ignorance, in ambiguous phrase, he veiled.

Nor needs it wonder, that with man once fallen,
His tempting should succeed. Large was his mind,
And understanding ; though impaired by sin,
Still large ; and constant practice, day and night,
In cunning, guile, and all hypocrisy,

From age to age, gave him experience vast
In sin's dark tactics, such as boyish man,
Unarmed by strength divine, could ill withstand.
And well he knew his weaker side ; and still
His lures with baits that pleased the senses busked ;
To his impatient passions offering terms
Of present joy, and bribing reason's eye
With earthly wealth, and honors near at hand :
Nor failed to misadvise his future hope
And faith, by false unkerneled promises
Of heavens of sensual gluttony and love,
That suited best their grosser appetites.
Into the sinner's heart, who lived secure,
And feared him least, he entered at his will.
But chief he chose his residence in courts,
And conclaves, stirring princes up to acts
Of blood and tyranny ; and moving priests
To barter truth, and swap the souls of men
For lusty benefices, and address
Of lofty sounding : nor the saints elect,
Who walked with God, in virtue's path sublime,
Did he not sometimes venture to molest ;
In dreams and moments of unguarded thought,
Suggesting guilty doubts and fears that God
Would disappoint their hope ; and in their way
Bestrewing pleasures, tongued so sweet, and so
In holy garb arrayed, that many stooped,
Believing them of heavenly sort, and fell :
And to their high professions, brought disgrace
And scandal, to themselves, thereafter, long
And bitter night of sore repentance, vexed
With shame, unwonted sorrow, and remorse.
And more they should have fallen, and more have wept,
Had not their guardian angels,—who, by God
Commissioned, stood beside them: in the hour
Of danger, whether craft, or fierce attack,
To Satan's deepest skill opposing skill
More deep, and to his strongest arm an arm

More strong,—upborne them in their hands, and filled
Their souls with all discernment, quick, to pierce
His stratagems and fairest shows of sin.

Now like a roaring lion, up and down
The world, destroying, though unseen, he raged ;
And now, retiring back to Tartarus,
Far back, beneath the thick of guiltiest dark,
Where night ne'er heard of day, in council grim
He sat with ministers whose thoughts were damned,
And there such plans devised, as, had not God
Checked and restrained, had added earth entire
To hell, and uninhabited left heaven,
Jehovah unadored. Nor unsevere
Even then, his punishment deserved : the Worm
That never dies, coiled in his bosom, gnawed
Perpetually ; sin after sin, brought pang
Succeeding pang ; and now and then the bolts
Of Zion's King, vindictive, smote his soul
With fiery wo to blast his proud designs ;
And gave him earnest of the wrath to come.
And chief, when on the cross, Messiah said,
'Tis finished, did the edge of vengeance smite
Him through, and all his gloomy legions touch
With new despair. But yet to be the first
In mischief, to have armies at his call,
To hold dispute with God, in days of Time
His pride and malice, fed, and bore him up
Above the worst of ruin : still to plan
And act great deeds, though wicked, brought at least
The recompence which nature hath attached
To all activity, and aim, pursued
With perseverance, good, or bad ; for as,
By nature's laws, immutable and just,
Enjoyment stops where indolence begins ;
And purposeless, to-morrow borrowing sloth,
Itself, heaps on its shoulders loads of wo,
Too heavy to be borne : so industry,—
To meditate, to plan, resolve perform,

Which in itself is good, as surely brings
 Reward of good no matter what be done :
 And such reward the Devil had, as long
 As the decrees eternal gave him space
 To work : but now all action ceased ; his hope
 Of doing evil perished quite ; his pride,
 His courage, failed him ; and beneath that cloud,
 Which hung its central terrors o'er his head,
 With all his angels, he, for sentence, stood,
 And rolled his eyes around, that uttered guilt
 And wo, in horrible pertection joined.
 As he had been the chief and leader, long,
 Of the apostate crew that warred with God
 And holiness ; so now, among the bad,
 Lowest and most forlorn, and trembling most,
 With all iniquity deformed and foul,
 With all perdition ruinous and dark,
 He stood,—example awful of the wrath
 Of God ! sad mark, to which all sin must fall !—
 And made, on every side, so black a hell,
 That spirits, used to night and misery,
 To distance drew, and looked another way ;
 And from their golden cloud, far off, the saints
 Saw round him darkness grow more dark, and heard
 The impatient thunderbolts, with deadliest crash,
 And frequentest, break o'er his head,—the sign,
 That satan there, the vilest sinner, stood.

Ah me ! what eyes there were beneath that cloud ;
 Eyes of despair, final and certain ! eyes
 That looked, and looked, and saw, where'er they looked,
 Interminable darkness ! utter wo !

'Twas pitiful to see the early flower
 Nipped by the unfeeling frost, just when it rose,
 Lovely in youth, and put its beauties on.
 'Twas pitiful to see the hopes of all
 The year, the yellow harvest, made a heap

By rains of judgment ; or by torrents swept,
With flocks and cattle down the raging flood ;
Or scattered by the winnowing winds, that bore,
Upon their angry wings, the wrath of heaven.
Sad was the field, where yesterday was heard
The roar of war ; and sad the sight of maid,
Of mother, widow, sister, daughter, wife,
Stooping and weeping over senseless, cold,
Defaced, and mangled lumps of breathless earth,
Which had been husbands, fathers, brothers, sons,
And lovers, when that morning's sun arose.
'Twas sad to see the wonted seat of friend
Removed by death : and sad to visit scenes,
When old, where, in the smiling morn of life,
Lived many, who both knew and loved us much,
And they all gone, dead or dispersed abroad ;
And stranger faces seen among their hills.
'Twas sad to see the little orphan babe
Weeping and sobbing on its mother's grave.
'Twas pitiful to see an old, forlorn,
Decrepit, withered wretch, unhoused, unclad,
Starving to death with poverty and cold.
'Twas pitiful to see a blooming bride,
That promise gave of many a happy year,
Touched by decay, turn pale, and waste, and die.
'Twas pitiful to hear the murderous thrust
Of ruffian's blade that sought the life entire.
'Twas sad to hear the blood come gurgling forth
From out the throat of the wild suicide.
Sad was the sight of widowed, childless age
Weeping. I saw it once. Wrinkled with time,
And hoary with the dust of years, an old
And worthy man came to his humble roof,
Tottering and slow, and on the threshold stood.
No foot, no voice, was heard within ; none came
To meet him, where he oft had met a wife,
And sons, and daughters, glad at his return ;
None came to meet him ; for that day had seen
The old man lay, within the narrow house,

The last of all his family ; and now
He stood in solitude, in solitude
Wide as the world ; for all that made to him
Society, had fled beyond its bounds.
Wherever strayed his aimless eye, there lay
The wreck of some fond hope, that touched his soul
With bitter thoughts, and told him all was past.
His lonely cot was silent ; and he looked
As if he could not enter ; on his staff
Bending he leaned ; and from his weary eye,
Distressing sight ! a single tear-drop wept :
None followed, for the fount of tears was dry ;
Alone and last it fell from wrinkle down
To wrinkle, till it lost itself, drunk by
The withered cheek, on which again, no smile
Should come, or drop of tenderness be seen.
This sight was very pitiful ; but one
Was sadder still, the saddest seen in Time :
A man, to-day, the glory of his kind,
In reason clear, in understanding large,
In judgment sound, in fancy quick, in hope
Abundant, and in promise, like a field
Well cultured, and refreshed with dews from God ;
To-morrow, chained and raving mad, and whipped
By servile hands ; sitting on dismal straw
And gnashing with his teeth against the chain,
The iron chain that bound him hand and foot ;
And trying whiles to send his glaring eye
Beyond the wide circumference of his wo :
Or, humbling more, more miserable still,
Giving an idiot laugh, that served to show
The blasted scenery of his horrid face ;
Calling the straw his sceptre, and the stone,
On which he pinioned sat, his royal throne.
Poor, poor, poor man ! fallen far below the brute !
His reason strove in vain, to find her way,
Lost in the stormy desert of his brain ;
And being active still, she wrought all strange,
Fantastic, execrable, monstrous things.

All these were sad, and thousands more, that sleep
 Forgotten beneath the funeral pall of Time ;
 And bards, as well became, bewailed them much,
 With doleful instruments of weeping song.
 But what were these ? what might be worse had in't
 However small, some grains of happiness :
 And man ne'er drank a cup of earthly sort,
 That might not hold another drop of gall ;
 Or, in his deepest sorrow, laid his head
 Upon a pillow set so close with thorns,
 That might not hold another prickle still.
 Accordingly, the saddest human lonk
 Had hope in't ; faint indeed, but still 'twas hope.
 But why excuse the misery of earth ?
 Say it was dismal, cold, and dark, and deep,
 Beyond the utterance of strongest words :
 But say that none remembered it, who saw
 The eye of beings damned forevermore !
 Rolling, and rolling, rolling still in vain,
 To find some ray ; to see beyond the gulph
 Of an unavenued, fierce, fiery, hot,
 Interminable, dark Futurity !
 And rolling still, and rolling still in vain !

Thus stood the reprobate beneath the shade
 Of terror, and beneath the crown of love,
 The good ; and there was silence in the vault
 Of heaven : and as they stood and listened, they heard
 Afar to left among the utter dark,
 Hell rolling o'er his waves of burning fire ;
 And thundering thro' his caverns, empty then,
 As if he preparation made, to act
 The final vengeance of the Fiery Lamb.
 And there was heard, coming from out the Pit,
 The hollow wailing of Eternal Death,
 And horrid cry of the undying Worm.

The wicked paler turned ; and scarce the good
 Their color kept ; but were not long dismayed.

That moment, in the heavens, how wondrous fair !
The angel of Mercy stood, and, on the bair,
Turning his back, over the ransomed threw
His bow bedropped with imagery of love,
And promises on which their faith reclined.
Throughout, deep, breathless silence reigned again :
And on the circuit of the upper spheres,
A glorious seraph stood, and cried aloud,
That every ear of man and devil heard :
“Him that is filthy, let be filthy still ;
“Him that is holy, let be holy still.”
And suddenly, another squadron bright,
Of high arch-angel glory, stooping, brought
A marvellous bow ; one base upon the Cross,
The other on the shoulder of the Bear,
They placed, from south to north, spanning the heavens,
And on each hand dividing good and bad,—
Who read on either side these burning words,
Which ran along the arch in living fire,
And wanted not to be believed in full :
“As ye have sown, so shall ye reap this day.”

THE COURSE OF TIME.

BOOK X.

ANALYSIS OF BOOK X.

The author invokes God, for acceptance, and the assistance of the holy spirit ; that he may faithfully interpret the notes of the ancient Bard, "the holy numbers" which his spirit hears, and describes the Day of Judgment.

Suddenly Michael sounds the golden trumpet, and millions, infinite, of the holy spirits gathered from heaven as well as from the farthest worlds around, and met at the Eternal throne, and from a radiant cloud, God declares the purpose of the assembly.— He states the destiny of man is concluded, the day of Retribution, appointed from all eternity, is come, and the generations of earth collected to the place of judgment.

The Father infinite, then addresses the Messiah, and assigns to him his covenant, office of Judge. The Son, taking the book of remembrance, the seven last thunders, the crowns of life, and the Sword of Justice, ascends the living Chariot of God, attended by numbers infinite, moves forward in glory, becomes visible to the sons of men, and ascends the Throne, placed between the good and bad.

In awful silence a mighty angel spread open the book of God's remembrance, and each one with sincere conscience attests the record true. He arose to pronounce the sentence. No creature breathed, every sphere and star stood still and listened, and upon the wicked first he issued the dread decree ; and plunged the sword, which now he drew, into the midst ; they sink into final misery, into utter darkness and irremediablewo. The fire then consumed the earth. Lastly the righteous received the crowns, and a joyous approval, and ascend to heaven with their judge, singing glory to God and to the Lamb.

Course of Time.
BOOK X.

GOD of my fathers ! holy, just and good :
My God ! my Father ! my unfailing hope !
Jehovah ! let the incense of my praise,
Accepted, burn before thy mercy seat,
And in thy presence burn both day and night.
Maker ! Preserver ! my Redeemer ! God !
Whom have I in the heavens but Thee alone ?
On earth, but Thee, whom should I praise, whom love ?
For thou hast brought me hitherto, upheld
By thy omnipotence ; and from thy grace,
Unbought, unmerited, though not unsought—
The wells of thy salvation, hast refreshed
My spirit, watering it, at morn and even !
And by thy Spirit which thou freely givest
To whom thou wilt, hast led my venturesome song,
Over the vale, and inmountain tract, the light
And shade of man ; into the burning deep
Descending now, and now circling the mount,
Where highest sits Divinity enthroned ;
Rolling along the tide of fluent thought,
The tide of moral, natural, divine ;
Gazing on past, and present, and again,
On rapid pinion borne, outstripping Time,
In long excursion, wandering through the groves
Unfading, and the endless avenues,
That shade the landscape of eternity

And talking there with holy angels met,
And future meo, in glorious vision seen !
Nor unrewarded have I watched at night,
And heard the drowsy sound of neighboring sleep ;
New thought, new imagery, new scenes of bliss
And glory unrehearsed by mortal tongue,
Which, unrevealed, I trembling, turned and left,
Bursting at once upon my ravished eye,
With joy unspeakable, have filled my soul,
And made my cup run over with delight ;
Though in my face, the blas's of adverse winds,
While boldly circumnavigating man,
Winds seeming adverse, though perhaps not so,
Have beat severely ; disregarded beat,
When I behind me heard the voice of God,
And his propitious Spirits say,—Fear not.

God of my fathers ! ever present God !
This offering more inspire, sustain, accept ;
Highest if numbers answer to the theme ;
Best answering if thy Spirit dictate must.
Jehovah ! breathe upon my soul ; my heart
Enlarge ; my faith increase ; increase my hope ;
My thoughts exalt ; my fancy sanctify,
And all my passions, that I near thy throne
May venture, unreproved ; and sing the day,
Which none unholly ought to name, the Day
Of Judgment ; greatest day, past or to come ;
Day, which—deny me what thou wilt ; deny
Me home, or friend, or hoorable name—
Thy mercy grant, I thoroughly prepared,
With comely garment of redeeming love,
May meet, and have my Judge for Advocate.

Come gracious Influence ! Breath of the Lord !
And touch me trembling, as thou touched the man,
Greatly beloved, when he in vision saw,
By Ulai's stream, the Ancient sit ; and talked
With Gabriel, to his prayer swiftly sent,

At evening sacrifice. Hold my right hand,
 Almighty ! hear me for I ask through Him,
 Whom thou hast heard, whom thou shalt always hear,
 Thy son, our interceding Great High Priest.
 Reveal the future ; let the years to come
 Pass by ; and open my ear to hear the harp ;
 The prophet harp, whose wisdom I repeat,
 Interpreting the voice of distant song,—
 Which thus again resumes the lofty verse ;
 Loftiest if I interpret faithfully
 The holy numbers which my spirit hears.

Thus came the day, the Harp again began,
 The day that many thought should never come ;
 That all the wicked wished should never come ;
 That all the righteous had expected long,
 Day greatly feared, and yet too little feared,
 By him who feared it most ; day laughed at much
 By the profane ; the trembling day of all
 Who laughed ; day when all shadows passed, all dreams ;
 When substance, when reality commenced.
 Last day of lying, final day of all
 Deceit, all knavery, all quackish phrase ;
 Ender of all disputing, of all mirth
 Ungodly, of all loud and boasting speech.
 Judge of all Judgments ; Judge of every judge ;
 Adjuster of all causes, rights and wrongs.
 Day oft appealed to, and appealed to oft,
 By those who saw its dawn with saddest heart.
 Day most magnificent in fancy's range,
 Whence she returned, confounded, trembling, pale,
 With overmuch of glory faint and blind.
 Day most important held, prepared for most,
 By every rational, wise, and holy man.
 Day of eternal gain, for worldly loss ;
 Day of eternal loss, for worldly gain.
 Great day of terror, vengeance, wo, despair !
 Revealer of all secrets thoughts, desires !

Rein-trying, heart-investigating day,
 Which stood betwixt Eternity and Time,
 Reviewed all past, determined all to come,
 And bound all destinies for evermore.
 Believing day of unbelief! Great day!
 Which set in proper light the affairs of earth,
 And justified the government Divine.
 Great day! what can we more? what should we more?
 Great triumph day of God's Incarnate Son!
 Great day of glory to the Almighty God!
 Day when the everlasting years begin
 Their date! new era in eternity!
 And oft referred to in the song of heaven!

Thus stood the apostate, thus the ransomed stood;
 Those held by justice fast, and these by love,
 Reading the fiery scutcheonry, that blazed
 On high, upon the great celestial bow:—
 "As ye have sown, so shall ye reap this day."
 All read, all understood, and all believed;
 Convinced of judgment, righteousness and sin.

Meantime the universe throughout was still:
 The cope, above and round about was calm;
 And motionless beneath them lay the earth,
 Silent and sad, as one that sentencee waits,
 For flagrant crime: when suddenly was heard,
 Behind the azure vaulting of the sky,
 Above, and far remote from reach of sight,
 The sound of trumpets, and the sound of crowds,
 And prancing steeds, and rapid chariot wheels,
 That from four quarters rolled, and seemed in haste,
 Assembling at some place of rendezvous;
 And so they seemed to roll, with furious speed,
 As if none meant to be behind the first.
 Nor seemed alone: that day the golden trump,
 Whose voice, from centre to circumference
 Of all created things, is heard distinct,

God had bid Michael sound, to summon all
The host's of bliss to presence of their King :
And all the morning, millions infinite,
That millions governed each, Dominions, Powers,
Thrones, Principalities, with all their hosts,
Had been arriving near the capital,
And royal city, New Jerusalem,
From heaven's remotest bounds : nor yet from heaven
Alone, came they that day : the worlds around,
Or neighboring nearest on the verge of night,
Emptied, sent forth their whole inhabitants :
All tribes of being came of every name,
From every coast, filling Jebovah's courts.
From morn till mid-day, in the squadrons poured
Immense, along the bright celestial roads.
Swiftly they rode ; for love unspeakable
To God, and to Messiah, Prince of peace,
Drew them, and made obedience baste to be Approved. And now before the Eternal Throne—
Frighter that day than when the Son prepared
To overthrow the seraphim rebelled—
And circling round the mount of Deity,
Upon the sea of glass all round about,
And down the borders of the stream of life,
And over all the plains of Paradise,
For many a league of heavenly measurement,—
Assembled stood the immortal multitudes,
Millions above all number infinite,
The nations of the blest. Distinguished each,
By chief of goodly stature blazing far,
By various garb, and flag of various hue
Streaming through heaven from standard lifted high,
The arms and imagery of thousand worlds.
Distinguished each ; but all arrayed complete,
In armor bright, of helmet, shield, and sword ;
And mounted all in chariots of fire.
A military throng, blent, not confused :
As soldiers on some day of great review,
Burning in splendor of resplendent gold,

And ornament on purpose long devised
 For this expected day. Distinguished each,
 But all accoutred as became their Lord,
 And high occasion all in holiness,
 The livery of the soldiery of God,
 Vested ; and shining all with perfect bliss,
 The wages which his faithful servants win.

Thus stood they numberless around the mount
 Of presence ; and adoring, waited, hushed
 In deepest silence, for the voice of God.
 That moment, all the Sacred Hill on high
 Burned, terribly with glory, and, behind
 The uncreated lustre, hid the Lamb,
 Invisible ; when, from the radiant cloud,
 This voice, addressing all the hosts of heaven,
 Proceeded ; not in words as we converse,
 Each with his fellow, but in language such
 As God doth use, imparting without phrase
 Successive, what in speech of creatures, seems
 Long narrative, tho' long, yet loosing much,
 In feeble symbols, of the thought Divine.

My servants long approved, my faithful sons !
 Angels of glory, Thrones, Dominions, Powers !
 Well pleased, this morning, I have seen the speed
 Of your obedience, gathering round my throne,
 In order due, as well becoming garb ;
 Illustrious, as I see, beyond your wont,
 As was my wish, to glorify this day.
 And now what your assembling means, attend.

This day concludes the destiny of man .
 The hour, appointed from eternity,
 To judge the earth, in righteousness, is come ;
 To end the war of Sin, that long has fought,
 Permitted, against the sword of Holiness ;
 To give to men and devils, as their works
 Recorded in my all-remembering book,

I find ; good to the good, and great reward
 Of everlasting honor, joy and peace.
 Before my presence here, for evermore :
 And to the evil as their sins provoke,
 E'ernal recompense of shame and wo,
 Cast out beyond the bounds of light and love.

Long have I stood, as ye, my sons, well know,
 Between the cherubim, and stretched my arms
 Of mercy out, inviting all to come
 To me, and live ; my bowels long have moved
 With great compassion ; and my justice passed
 Transgression by, and not imputed sin.
 Long here, upon my everlasting throne,
 I have beheld my love and mercy scorned ;
 Have seen my laws despised, my name blasphemed,
 My providence accused, my gracious plans
 Opposed ; and long, too long, have I beheld
 The wicked triumph, and my saints reproached
 Maliciously, while on my altars lie,
 Unanswered still, their prayers and their tears,
 Wh.ch seek my coming, wearied with delay :
 And long, Disorder in my moral reign
 Has walked rebelliously, disturbed the peace
 Of my eternal government, and wrought
 Confusion, spreading far and wide, among
 My works inferior, which groan to be Released. Nor long shall groan : the hour of grace,
 The final hour of grace is fully past.
 The time accepted for repentance, faith,
 And pardon, is irrevocably past ;
 And Justice unaccompanied, as wont,
 With Mercy, now goes forth, to give to all
 According to their deeds. Justice alone ;
 For why shou'd Mercy any more be joined ?
 What hath not mercy, mixed with judgment, done,
 That mercy, mixed with judgment and reproof,
 Could do ? Did I not revelation make,
 Plainly and clearly, of my will entire ?

Before them set my holy law, and gave
Them knowledge, wisdom, prowess, to obey,
And win, by self-wrought works, eternal life ?
Rebelled, did I not send them terms of peace,
Which, not my justice, but my mercy asked ?—
Terms costly to my well-beloved Son ;
To them gratuitous, exacting faith
Alone for pardon, works evincing faith ?
Have I not early risen, and sent my seers,
Prophets, apostles, teachers, ministers,
With signs and wonders, working in my name ?
Have I not still, from age to age, raised up,
As I saw needful, great, religious men,
Gifted by me with large capacity,
And by my arm omnipotent upheld,
To pour the numbers of my mercy forth,
And roll my judgments on the ear of man ?
And lastly, when the promised hour was come,
What more could most abundant mercy do ?
Did I not send Immanuel forth, my Son,
Only begotten, to purchase, by his blood,
As many as believed upon his name ?
Did he not die to give repentance, such
As I accept, and pardon of all sins ?
Has he not taught, beseeched, and shed abroad
The Spirit unconfined, and given at times,
Example fierce of wrath and judgment poured
Vindictive on nations guilty long ?
What means of reformation that my Son
Has left behind untried ? what plainer words,
What arguments more strong, as yet remain ?
Did he not tell them with his lips of truth,—
The righteous should be saved, the wicked, damned ?
And has he not, awake both day and night,
Here interceded with prevailing voice,
At my right hand, pleading his precious blood
Which magnified my holy law, and bought,
For all who wished, perpetual righteousness ?
And have not you, my faithful servants, all

Been frequent forth, obedient to my will,
 With messages of mercy and of love,
 Administering my gifts to sinful man ?
 And have not all my mercy, all my love,
 Been sealed and stamped with signature of heaven
 By proof of wonders, miracles, and signs
 Attested, and attested more by truth
 Divine, inherent in the tidings seat ?
 This day declares the consequence of all.
 Some have believed, are sanctified, and saved,
 Prepared for dwelling in this holy place,
 In these their mansions, built before my face :
 And now beneath a crown of golden light,
 Beyond our wall, at place of judgment, they,
 Expecting, wait the promised due reward.
 The others stand with Satan bound in chains ;
 The others, who refused to be redeemed,—
 They stand, unsanctified, unpardoned, sad,
 Waiting the sentence that shall fix their wo.
 The others who refused to be redeemed ;
 For all had grace sufficient to believe,
 All who my gospel heard ; and none who heard
 It not, shall by its law this day be tried.
 Necessity of sinning, my decrees
 Imposed on none ; but rather all inclined
 To holiness ; and grace was bountiful,
 Abundant, overflowing with my word ;
 My word of life and peace, which to all men
 Who shall or stand or fall by law revealed,
 Was offered freely, as 'twas freely sent,
 Without all money, and without all price.
 Thus, they have all by willing act despised
 Me, and my Son, and sanctifying Spirit.
 But now no longer shall they mock or scorn :
 The day of Grace and Mercy is complete,
 And Godhead from their misery absolved.

So saying, He, the Father infinite,
 Turning, addressed Messiah, where he sat

Exalted gloriously, at his right hand.
This day belongs to justice, and to Thee,
Eternal Son ! thy right for service done,
Abundantly fulfilling all my will ;
By promise thine, from all eternity,
Made in the ancient Covenant of Grace ;
And thine, as most befitting, since in thee
Divine and human meet, impartial judge,
Consulting thus the interest of both.
Go then, my Son, divine similitude !
Image express of Deity unseen !
The book of my remembrance take ; and take
The golden crowns of life, due to the saints ;
And take the seven last thunders ruinous ;
Thy armor take ; gird on thy sword, thy sword
Of justice ultimate, reserved, till now
Unsheathed, in the eternal armory ;
And mount the living chariot of God.
Thou goest not now, as once to Calvary,
To be insulted, buffeted, and slain :
Thou goest not now with baffle, and the voice
Of war, as once against the rebel hosts ;
Thou goest a Judge, and find'st the guilty bound :
Thou goest to prove, condemn, acquit, reward ;
Not unaccompanied ; all these, my saints,
Go with thee, glorious retinue ! to sing
Thy triumph, and participate thy joy ;
And I, the Omnipresent, with thee go ;
And with thee, all the glory of my throne.

Thus said the Father ; and the Son beloved,
Omnipotent, Omniscient. Fellow God,
Arose resplendent with Divinity ;
And He the book of God's remembrance took ;
And took the seven last thunders ruinous ;
And took the crowns of life, due to the saints ;
His armor took ; girt on his sword, his sword
Of justice ultimate, reserved, till now
Unsheathed, in the eternal armory ;

And up the living chariot of God
Ascended, signifying all complete.

And now the Trump of wondrous melody,
By man or angel never heard before,
Sounded with thunder, and the march began.
Not swift, as cavalcade, on battle bent,
But, as became procession of a judge,
Solemn, magnificent, majestic, slow ;
Moving sublime with glory infinite,
And numbers infinite, and awful song.
They passed the gate of heaven, which many a league,
Opened either way, to let the glory forth
Of this great march. And now, the sons of men
Beheld their coming, which, before they heard ;
Beheld the glorious countenance of God !
All light was swallowed up, all objects seen,
Faded ; and the Incarnate, visible
Alone, held every eye upon Him fixed !
The wicked saw his majesty severe,
And those who pierced Him, saw his face with clouds
Of glory circled round, essential bright !
And to the rocks and mountains called in vain
To hide them from the fierceness of his wrath :
Almighty power that flight restrained, and held
Them bound immovable before the bar.

The righteous, undismayed and bold—best proof
This day of fortitude sincere—sustained
By inward faith, with acclamations loud,
Received the coming of the Son of Man ;
And drawn by love, inclined to his approach,
Moving to meet the brightness of his face.

Meanlime, 'tween good and bad, the Judge, his wheels
Stayed, and, ascending, sat upon the great
White Throne, that morning founded there by power
Omnipotent, and built on righteousness

And truth. Behind, before, on every side,
 In native, and reflected blaze of bright
 Celestial equipage, the myriads stood,
 That with his marching came ; rank above rank,
 Rank above rank, with shield and flaming sword.

"Twas silence all : and quick, on right and left,
 A mighty angel spread the book of God's Remembrance ; and, with conscience, now sincere,
 All men compared the record written there,
 By finger of Omnipotence, and received
 Their sentence, in themselves, of joy or wo,
 Condemned or justified, while yet the Judge,
 Waited, as if to let them prove themselves.
 The righteous, in the book of life displayed,
 Rejoicing read their names ; rejoicing read
 Their faith for righteousness received, and deeds
 Of holiness, as proof of faith complete.
 The wicked, in the book of endless death,
 Spread out to left, bewailing read their names ;
 And read beneath them, Unbelief, and fruit
 Of Unbelief, vile, unrepented deeds,
 Now unrepentable for evermore ;
 And gave approval of the wo affixed.

This done, the Omnipotent, Omniscient Judge,
 Rose infinite, the sentence to pronounce ;
 The sentence of eternal wo or bliss !
 All glory heretofore seen or conceived ;
 All majesty, annihilated, dropped
 That moment, from remembrance, and was lost ;
 And silence, deepest hitherto esteemed,
 Seemed noisy to the stillness of this hour.
 Comparisons I seek not ; nor should find,
 If sought : that silence, which all being held,
 When God's Almighty Son, from off the walls
 Of heaven the rebel angels threw, accursed,
 So still, that all creation heard their fall
 Distinctly, in the lake of burning fire,

Was now forgotten, and every silence else.
 All being rational, created then,
 Around the judgment seat, intensely listened ;
 No creature breathed : man, angel, devil, stood,
 And listened ; the spheres stood still, and every star
 Stood still and listened ; and every particle
 Remotest in the womb of matter stood,
 Bending to hear, devotional and still.
 And thus upon the wicked first, the Judge
 Pronounced the sentence, written before of old ;
 "Depart from me, ye cursed, into the fire
 Prepared eternal in the Gulph of Hell,
 Where ye shall weep and wail for evermore ;
 Reaping the harvest which your sins have sown."

So saying, God grew dark with utter wrath ;
 And drawing now the sword, undrawn before,
 Which through the range of infinite, all round
 A gleam of fiery indignation threw,
 He lifted up his hand omnipotent,
 And down among the damned the burning edge
 Plunged ; and from forth his arrowy quiver sent,
 Emptied, the seven last thunders ruinous,
 Which, entering, withered all their souls with fire.
 Then first was vengeance, first was ruin seen
 Red, unrestrained, vindictive, final, fierce.
 They howling fled to west among the dark ;
 But fled not these the terrors of the Lord :
 Pursued and driven beyond the Gulph, which frowns
 Impassable, between the good and bad,
 And downward far remote to left, oppressed
 And scorched with the avenging fires, begun
 Burning within them,—they upon the verge
 Of Erebus, a moment, pausing stood,
 And saw, below, the unfathomable lake,
 Tossing with tides of dark, tempestuous wrath ;
 And would have looked behind ; but greater wrath,
 Behind, forbade, which now no respite gave
 To final misery : God, in the grasp

Of his Almighty strength, took them upraised,
 And threw them down, into the yawning pit
 Of bottomless perdition, ruined, damned,
 Fast bound in chains of darkness evermore ;
 And Second Death, and the undying Worm,
 Opening their horrid jaws with hideous yell,
 Falling, received their everlasting prey.

A groan returned, as down they sunk, and sunk,
 And ever sunk among the utter dark !

A groan returned ! the righteous heard the groan ;
 The groan of all the reprobate, when first
 They felt damnation sure ! and heard Hell close !
 And heard Jehovah, and his love retire !

A groan returned ! the righteous heard the groan !
 As if all misery, all sorrow, grief,
 All pain, all anguish, all despair, which all
 Have suffered, or shall feel, from first to last
 Eternity, had gathered to one pang,
 And issued in one groan of boundless wo !

And now the wall of hell, the outer wall,
 First gateless then, closed round them; that which thou
 Hast seen of fiery adamant, emblazed
 With hideous imagery, above all hope,
 Above all flight of fancy, burning high ;
 And guarded evermore, by Justice, turned
 To Wrath, that hears, unmoved, the endless groan
 Of those, wasting within ; and sees, unmoved,
 The endless tear of vain repentance fall.

Nor ask if these shall ever be redeemed.
 They never shall : not God, but their own sin
 Condemns them : what could be done, as thou hast
 heard,
 Has been already done ; all has been tried,
 That wisdom infinite, and boundless grace,
 Working together could devise, and all
 Has failed : why now succeed ? Though God should stoop,

Inviting still, and send his Only Son
 To offer grace in hell, the pride that first
 Refused, would still refuse ; the unbelief
 Still unbelieving, would deride and mock ;
 Nay more, refuse, deride, and mock ; for sin
 Increasing still, and growing day and night
 Into the essence of the soul, become
 All sin, makes what in time seemed probable,
 Seemed probable, since God invited then—
 For ever now impossible. Thus they,
 According to the eternal laws which bind
 All creatures, bind the Uncreated One,
 Though we name not the sentence of the Judge—
 Must daily grow in sin and punishment,
 Made by themselves their necessary lot,
 Unchangeable to all eternity.

What lot ! what choice ! I sing not, cannot sing.
 Here, highest seraphs tremble on the lyre,
 And make a sudden pause ! but thou hast seen.
 And here, the bard, a moment, held his hand,
 As one who saw more of that horrid wo
 Than words could utter ; and again resumed.

Nor yet had vengeance done. The guilty Earth,
 Inanimate, debased, and stained by sin,
 Seat of rebellion, of corruption, long,
 And tainted with mortality throughout,
 God sentenced next ; and sent the final fires
 Of ruin forth, to burn and to destroy.
 The saints its burning saw ; and thou mayst see.
 Look yonder round the lofty golden walls
 And galleries of New Jerusalem,
 Among the imagery of wonders past ;
 Look near the southern gate ; look, and behold,
 On spacious canvass, touched with living hues,—
 'The conflagration of the ancient earth,
 The handiwork of high arch-angel, drawn
 From memory of what he saw that day.

See how the mountains, how the valleys burn !
The Andes burn, the Alps, the Appenines ;
Taurus and Atlas, all the islands burn ;
The Ocean burns, and rolls his waves of flame.
See how the lightnings, barbed, red with wrath,
Sent from the quiver of Omnipotence,
Cross and recross the fiery gloom, and burn
Ioto the centre ! burn without, within,
And help the native fires, which God awoke,
And kindled with the fury of his wrath.
As inly troubled, now she seems to shake ;
The flames, dividing, now a moment, fall ;
And now in one conglomerated mass,
Rising, they glow on high, prodigious blaze !
Then fall and sink again, as if within,
The fuel, burnt to ashes, was consumed.
So burned the earth upon that dreadful day,
Yet not to full annihilation burned :
The essential particles of dust remained,
Purged by the final, sanctifying fires,
From all corruption ; from all stain of sin,
Done there by man or devil, purified.
The essential particles remained, of which
God built the world again, renewed, improved,
With fertile vale, and wood of fertile bough ;
And streams of milk and honey, flowing song ;
And mountains cinctured with perpetual green ;
In clime and season fruitful, as at first,
When Adam woke, unfallen, to paradise.
And God, from out the fount of native light,
A handful took of beans, and clad the sun
Again in glory ; and sent forth the moon
To borrow thence her wonted rays, and lead
Her stars, the virgin daughters of the sky.
And God revived the winds, revived the tides ;
And touching her from his Almighty hand,
With force centrifugal, she onward ran,
Coursing her wonted path, to stop no more.
Delightful scene of new inhabitants !

As thou, this morn, in passing hither, saw.

Thus done, the glorious Ju'ge, turning to right,
 With countenance of love unspeakable,
 Beheld the righteous, and approved them thus.
 "Ye blessed of my Father, come, ye just,
 Enter the joy eternal of your Lord ;
 Receive your crowns, ascend, and sit with Me,
 At God's right hand, in glory evermore."

Thus said the Omnipotent, Incarnate God :
 And waited not the homage of the crowns,
 Already thrown before him ; nor the loud
 Amen of universal holy praise ;
 But turned the living chariot of fire,
 And swifter now—as joyful to declare
 This day's proceedings in his Father's court,
 And to present the number of his sons
 Before the throne—ascended up to heaven.
 And all his saints, and all his angel bands,
 As glorious they on high ascended, sang
 Glory to God, and to the Lamb ! they sung
 Messiah, fairer than the sons of men,
 And altogether lovely. Grace is poured
 Into thy lips, above all measure poured ;
 And therefore God hath blessed thee evermore.
 Gird, gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O thou
 Most Mighty ! with thy glory ride ; with all
 Thy majesty, ride prosperously, because
 Of meekness, truth, and righteousness. Thy throne,
 O God, for ever and for ever stands ;
 The sceptre of thy kingdom still is right :
 Therefore hath God, thy God, anointed Thee,
 With oil of gladness and perfumes of myrrh,
 Out of the ivory palaces, above
 Thy fellows, crowned the prince of endless peace.

Thus sung they God, their Saviour ; and themselves,
 Prepared complete to enter now with Christ,

Their living head, into the Holy Place.
Behold the daughter of the King, the bride,
All glorious within, the bride adorned,
Candidly in broidery of gold ! behold,
She comes, apparelled royally, in robes
Of perfect righteousness ; fair as the sun ;
With all her virgins, her companions fair ;
Into the Palace of the King she comes !
She comes to dwell for evermore ! awake,
Eternal harps ! awake, awake, and sing !
The Lord, the Lord, our God Almighty, reigns !

Thus the Messiah, with the hosts of bliss,
Entered the gates of heaven—unquestioned now—
Which closed behind them, to go out no more,
And stood accepted in his Father's sight ;
Before the glorious everlasting throne,
Presenting all his saints ; not one was lost,
Of all that he in Covenant received :
And having given the kingdom up, he sat,
Where now he sits, and reigns, on the right hand
Of glory ; and our God is all in all.

Thus have I sung beyond thy first request,
Rolling my numbers o'er the track of man,
The world at dawn, at mid-day and decline ;
Time gone, the righteous saved, the wicked damned
And God's eternal government approved.
